

A DANIEL!
The Candidate of the Whig party for the Supreme Bench.

Our friends have not failed to note among the names marked for calumny, and fluttering at the tops of the Whig newspapers, that of "JOSEPH BURNINGTON, of Armstrong county," the candidate selected by that respectable brotherhood, for elevation to the dignity of a seat on the Bench of the Supreme Court. It may also be within the knowledge of some of our readers, that this same gentleman, until recently, presided over the judgment seat of the judicial district in which is situated the country of Venango. Now, in the volume just issued from the prolific pen of the Reporter to the State, and containing the last published decisions of the Supreme Court upon appeals brought up from the various districts of Pennsylvania, will be found a leaf destined to carry down to future ages the classical views of BURNINGTON, in company with those of the Solomons, the Catos, and the Josephs of antiquity. It furnishes the report of a case of "Shannon & Nugent vs. The Commonwealth?" according to which report, published by authority, and to be seen at page 226 of the Pennsylvania State Reports, vol. 16, it appears that Judge BURNINGTON, veiling with the wisdom and virtue of the men of better days, and beating and distancing the blue laws of Connecticut and Maine, did in the year of grace, 1850, convict and sentence two individuals in the Quarter Sessions of the County of Venango, one being a man and the other a woman, for "a conspiracy to commit adultery." A conspiracy to commit adultery. These two persons, gentle and learned reader, were acquitted of adultery, but convicted of a conspiracy to commit it!!! An offence not set down in the decalogue, never before described in the law books, or imagined hitherto by either sex, and which must parallel in the Quarter Sessions of Venango, what in civil jurisprudence of the Courts of Chancery, is styled suspension of debt. The Democratic candidate for the Supreme Court, Judge WOODWARD, as is known, is an upright and even fastidious man; but we venture to believe that neither Judge WOODWARD, nor the chaste stars themselves, ever twinkled into such depths of propriety as this. What an edifying scene must have been the County Court room when Judge BURNINGTON sentenced the conspirators found guilty of inclination to adultery! What a candidate have the Whigs! Surely DANIEL was less profound in his judgment, DIANA less accurate in her virtue, JOSEPH himself not half so particular!

But, alas! what was the decision of the appellate Court, when Judge BURNINGTON's transcendentalism came up for review? After that modern Rhadamanthus had passed his sentence, with what a degree of severity is not set down in the book, the parties took a writ of error to the Supreme Court where the validity of the proceedings appearing by Judge BURNINGTON's record was argued, and where, notwithstanding the steady and disciplined gravity of the Court of last resort, the Judges seem to have had much ado to keep in order their rebellious countenances. The point decided in the Court above, according to this learned Reporter, is thus given in the Syllabus: "There is no such offence as a conspiracy between a man and woman to commit adultery." The report then proceeds thus: "Error to the Quarter Sessions of Venango county. The plaintiffs in error were indicted below for a conspiracy to commit adultery. The indictment contained ten counts, on four of which a nolle prosequi was entered. It was charged in the first count, that Shannon and Edna Nugent, wife of James Nugent, together with other evil disposed persons, whose names to the inquest are as yet unknown, on the 23d day of February, 1850, wickedly, &c., did conspire, &c., and agree together to commit adultery, to the great damage of the said James Nugent, &c. In the second count, it was charged that they did then and there conspire and agree together to commit adultery, omitting to allege a combination with other persons. In the other counts the charge was in substance as in the first. On the trial a verdict of guilty was rendered. Objections made to the indictment were urged on a motion in arrest of judgment, before his Honor Judge BURNINGTON and were overruled." After setting forth at length the points made for reversal of the judgment by the counsel for the plaintiff in error, Mr. A. B. McCallum, but not there made for the Commonwealth, for the reason probably in the absence of the Judge himself no reason could be devised why such judgment should be sustained, the Reporter gives the opinion of the Court, which was delivered on the 9th of October, 1850. We copy portions of it only:—"If confederacy constituted conspiracy, without regard to the quality of the act to be done, a party might incur the guilt of it by having agreed to be the passive subject of a battery which did not involve him in a breach of the peace. By such preconcerted encounters it has been said a reputation for piety is sometimes purchased by gentlemen of the fancy. In the same way might a conspiracy to commit adultery by drowning or hanging in concert, according to the method of the Parisian roue, though no one could be indicted of the felony if it were committed. It may be said, such conspiracies are ridiculous and improbable. But nothing is more ridiculous or improbable than a conspiracy to commit adultery—were we not bound to treat it with becoming gravity, it might provoke a smile."—"We understand that this plaintiff in error had been acquitted of actual adultery, and though the fact is not found in the record, it shows how readily an indictment for the substance of the same thing in another form might be made a means of oppression." The opinion reads in these words: "Decency and justice require that such investigations be not encouraged. Judgment reversed." Thus melted on the 9th of October, 1850, the law and doctrine of one of the Whig candidates, and thus on the 12th of October, 1852, will melt the candidate himself, and all that his ticket inherits.—Pennsylvanian.

"Life" said our friend Toby, as he puffed his Havana, and dropped into a dreamy cogitation—"life is like a glass of lemonade, and happiness is the 'fy' in it. It is, moreover, like a bottle of champagne which 'sparkles, is exhaled, and is seen no more. A man is very like a mug of ale—the more X's he has, the better it is. This is a great world—great world—great world—'eat war-r-id,'—and Toby was lost in the mazes of sleep.

Mr. Shaw, of rat-catching notoriety, informs us, in a little book on the rat, that "this little dog Gray, under six pounds weight, has destroyed 2,525 rats, which had been permitted to live, would, at the end of three years, have produced 1,688,190,200 living rats."

The Candidates for Canal Commissioner. The Contrast.

JACOB HOFFMAN, the Whig nominee, is a speculating Lawyer, who was very anxious, and electioneered, to procure the nomination from his party. Since then, he has been very busy in trying to make himself acceptable to all the dissatisfied interests in the State, with a view to catch votes enough to elect him. It would doubtless be a fine speculation for Jacob, should his game succeed. But it won't bring the answer. The people—the farmers and tax payers, of the State, are not inclined, just now, to take one of these trading and bargaining politicians, for Canal Commissioner,—especially when they have an opportunity of doing much better for their own interests, by rejecting him.

On the other hand, WILLIAM HOPKINS, the Democratic nominee, an intelligent Washington county tanner, of much experience in State affairs, having been in the Legislature for a number of years, did not seek the nomination, nor will he seek the office. He stands before the people—in the only proper position for a candidate—perfectly untrammelled and free to devote himself to the interests of the State, which, from the high character of the man, we have every confidence, will be his great object in all that he does.—The following is his letter accepting the nomination:

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30, 1852.

GENTLEMEN:—Your favor of the 26th, informing me that I had been "nominated by the Democratic State Convention as the candidate for the office of canal commissioner," reached me this day. In accepting the nomination to so responsible an office, I deem it but an act of justice to myself to state that it has been tendered to me without solicitation on my part—I was too well aware of the labor and perplexities incident to the position to desire it. But to be thus nominated by the voluntary action of a convention composed of so much intelligence, is an honor which I cannot decline. Should I be elected, and be able (by devoting my best energies to the faithful discharge of the duties of the office) to meet the expectations of those who may aid in my elevation, I shall be much more than compensated for any personal sacrifice. Be pleased, gentlemen, to accept for yourselves and those you represent, assurances of my high regard, and believe me to be, Very truly, &c., WM. HOPKINS.

The Indians of California.

While the Indian Appropriation Bill was before the Senate of the last Session of Congress, Mr. Gwin alluded to the condition of the Indians of California, and made quite an eloquent and touching appeal on their behalf. Among other things he said—

"We have taken their acorns, grass-hoppers, fisheries and hunting grounds from them. The ponds where the wild-fowl assembled in the winter, offering them for the time an abundant supply of food, is now the mining and agricultural region of our citizens. The Indian must perish from the cold and hunger if this Government does not interpose to save him. From his hunting ground we export an annual average value of $90,000,000 in gold, and the revenue paid to the Treasury, from one port in California, exceeds $2,000,000 annually; and yet the miserable pittance of $120,000, to feed and protect these original inhabitants of the country, is refused and cut down $20,000, by the grossly unwise policy adopted by the other House. If this is to be the policy of this Government towards this people, it will form a dark page in our history, if it does not bring the vengeance of Heaven upon us as a nation."

A writer in the National Intelligencer, alluding to the same subject, held this language:—"We know of no portion of the population of our continent more entitled to the protection of the Government, or to the sympathy of intelligent and humane people, than the remaining fragments of the Indian Races who were only a century ago its sole proprietors and inhabitants. Driven across the Mississippi by the policy of the Government, the Red Men from the Atlantic side are met again on the borders of the Pacific by the Pale Faces, whom the annexation of California has tempted thither in search of gold, who are already seeking to drive them from her Eastward into the Interior as we have heretofore driven them Westward. Encountering the whites in the marches and explorations of the latter, they have sometimes been shot down in scores by armed bands of white men, who after such a slaughter, come off without the loss of a single man. Such conflicts are known to have occurred more than once recently.

"So far from countenancing such enterprises, the higher authorities of this Government do everything in their power to repress and prevent them. But the co-operation of Congress is indispensable to the success of any efforts by the Executive to protect the helpless Indians, and to restrain the reckless and cruel, as well among the whites as among the Indians. Great credit is, in our estimation, due to those in Congress who, declining all selfish considerations, stand up for the weak and persecuted of the Aboriginal tribes."
