

you take hold of the newspaper of your neighborhood, as a subscriber, who has paid his $2 and done a proper act of citizenship.

We have some words to say to our brothers of the press, which, for the present we defer as to the proper and effective use of their power, in driving from their borders, the locust-like literature which covers the land—carrying destruction on its wings, and leaving death in its wake. But,

There's a good time coming boys for true hearts—and wide field of labor for the bravest.

The York and Cumberland Railroad.
We understand, from the Baltimore Sun, that the difficulties between the directors and contractors of the York and Cumberland Railroad, which it was thought would result in intractable lawsuits, has been amicably settled by mutual concession and compromise. Not being aware of the exact nature of the difficulty, we do not know the particulars of the compromise, with the exception that the directors have agreed to receive the road at once from the contractors, and that it will be open for business about the first of February.

This information will be learned with much pleasure by all our citizens. The road is one in which considerable interest has been felt, and the generally and enterprising contractors deserve much credit for having brought it to its present state of perfection. In its construction, our citizens are well aware that these contractors had to contend with trials and difficulties of no ordinary nature. A season of unusual drought was succeeded by a season of most destructive frosts, and the difficulty in obtaining hands on account of the sickness along the line, will be remembered by all. And yet there seemed "no such word as fail," in the vocabulary of these gentlemen, and their skill and enterprise have won for them "golden opinions" in this neighborhood. Success attend them in their future undertakings. [York Gazette.]

ROMANCE AND REALITY.—The Lewiston (Me.) Journal, relates a singular incident, which in a few words may be stated thus: In the year 1814, a Mr. Thurston of Pownal, was married to a young lady of that place, with whom he lived two or three years. He then left his wife and went to the British Provinces, where, a short time after, it was reported that he was executed for trespass on the King's timber land. A year or two after this report became current, she married a second time with a Mr. Lovell, with whom she lived until his death, which occurred a few years since.

Since that time nothing has occurred to occasion a doubt of the rumor of the death of her husband, until a few days since a person called upon her, and stated that her first husband had recently died in Hudson, New York, having been injured by a fall from his carriage, and offered her fifty dollars for an assignment of her right in his property. This she very wisely refused to do. The next day another man called upon her and offered $150, which she likewise declined. An enquiry was instituted, and the result is that a fortune of some $30,000 will probably fall into her hands. Thurston left some eight or nine children by a second marriage, but as this in the eye of the law was illegal, she remains the sole heir.

Juan Fernandez.
Who has not read of this famous spot, in the bosom of the Pacific, off the Chilean coast,—the solitary home and hunting ground of ROBINSON CRUSOE! At last a project was perfected for its settlement and civilization, the Chilean Government securing to a certain company the privilege of occupying it for a term of years. A writer says:

The object which the Government has in making this contract is to cultivate and cultivate the island, for which purpose it is so admirably adapted by the salubrity of its climate, the fertility of its soil, the variety of its products, and its nearness to the coast; and it is the design of the above named gentleman, by offering inducements to emigrants and affording them facilities for agriculture, to carry out their plan.

The island abounds in game, goats and a superior breed of horses, and in its waters are found a great abundance of the most delicious varieties of fish, lobsters, &c. There is also a safe and commodious harbor from which its products may be exported.

One of the first steps will be to establish means of communication with the ports of Valparaiso and Copiapo, which places will furnish a market for the produce.

This will be done first by sailing vessels and ultimately by steamers, and we doubt not before long it will become a fashionable place of resort in summer.

Silver and Gold.
Revolution in the Circulating Medium.—The recent advices from Europe reveal approaching changes in the circulating medium of continental Europe. The plethora of gold is filling with alarm the governments. Its abundance is depreciating its value, which, by way of amendment, they are about further depreciating by withdrawing it from public circulation as a legal tender. The example of the Dutch government is catching—France is about to follow, and to make silver alone legal tender. Remarkings on this subject, the New York Post says:

This, from the increasing scarcity of silver, will add a considerable per centage to all monetary transactions, increasing taxes, and all obligations involving payments of money; while the additional demand for silver consequent on this change, and the greater abundance of gold, displacing it partially from circulation, will increase the existing difficulty.

If gold ceases to be legal money in any country, while silver becomes scarce, serious difficulty may hereafter be felt in money matters. The movement, however, will be confined to the continent. England will retain her gold legal tender, making, probably, some alteration in the legal proportion of value between the metals, and thus obviating the present difficulty. Gold is, by far, the best metal for legal money, though an additional abundance may have the effect of raising the prices of commodities generally.

Its steadiness of value will be little affected by the fifty millions dollars of gold coming from California annually. Its displacement from the currency of Europe would have far greater effect; but, unless England joins, in such a measure, the effect will be comparatively harmless.

Prices will settle gradually according to the new degree of abundance, and every thing would move with regularity. While, on the contrary, a scarcity of silver, combined with an increased demand for it, from making it the only coin for settlement of transactions would involve a monetary crisis.

Silver being less durable than gold, does not stand the wear and tear of circulation so well; and a much larger supply of it is needed to replace it.

The British forces in Ireland now consist of nine regiments of cavalry, twenty four of infantry, and infantry depots—or 24,606 men.
