

and enjoying reasonable health, is an un- fortunate man to allow himself to be wheedled into the opinion that he may render himself better off in life by leaving the comforts of civilization, and in inflicting upon himself the various horrors of this detestable country, for the meagre chance of getting a little more money here than he could at home in a given time.— "Tell all your friends that have "the fever" that if they know when they are well off, they will stay where they are and not risk their lives in such an inhospitable climate as this. * * * The papers do not publish one in a thousand of the deaths that occur here. If any friend of the deceased will furnish the notice, and pay for its insertion, it is published; not otherwise. Hundreds—thousands leave their bones to rot in the soil of California, leaving friends in the States, and elsewhere, to look for their return, who never learn their fate for many months—perhaps for years. If a man could be assured of good health while here, he might be excused for coming, because he may do well; but the chances are ten to one against him, in point of health, and he had better not venture it."

Later from Santa Fe.
St. Louis, March 22.
F. S. Hatchee arrived here, yesterday, from the Plains, having left Santa Fe on the 6th of February. He crossed the Plains in company with eight Americans and four Mexicans. The snow was twenty inches deep on the Plains. The Apache Indians were more hostile and troublesome than ever. Mr. Hatchee and his party lost all their animals on the Arkansas river, by the Indians. They were compelled to walk from there to Central Grove, and suffered much on the way.— "There was nothing new at Santa Fe."
Mr. Hatchee came from California to Santa Fe. He left San Francisco on the 29th of November. He represents the road literally strewn with the property of California emigrants.

An Immense Union Meeting at Natchez.
CINCINNATI, March 22.
The Natchez papers received here this evening, contain the proceedings of an immense Union Meeting held in that city. It is stated to be the largest meeting ever held there. Resolutions were unanimously adopted, declaring that as California has formed a constitution, and demands admission into the Union, it would be alike impolitic and unjust, to attempt to fortify our own rights, by trenching upon the rights of others. The clause in the constitution of California which prohibits slavery, should form no obstacle in her full, free and prompt admission as an integral and equal member of our confederacy. Such admission is not deemed unconstitutional, or an aggression on the rights of the South, but a mere question of expediency. That the present agitation is calculated to create a division instead of a united action on the part of the South.

The Spirit of a True American!
The editor of the Helena (Ark.) Shield, in a spirited article in which his political antagonists are flung right and left, thus discourses:
"We happened to have been born here in the South; we have breathed its atmosphere, and hope to die within its limits; and this is what cannot be said of some of those who call in question our loyalty to it on this subject, namely, the slavery question. Our filial love to the South, however, shall not prevent us from boldly opposing those schemes of public policy which may be set on foot by crafty politicians, and which in their tendency may subvert this precious union of States, and engulf in one undistinguishable mass of ruin all we have and all we hope to have of happiness in this world. This Union, so transcendently glorious, is no school-boy's rattle, to be broken to pieces by every tyro in politics. It is a blood-bought heritage, and God willing, we will be the last to raise a paricidal arm to strike from it one scintilla of that greatness which has given it a world-wide fame."

Born to Greatness.
The following named persons have been appointed cadets in the Military Academy at West Point:
Wm. Croghan Jesup, son of Major General Jesup, of the army; Wm. C. Nicholson, son of the late Commodore Joseph I. Nicholson, of the navy; George A. Gordon, son of the late Commodore Gordon, of the navy, who died in the service on the coast of Africa; George W. C. Lee, son of Col. R. E. Lee, of the Corps of Engineers; McKee, son of Colonel McKee, of the Kentucky volunteers, killed at Buena Vista; Robert C. Wood, son of Doctor Wood, of the army; William E. Drum, son of the late Captain Drum, killed in front of the gates of the city of Mexico; John R. Smead, son of the late Captain Smead of the army, who died of disease contracted in Mexico; Manuel White, Jr., of Louisiana; Hilliard, of Alabama.

Verily do the rich care for the rich—and the great for the great! But for the poor and humble there are none to care but God.
We will not arraign the president for conferring his appointments to the school, [for the support of which the poor pay more than the rich], to the sons of those who have held high offices, and received much of the people's money; but we regret that he could not have found among the sons of the many thousands of musketeers whose lives were offered up as a sacrifice for the honor of our country in the recent war with Mexico, at least one worthy to be included in his list of preferences.—Lit. Gazette.

Marshall Ney's Death Scene.
The vengeance of the allied power demanded some victims; and the intrepid Ney who had well nigh put the crown on Bonaparte's head at Waterloo, was to be one of them. Condemned to be shot, he was led to the Garden of Luxembourg on the morning of the 7th of December, and placed in front of a file of soldiers, drawn up to kill him. One of the officers stepped up to bandage his eyes, but he repulsed him saying, "Are you ignorant that for twenty five years I have been accustomed to face both ball and bullet?" He then lifted his hat above his head, and with the same calm voice that had had steadied his columns so frequently in the roar and tumult of battle, said, "I declare before God and man, that I never betrayed my country; may my death render her happy. Vive la France!" He then turned to the soldiers, and striking his hand on his heart gave order. "Soldiers fire!" A simultaneous discharge followed, and the "brave of the brave," sank to rise no more. "He who had fought five hundred battles for France, not one against her, was shot as a traitor!" As I looked on the spot where he fell, I could not but sigh over his fate. True, he broke his oath of allegiance—so did others, carried away by their attachment to Napoleon, and the enthusiasm that hailed his approach to Paris. Still he was no traitor.—Headley's Miscellanies.

The Beauty of French Intervention.
According to a letter writer, affairs in Rome, at last advised, were anything but enviable. The city was represented as being in a terrible state of excitement. In the space of twenty-eight hours, 500 Romans, belonging to the first families, were arrested. On one side, one hears repeatedly these words, "Yesterday, two, three or four, or more, French were assaulted or assassinated;" and, on the other side, "Thirty forty, or fifty persons were arrested." Scarcely had the decree of the French government, affixing the penalty of death against the bearer of arms been published, than the advanced sentinel of the Campo Naccino was struck down by a blow of a poinard. Fathers of families are shot for carrying knives. The French police search all classes of persons in the streets, in open day. The appearance of the city is most sombre; scarcely anybody goes abroad except on business.

The New Orleans Bulletin of the 11th inst., has the following paragraph: "Our readers will recollect that in the account of the recent dreadful catastrophe on the Mobile river, in the burning of the Orline St. John, it was stated that the carpenter of the boat, who had on board three negroes belonging to himself and brother, jumped with the negroes into the yawl boat and cut her adrift, thus depriving the passengers and crew of the only means of escape, and causing the terrible loss of life that followed. This wretch, whose name was Robert McCaw, was met a few days afterwards at Cahawba, and immediately killed by Mr. Gale the pilot of the Orline St. John. We have not learned the particulars."

Removal of Free Negroes from Virginia.—The bill which had previously passed the Virginia House, appropriating $30,000 per annum to the colonization of free Negroes of that State in Africa, is now a law, having passed the Senate, with an amendment which imposes an annual tax of $1 upon every male free negro in the State from 21 to 50 years of age. The fund arising from this source to be appropriated in like manner with the $30,000, unless the Legislature otherwise prescribe.
A Hoosier was called upon the stand away out west, to testify against the character of another Hoosier. It was as follows:
"How long have you known Bill Bushwhack?"
"Ever since he was born."
"What is his general character?"
"Letter A, No. 1.—'Bove par a very great way."
"Would you believe him on oath?"
"Yes sir—on or off or any other way."
"What, in your opinion, are his qualifications to good character?"
"He is the best shot on the prairies or in the woods, he can shave an eye winker off a wolf as far as a shooting iron will carry a ball; he can drink a quart of grog any day, and chaws tobacco like a boss."
