enemy battle in the open field, under the most favorable circumstances for him. We have destroyed all his field works in the East by Tehendorf, Hohn and Horn Wolfeldt. His camp is at Kalkendorf and this proves that he is not master of Schleswig, as he has given himself out to be."

Spain.

It is stated, on the authority of the correspondent of the London Herald, under date of Paris, Tuesday evening, that arrangements are on foot between Spain on the one side and England and Holland on the other, by which Spain, on condition of having the possession of Cuba guaranteed to her by the joint action of those powers, engages to pay the debt due by her to English, French and creditors.

Prussia.

The Germans have been occupied last week with the sudden and precipitate flight of the Prince of Hesse Cassel. Disputes having occurred between the Chamber as to his right to impose taxes without the consent of the latter, and the people having obtained the sanction of the legal tribunals to their resistance of the illegal taxes imposed by the government, the Prince found the place too hot to hold him and fled.

The Hessians appear to be getting along very well without the elector and his infatuated ministers, and it is said to be probable that other States will shortly follow their example. Austria and Russia view this outbreak with no little anxiety. It is said that Austria will take side with Prussia.

India.

The London press of Friday publish later news from India, received by telegraph via Trieste.

The cholera had broken out in China, and the Governor of Macao had died of it.

Commercial affairs at Bombay were improving. The same remark applies to Madras, but at Calcutta trade was less active.

The prospects of the Indigo crop are said to be encouraging.

From the N. O. Picayune, Sep. 25.
Later from Mexico.

We have received files of papers from the city of Mexico to August 21, being six days later.

We learn that on the 20th of July the Governor of Chihuahua, Angel Triad, sent a communication to the Minister of Relations, advising him of the atrocities committed at the town of El Paso, by three hundred Texan adventurers, who had arrived at that place on their way to California. He asked that a sufficient force should be sent to Chihuahua to protect the frontier.

The savages are committing great ravages in the State of Leon. More soldiers are to be sent to Monterey.

The cholera has disappeared from Morelia and great is the joy of the inhabitants thereat.

The liberals have been successful in almost all the elections. Even in Mexico the Conservatives experienced a complete defeat. They scarcely make a fight any longer. The liberals are split up in a great many factions. The vote of the State of Coahuila, it is said, will be given to Pedraza.

The Ayuntamiento of Tampico has sent a communication to the Supreme Government, setting forth the sad condition of affairs in that port, consequent on the extensive system of smuggling operations carried on there. Besides the neighboring country has been desolated by a drought, and the people are in daily fear of the cholera. Articles of prime necessity are not to be found in the market.

A new frontier custom house is to be established at Piedras Negras.

In the Chamber of Deputies, Senator Perdigon has preferred an accusation against the Minister of War.

The cholera is raging violently in Jalapa.

The Tempoalteca publishes an interesting correspondence between Messrs. Sartorio, about the establishment of a Republic in the State of Vera Cruz, and the influence of the troubles in Mexico. Mr. Sartorio's reply is now made arrangements to bring over some hundreds of industrious families.

The Apaches have been committing more robberies and murders in the State of Chihuahua.

British India.

Matters and things appear to be at present a good deal of a sixes and sevens in the Anglo-Indian Territory. The Government, on Lord Gough's being a little worsted in an engagement with the Sikhs, took it into their heads that he was incompetent, and resolved to send forward, as his successor, Sir Charles Napier, who is an excellent officer, without doubt, brave, well informed, and a rigid disciplinarian. However, before Sir Charles could reach India, General Gough had fought another battle, gained a signal and glorious victory, destroyed the enemy's army almost, retrieved his own credit, put an end to the war, and added another kingdom to the British empire.

Sir Charles arrived, but arrived too late to do what he was sent to do. He could only say veni, vidi, with Caesar, and had to let the vici rest with the veteran Gough. But being active, indefatigable, and severe, and at the same time a little whimsical and eccentric, and finding that there was no fighting to be done, he took to what he may be as well qualified for, but which is a delicate and ungrateful business—reforming. He reformed right and left, leaving no nook or corner unscrutinized, ferreted out all abuses, which were multitudinous, brought them into open daylight, and denounced them in a manner to make the delinquents call upon the hills and mountains to cover them. He spared nothing and spared nobody, and took especial care to make all that he did as odious as possible, by doing everything in the most ungracious manner possible. The Latin maxim, suaviter in modo, he condemned as unworthy of a British Lieutenant General, and seemed to delight in giving everything the very worst name he could find for it. A spade he was sure to call a spade, and all this not in conversation, either public or private, but in General Orders, where it has to remain as a part of the military records of the country to the end of the empire, which end may not be very near. An officer of high rank—Colonel King—he drove to suicide, by insinuating cowardice against him at the battle of Chillianwallah, at which Gough, though not exactly defeated, still came off second best. A soldier had called King a coward, for which a court martial condemned him to seven years transportation. Sir Charles remitted the sentence, which was justifying him. This the Colonel could not brook, and put an end to his life, showing that he possessed at least one kind of courage—that which preferred death to a stain upon his military reputation.

Sir Charles has quarreled, too, with the Governor-General, Lord Dalhousie, and in consequence of that quarrel, has resigned. So he will return to England, and his reforms may last, possibly, as long as he was engaged in effecting them—about one year.—Washington Globe.

Francis the First having asked Castellan, Bishop of Orleans, whether he was of noble extraction: "Sir," said he, "Noah had three sons in the Ark; I cannot say from which of them I descended."

"Papa, why don't they give the telegraph a dose of gin?"

"Why my child?"

"Because the papers say it is out of order, and mamma always takes gin when she is out of order."

"Belvidere, give that child a dose of catnip tea, and put it to bed immediately!"

If you would get a good start in the world marry a widow with twelve children.

"I see through it now," as the beggar said when a stone was cast directly through the hat he was holding in his hat for alms.

Let others act as they please; but do thou always act according to the dictates of thy own judgement, and take heed of being self-condemned.
