

The fact, started off in pursuit of him by the next steamer. It chanced, however, that our military friend was already on his return home, and passed his pursuer on his route. As he happens to have a wife in New England, and as the Spanish lady has a husband in Mexico, we can hardly think this case is one that will render it necessary for the Presidents of the two republics to interfere in the matter—so far at least, as that one shall make a requisition upon the other for the fugitive from matrimony. The national treaty is likely to stand, notwithstanding such an apparent individual breach of the matrimonial contract.

FROM RIO DE JANEIRO.

The fast sailing clipper-built ship Gray Eagle, Capt. Danley, from Rio Janeiro arrived in the Delaware on Tuesday, after a very short passage of 32 days. The Gray Eagle is famous for having made the shortest trip from the Atlantic port to San Francisco, and her home voyage has been equally brilliant. She is the second return of the Philadelphia California fleet.

The Gray Eagle brings dates from Rio to the 4th ult. We learn from the Bulletin, that at the time she sailed, yellow fever was still raging, with little or no abatement, though hopes were entertained that it had reached its height and would now subside.

Death of Thomas J. Morgan, Esq., of Pennsylvania.

Among the victims, we regret to announce the name of Thomas Jefferson Morgan, Esq., the American Secretary of Legation, who was buried a few days before the Gray Eagle sailed. He had been very actively engaged relieving the sufferings of his countrymen in the city and among the shipping, and by his exposure probably contracted the disease. He was universally lamented by the Americans in port. Having been acquainted with Mr. Morgan, we can testify to his high character, his fine intellect, and his many estimable social qualities. He was about 36 years of age. Mr. Morgan, was a native of Washington, Pa., and a son of Thomas Morgan, Esq., of that place. He had of late years, resided in Ohio, occupying a prominent position in the politics of that State.

The Ravages of the Disease.

Hon. David Tod, the American Minister, was in the country with his family, when the Gray Eagle left. Gov. Kent, the American Consul, had lost a son by the epidemic. Capt. Amity and Captain Harris, both of them in command of Am. California bound ships, had died. A report had arrived, that there had been great mortality on a U. S. store ship after leaving Rio. This, we fear, is the Lexington which was at Rio at the last accounts. In the city the ravages of the fever had been dreadful. One commercial house had 12 clerks down with it at once, and many houses had to be closed.

The Steamer Rhode Island.

The hopes that were entertained of the safety of the steamer Rhode Island, are blasted by this arrival. The steamer of great length, under sail, which was reported going into Rio, by the Isabella Hyne, was the steamer "Sea Gull" from New York, which had arrived there, and corresponds to that description. The steamer Columbus, Capt. Peck, sailed from Rio on the 31st of March, for California. The steamer Sea Gull, New World and J. W. Pease, all sailed about the time of the Gray Eagle's departure. Coffee—Rio Coffee remained firm, with no prospect of a decline in prices. There was very little in the market, and none suited for our markets.

National Ballads of Spain.

No country is so rich in ancient ballads as Spain. In none is there found such variety in the style and subjects—none more strongly show the characteristic features of the age, nor reflect so vividly the characters and manners, the habits and opinions of the people. The English and Scotch ballads belonged to a ruder state of society, and tho' full of a wild energy and even tenderness at times, had less elevation of sentiment. The Spanish ballads are often ennobled by a sense of religion and loyalty, engendered by the contest of centuries in the cause of both. They possess beyond all other poetry of this kind a profound nationality. Their originality is most striking, and a winning freshness is thrown over them; and they are wonderful records of the pervading sensibility and the poetical spirit of the popular classes in Spain, poetical feelings in the masses, to which no country affords a parallel. One characteristic is found in them all—whether they breathe of love and fervent passion, or of heroic ardor—whether they are burlesque, satirical, or pastoral, they are true and warm pictures of Spanish life. The forms of the age glow on the canvass with the most startling reality. The Moorish ballads, which sprung up after the overthrow of the Moors, and seized upon Moorish tradition and manners and their romantic adventures and warlike achievements for their themes, were of an entirely different cast; and bore a singular feature, inasmuch as in those the Spaniard paid a high and enthusiastic tribute to the prowess and chivalric daring of his foes. We shall hereafter pursue this subject farther.—Two Worlds.

April is a month that puts love and mischief into the head of everything, beginning with diary maids and leaving off with he-japonicas. Squothe my hand, Simon, and keep my head from becoming dithey.

It is calculated that about eight millions persons in England and Wales cannot read or write. This is nearly half the population. It is also calculated that of all the children in England and Wales between the ages of five and fourteen, more than half the number do not attend school at all; and that those belonging to the poorest classes who do receive instruction, receive such a meagre and inefficient amount, as to render it of no practical value. A little reading and writing—very often so imperfectly learned that they neither afford amusement nor advantage—and a garbled history of the Scriptures, is all the knowledge that the majority of the poorer children carry with them from school. The very farmers themselves—a class above the subject poor—cannot in many instances read or write; and what little even they might have learned in the days of their miserable instruction, has passed from them, more because of the fatal mode of education, than because of any inaptitude in themselves. Throughout Western Europe, the average of educated persons is far beyond that of England.

One of the provisions of the Constitution of California is as follows:—"Every law enacted by the Legislature shall contain but one object, and that shall be expressed in the title." This is an excellent provision, and was intended to guard against legislative log-rolling, which seeks to combine several objects in one omnibus bill, so called. We of Pennsylvania have suffered more from this characteristic manner of getting bad measures thro' and under false names than any other State. The U. S. Bank was a case in this way and nearly every plundering project is carried into effect by clandestinely inserting obscure sections into Omnibus bills. It is an infamous system, and is not surpassed in desperation and cunning by any modern invention of those who live by their wits.

Which can "smell a rat" the quickest—the man who knows the most, or the man who has the most nose!

A PAPER FOR YOUR FAMILY. THE HOME JOURNAL.

NEW SERIES.
MORRIS & WILLIS, EDITORS.
"The best family newspaper in the world."
"Rather get in coal than go without it."
Boston Post
Published Weekly.—$2 per annum.
In consequence of the great and continually increasing demand for this elegantly printed, widely-circulated and universally popular Family Newspaper, we have, heretofore, been unable to furnish the back numbers to only a very limited extent. To avoid this disappointment in future, we shall, on the first of July next, commence the publication of a new series, and print such an increased edition as will enable us to supply new subscribers from that date. Besides the original productions of the Editors—the Foreign and Domestic correspondence—a large list of contributors—the spice of European Magazines—the selections of the most interesting publications of the day—the brief novels—the piquant stories—the sparkling wit and amusing anecdotes—the news and gossip of the Parliamt papers—the personal sketches of public characters—the stirring scenes of the world we live in—the chronicle of the news for the ladies—the fashions and fashionable gossip—the facts and outlines of news—the pick of English information—the wit, humor and pathos of the times—the essays on life, literature, society and morals, and usual variety of careful choosings from the wilderness of English periodical literature, criticism, poetry, &c. Several new features of remarkable interest will enrich and give value to the new series.
Terms—For one copy $3; for 3 copies $5, or one copy 3 years $5; always in advance. Subscribe without delay. Address MORRIS & WILLIS, Editors & Proprietors 107 Fulton st. N York.
