

Great Fire in Upper Canada.
Twelve townships burnt over—Two Islands Entirely Searched—Three Hundred and Thirty Families Homeless—Household Goods—Blackened Picture of Desolation.

The Upper Ottawa country has been visited with a terrible calamity. Hundreds of families have been rendered homeless, and a large extent of the country presents a blackened picture of desolation. On the 10th inst., a conflagration swept the country from the Deep river to within a short distance of the Bonaventure river, destroying houses, fences, barns, cattle, provisions, grain, and every description of property that came in its way. It is miraculous that the lives of the inhabitants were saved, only two persons it appears having perished. The fire originated from the burning of new land in the different parts of the country, and owing to the warm sunshine and high wind on Monday, it suddenly increased and spread with fearful rapidity. During the early part of the day the wind blew from the southwest, and carried the fire from the rear of the townships in Upper Canada northwards towards the settlements on the Ottawa river. At the same time it was making alarming progress in Sheen and Chichester, on the north of Lower Canada shore, and on the upper or westerly part of Allumette Island. Soon after one o'clock the wind suddenly came round to the west and blew with increased violence. The fire, which till then was scattered and spread over a considerable extent of country, through the townships of Pembroke, Stafford, and Westmeath, which lie in order as before, soon united and became a dense mass of flames, and swept with fearful fury through the interior, passing over portions of Ross, Brantley, and Horton, towards the Bonaventure river. During the greater part of the afternoon the scene was truly terrific. On the Allumette Island the destruction going on, at the same time, was equally dreadful. The island is fourteen miles long, and was swept from head to foot. Only two or three dwellings remain out of about one hundred, thus leaving seventy-nine families here alone homeless. The Calumet Island also suffered severely.

The country burnt over extends in Upper Canada, from the upper part of Pembroke and Stafford to near the Bonaventure river, in Horton and Adamston, the distance in that direction being nearly thirty miles, and from the best information it appears that it would average some twelve miles in width. The townships which suffered here are Pembroke, Stafford, Westmeath, Brantley, Ross and Horton, and about two hundred families are in them left homeless; in fact totally "burned out."

The Allumette Island is about fourteen by five miles in extent, with ninety-seven families, in a similar condition. The country on the north shore being settled only a short distance back from the river, contains proportionally fewer families, and the number of sufferers may be put at about thirty families. This would make altogether something near three hundred and thirty families sufferers by this calamity. In some instances the individual loss exceeds one thousand pounds. The area of country burned over is about four hundred and fifty square miles, total.

To provide seed for the ground and food for four months to come will require, at the lowest computation, seven thousand pounds. Less than that sum will not do it. One-fourth of this amount may perhaps be raised in this part of Canada, but where is the remainder—over four thousand pounds—to come from? We look to the Legislature for this assistance. For every good reason it should be granted forthwith. The necessity of the case—the importance of the demand—the awful nature of the calamity—and what the immense amount of revenue derived from this section of Canada, should be grounds sufficient to warrant the appropriation required. Let the Legislature speedily appropriate five thousand pounds at least to meet immediate and absolute necessities.

The Arctic Expedition.
The brig Advance, under the control of Dr. Kane and an intrepid crew, sailed from New York on Tuesday last, for the Arctic regions in search of Sir James Ross. A steamer had previously taken a party of about one hundred gentlemen to the brig at her anchorage off the battery, where a touching parting took place with the adventurous officers and crew. Among the company were Judge Kane, of Philadelphia, father of Dr. Kane, and his three younger sons; Col. W. J. Leiper, Dr. K's uncle; Henry Grinnell, the proprietor of the expedition, and his son Cornelius Grinnell; Capt. Levy, of the Navy.

The entire number of men in the Advance is only seventeen, and all of them are quite young. The following is a full list of their names:
Elisha M. Kane, M. D., U. S. N., Commanding the Expedition.
J. Wall Wilson, First Mate; Henry Brooks, Second Mate; Amos Bronsell, Third Mate; Jas. McGeary, Fourth Mate; Christopher Olsson, Carpenter.

Boatsmen—Geo. Stephenson, Jefferson T. Parker, Geo. J. Whitell, William E. Godfrey, Geo. Bailey, C. Blake.
William Morton, Steward; Peter Sheppard, Cook; J. J. Hayes, Surgeon; Augustus Sontag, Astronomer; Henry Goodfellow, Naturalist.
The scientific outfit of the expedition is as follows:
A complete Daguerrotype Apparatus.
Two Astronomical Instruments—a Transit Instrument and a Giant Theodolite.
Magnetic Instruments—Magnetometer, Inclinatorium and Azimuth Compass.
Meteorological Instruments—5 Barometers, 2 Aneroid Barometers, 6 dozen Thermometers, and 3 Maximum and Minimum Thermometers.
A bottle of Saline Waters, used as a condenser in Meteoric line apparatus, to be employed for testing point of refrigeration.
The brig is provisioned for three years, and is provided with quantities of snow shoes, wooden sabots, sledges, Indian rubber boots, buffalo skins, &c., and an additional supply of furs will be retained in Greenland. There is also a library on board, and nothing seems to have been neglected for the outfit of the brig or the comfort of the men. We have a strong confidence that Dr. Kane, even if he should not discover the traces of Sir John Franklin, will solve the problem of the open polar sea, and make many interesting discoveries in reference to the Arctic region. He is peculiarly fitted for the task he has undertaken, and we wish him and his gallant associates God speed in their noble undertaking.

Blunders in the Palpit.
A celebrated teacher once prescribed to his theological pupils, "never correct an error in the pupil unless it be heresy or nonsense." We remember hearing a clergyman say in his discourse, "Blessed are the eyes which hear, and the ears that see what you see." He did not correct himself, and everybody perceived it to be a mere slip of the tongue. We have lately read in an exchange paper, that Mr. Inlache, late minister of the Methodist church, near Dundee, was remarkable for his absence of mind. In his prayer one day he said, "Lord, bless all the rank and degrees of persons, from the king on the dunghill, to the beggar on the throne." Then recollecting himself, he added, "I mean from the beggar on the throne, to the king on the dunghill." We have often heard of men making mistakes worse, by attempting to correct them. They blunder in their correction more than in original error.

The ship William and Mary—Particulars of the Wreck and the Rescue of the Passengers.
(From the Savannah Republican, May 31.)

It will be gratifying to our readers to learn that the unfortunate passengers, 180 in number, and the crew, of this ill-fated ship, have been saved, with the exception of two, who in endeavoring to get into the long boat were drowned. The heroic and humane conduct of the seamen, Wm. Ward and Samuel P. Harris, who refused to quit the ship, and abandon the passengers to helplessness and despair, is in noble contrast with the cowardly and reprehensible conduct of Capt. Stinson and his officers, who availed themselves of the first opportunity to desert and sneak off to save their useless lives. And while the dastardly and inhuman conduct of Capt. Stinson sets a seal upon his forehead of infamy and disgrace, the unselfish, brave and human spirits of Ward and Harris will elicit the admiration and approval of mankind. For their heroism and humanity we trust they will receive, as they deserve, some substantial token of public approbation.

The efforts of Captain Sands, of the wrecking schooner Oracle, in saving the lives and relieving the distress of the passengers and crew of the William and Mary, are worthy also, of the highest commendation. Had Capt. Sands been actuated by the same selfish and inhuman feelings as Captain Stinson, he might have attended more to saving the valuable cargo of the ship than he did. His business was that of a wrecker, and his interest was to save the cargo. But he nobly sacrificed his interests and risked his life to rescue his fellow beings from the imminent peril to which they had been abandoned by Stinson; and Captain Sands was instrumental in rescuing these hopeless human beings from a watery grave.

A gentleman from Nassau (Mr. John Bacon) informs us that the William and Mary could easily have been run ashore in a safe place, in four hours, with the wind in the direction it then prevailed. The passengers might all have been safely landed, and much, if not all the cargo might have been saved, though perhaps in a damaged state. The statement of Capt. Stinson, that the William and Mary went down, was false. She was found about three days afterwards, at least twenty miles from the place she struck, and if the passengers had not been taken off, they doubtless, by working the pumps, could have been kept afloat longer.

The agents of the British Government at Nassau, have taken charge of the passengers saved from the William and Mary, and they will be forwarded to New Orleans, the point of their destination. Mr. Bacon informs us that a considerable fund had been raised by private subscription, among the good citizens of Nassau, to purchase supplies for the more needy of these unfortunate sufferers. Mr. B. also informs us that the British passenger act of 1832 makes full provision for discharging these passengers, and the entire cost of maintaining these passengers, although borne, in the first instance, by the British Government, comes, by a section of that act, a Crown debt, and is recoverable from the "owners, master, agents and charterers" of the ship—a bond being given at the port from whence the ship sails to cover any such contingencies. The cost of maintaining the passengers at Nassau, and transporting them to New Orleans, will be about $1000.
