Songs and Hymns of Life .--. No. 1.

BY CHARLES MACKAY.

A Traveler through a dusty road Strewed acorns on the lea, And one took root and sprouted up, And grew into a tree.

Love sought its shade at evening time, To breath its early vows, And age was pleased, in heats of noon,

To bask beneath its boughs The dormouse loved its dangling twigs,

The birds sweet music bore, It stood a glory in its pla ce, A blessing evermore !

A little spring had lost its way Amid the grass and fern, A passing stranger scoop'd a well,

Where weary men might turn ; He wall'd it in, and hung with care A ladle at the brink-He thought not of the deed he did, But judged that toil might drink. He passed again -and lo! the well,

By summers never dried, Had cooled ten th ousand parching tongues Aud saved a life beside !

A dreamer drop'd a random thought ; Twas old, and yet was new-

A simple fancy of the brain, But strong in being true; It shone upon a genial mind, And lo! its light became

A lamp of life, a beacon ray, A monitor flame. The thought was small,-its issue great A watch-fire on the hill;

It sheds its radiance far adown. And cheers the valley still !

A nameless man, amid a crowd That throng'd the daily mart, Let fall a word of Hope and Love. Unstudied, from the heart :

A whisper on the tumult thrown-A transitory breath-It raised a brother from the dust, It saved a soul from death

O germ! O font! O world of Love! O thought at random cast! Ye were but little at the first.

But mighty at the last! (Illustrated News.

From Cist's Advertiser. Culture of Broom Corn. To Benjamin Franklin, among other benefits conferred on his country, is America indebted for the Weeping Willow, now diffused over the whole land, and Blanket Overcoats of all sizes; a large lot Broom Corn, which has become so ex- of Satinet and Cassimere Pantaloons of all tensively both a luxury and necessity in housekeeping life. He planted a slip of willow basket which seemed to possess vitality; and it became a tree which in time supplied cuttings for thousands of cultivators. With like provident care he planted a seed which had adhered to a whisk, and as its products, we behold the Fine and Coarse Shirts, Handkerchiefs, that date my books will be put into the hands millions of broom cornstalks, spread over the whole country. As was natural, broom corn was first extensively raised in Pennsylvania, the theatre of Franklin's experiments. Its progress as an article of commerce in that State, is thus exhibited in the Germantown Telegraph:

About 1790, Benjamin Atkinson commenced the broom business in Buyberry township, Philadelphia county, raising the corn and manufacturing the brooms. After a few years he took Bezaleel Croasdale Having selected their goods with great care into partnership, and they jointly had the and purchased on the lowest cash terms, they trade altogether in their hands till 1815 or are prepared to accommodate their friends and 1816—making the brooms and entirely customers with clothing of a superior quality and at lower prices than goods of a similar supplying the markets of Philadelphia, quality were ever sold in this county.
