

American securities are to be firmer, but we have no quotations. Miscellaneous. The corn market is steady, and yellow has advanced sixpence. White is unchanged but firmer. Flour is unchanged. Coffee, in London, is down six shillings or fifteen from the top price of a few weeks previously. Trade in the manufacturing districts is not so good.

Arrival of the Cherokee. $2,000,000 of Gold Dust Received! Great Fire at Chagres! San Francisco Markets, &c.

NEW YORK, April 5. The steamer Cherokee, from Chagres, arrived this morning, bringing San Francisco dates to the 1st of March. She brings nearly TWO MILLIONS OF GOLD!

The dry season digging had commenced and had given a great impetus to business. The steamers Oregon and Tennessee, had arrived at Panama.

A large fire occurred at Chagres, on the night of the 23d of March which destroyed the greater portion of the town. SAN FRANCISCO MARKETS.

Flour—American flour is selling at $10 per barrel. Cattle—Selling at $20 per head. Lumber—In demand at $175 a $180 per M.

IMPORTANT FROM THE PLAINS! Indian Battles. California Emigrants in Great Danger!

Success of the Union Fur Company. St. Louis, April 5, 1850. Messrs. Vesquez and St. Dauphin arrived last evening, from Medicine Creek, a trading post of the Union Fur Company, which they left on the 15th of March.

There was no snow on the plains. The winter has been unusually mild. On Nov. 11th, last, Mr. Dauphin, with ten traders, returning from a trading expedition, was at attacked in camp, at the forks of White river, by a war party of Pawnees.

Dauphin was badly wounded; and in this condition he was deserted by his men. The Indians overpowered him, and took possession of his goods. He then made his escape from Blackfoot Port to Fort Lookout.

Buffaloes were plenty on the plains.—The Sioux Indians had collected in bands of fifty to a hundred for the purpose of hunting. In January while the Sioux in hunting on the Forks of Chayenne river they were attacked by a party of Crow Indians.

A bloody battle ensued. Eight warriors were killed on each side. The Crows stole from the enemy one hundred and fifty horses.

The Sioux were preparing to retaliate. The Yanctons were also preparing to act with the Pawnees. In consequence of deprivations by the latter, it is probable the difficulties would continue all season.

There is reason to fear that the California emigrants, going on the North side of the Platte River may fall in with war parties and be butchered.

May, Hatten, agent for the Sioux Indians, is expected here the last of the month. The Union Fur Company was very successful last year. They will bring over four thousand packs of Robes.

Variety of News. LOUISVILLE, April 8. The steamer Ohio arrived from New Orleans this morning. She ran against Lakeport Bend and shipped two feet of water, damaging her cargo. She was saved from sinking by the exertions of her officers.

The Ohio brought the passengers of the Commodore Perry. Eight had died of Cholera. Some dozen men left this city yesterday, and many persons from above, to join the Cuba expedition. Their destination is Chagres. Large salaries have been promised them. We only know that they go to Chagres, although it is generally understood that their ultimate destination is Cuba.

The river has risen six inches in the last 24 hours. There are 8 1/2 feet water in the channel. The weather is clear. Late papers from Santa Fe state that Senator Foote has written a letter to Mr. Skinner, that the territory in which he advises the people to ask for a territorial government, shall be silent on slavery.

Masters and pilots are requested to run as close to the Indiana shore at Jeffersonville as possible, until they pass under the Telegraph wires. They will, by so doing, consult the interest of themselves and the public.

The following is a letter from passed-minshman Beaumont, master of the raze Independence, to his father, dated Baee, February 9, 1850. It is an eloquent description of the eruption to which it refers. We regret to say that midshipman Bayard, whose wound is mentioned, has since died.

It is now past 12 P. M. Having taken a short nap this afternoon, I shall not be able to sleep until morning. Vesuvius, which for months has slumbered quietly is now in a state of eruption. It is at least fifteen miles distant, yet its thunders, which are incessant, jar the cabin windows. It throws up a column of flame, at least a thousand feet above the crater. It certainly surpasses every thing that I have ever before seen. It is awfully sublime. The lava has burst through the cone, on the east side, opposite to us, and now flows in a stream, about a quarter of a mile wide, fourteen miles into the country. In its course was a village and a palace, both of which were swept away by the fiery torrent and destroyed. In my description of the eruption, you will doubtless discover an effort to emulate the younger Pliny, who so beautifully described the awful eruption of 79, which overwhelmed Pompeii and Herculaneum, which he witnessed from his villa, on this bay.—The Independence rides in or near the birth which was occupied by the fleet under the command of his uncle, he forche proceeded to rescue those who had sailed to the beach for safety. I must now turn in, and hope soon to be lulled to sleep by the thunders of the burning mountain—aint that pretty! The flames of Vesuvius lick up the sky.

Sunday morning.—I had scarcely got in bed last night—or this morning, for it was past one—when one of the officers, Mr. Nelson, who had gone to Naples in the afternoon, returned on board with the following piece of shocking intelligence:

Among the thousands who had gone from the city of Naples to Portici and to the very base of the mountain, to have a closer view of the eruption, were the commodore's clerk and passed midshipman Bayard of our vessel. As they approached the volcano, a piece of stone that projected from it, fell upon Bayard's right arm, breaking it in three places, and bruising and tearing it in a shocking manner. They succeeded in getting him back to Naples, a distance of about 8 miles at least, with great difficulty, but not until he had almost expired from loss of blood, and Mr. Nelson had returned to the ship for the surgeon and one of the assistant surgeons to go up and attend him. Mr. N. told me he thought Bayard must lose his arm, and that he had left two English surgeons with B., both of whom thought amputation necessary to save his life. We are now anxiously looking for news. It is past noon, but no one has yet arrived from Naples with any intelligence from B. The stay of the surgeons, whose services are so necessary on board to attend to a list of 68, induces us to think B's case a serious one. The last news from Naples says, that one man was killed last night on the volcano, and another badly hurt by falling stones. Vesuvius still thunders, though unseen, for he has enveloped himself in a dense cloud of smoke and steam, as if ashamed of the mischief he had already done.

On Tuesday the 9th inst., by the Rev. Mr. Gallagher, Mr. CORNELIUS DONOUGH, of Allegheny township, to Miss SUSAN SKELLY of this place.
