THE PARTED YEAR.

BY MRS. WELBY.

The parted year hath passed away Unto that dreamy land, Where ages upon ages sleep, A mighty, slumbering band, And like a blood stained conqueror Grown weary of renown, Hath yielded to the new born year His sceptre and his renown.

Hark! the low minds are sighing now O'er the departed year, And gathering in dim autumn leaves, To strew upon his bier, While the tail trees stand leafless round, Unstirred by summer's breath, Like mourners reft of every hope Above the couch of death.

Could we but lift the mildewed veil O'er buried ages cust, And bring to light the darkened things That slumber with the past, Sad mysteries, undreamed of now, One glance would then unfold, And many other mournful things, Too mearnful to be told.

The cold, the dead, the beautiful, E'en now they silent pass Like floating ahadows, one by one, O'er memory's faithful glass; And hope and love start fondly up To greet them as of yore, But something whispers unto each-Be still, they are no more.

Time, ceaseless time we know not when Thy wanderings began, The dreamy past is sealed to us, The future none can scan; We only know that round thy path Dark ruins have been liuried, That, 'neath thy wing Destruction rears His alters o'er the world.

Still onward, onward, thou dost press With low and measured tread, Peopling with cold and lifeless forms The cities of the doad; Throwing around the young and fair The shadow of thy wing. And stealing from each human heart. Some loved and cheerful thing.

Yet deep, deep in each thrilling heart One fount remaineth still; Which hoary Time nor icy Death Hath power to touch or chill: It is the hely fount of Love, Whose waters hallowed lie, Filled from that everlasting source The well spring from on high.

We cannot stay thy footsteps, Time! Thy flight no hand can bind Save His, whose foot is on the sea, Whose voice is in the wind; Yet when the stars from their bright spheres Like living flames are harled, Thy mighty form will sink beneath The ruins of the world.
