

Reasons for Risibility.

BY OLOYER WENDELL HOLMES.

Sweet coz! I'm happy when I can, I'm merry while I may, For life's at most a narrow span, At best a winter's day. If care could make the sunbeam wear A brighter, warmer hue, The evening star shine out more fair, The blue sky look more blue, Then I should be a graver man-But since 'tis not the way, Sweet coz! I'm happy when I can, And merry when I may!

If sighs could make us sin the less, Perchance I were not glad-If mourning were the sage's dress, My garb should then be sad. But since the angels' wings are white, And e'en the young saints smile-Since virtue wears a brow of light, And vice a robe of guile-Since laughter is not under ban, Nor gladness clad in gray--Sweet coz! I'm happy when I can, And merry when I may!

I've seen a bishop dance and reel, And a sinner fast and pray, A knave at the top of Fortune's wheel, And a good man cast away! Wine I have seen your grave ones quaff, Might set our fleet afloat; But I never heard a hearty laugh From out a villain's throat; And I never knew a mirthful man Make sad a young maid's day-So, coz! I'm happy when I can, And merry when I may!

Move On!

The march of Life should never stay-All things should onward tend; Man should not clog progression's way, But strive to move and mend. The waters move in depth of ocean, The streams along the dales, And rivulets, with onward motion, Through sweet and verdant vales,

The clouds move gently through the sky, The earth rolls ever on; Time swiftly in its course runs by, And years pass one by one. Man, too should strive to follow them, In this their onward way, Permitting nought the tide to stem, But ever, day by day,

Men may be wiser, if they strive-More virtuous, if they will; And who, within the world, would thrive, Must aim at higher still. Let bigots stand by doctrines old, The wise may pass them by; Weak minds will cling with subtle hold, But strong ones, valiantly, Move on!

Like water rolling to the acean, Down mountains fil'd on high-Like clouds forever in commotion, That move across the sky--Will we forever onward press, Thus fetterless and free; And deeming virtue happiness, Our watch-word ever be:

A GENTLEMAN. - Show me the man -who can hold cheerful converse with thus: one whom years have deprived of charms -show me the man who is willing to help the deformed who stand in need of help, as if the blush of Helen mantle on her cheek-show me the man who would no more look rudely at the poor girl in ter of my 'Dictionary of Southerisms' and the village than at the elegant and welldressed lady of the saloon-show me the man who treats unprotected maidenhood as he would the heiress, surrounded by the powerful protection of rank, riches, Kennerly, the City Collector of St. Louis and family-show me the man who ab- was charged with being a defaulter to the hors the libertine's guile, who shuns a amount of $8000. Above his Business.

It is a serious evil that many a young man has fallen into, to be above his business. A person learns a trade, but he is too proud to work at it, and must go to shop-keeping, or street-loafing, or turn politician. Fool! If he cannot make a living at his trade, we are sure he cannot in any other way. And then young men brought up to shop-keeping, must buy farms or houses, or some other foolish things they know nothing about, and what is the result? Head over heels in debt, and certain failure. Multitudes have been ruined by being above their business, and branching out into what they know noth-
