FOR GOVERNOR. WILLIAM BIGLER.

[Subject to the decision of the Democratic Convention.]

The Result.

The election is over, and victory again is ours. Again we have fought and triumphed; and again the principles of Democracy sustained.

In Cambria we have obtained a triumph well-earned and well-deserved. The most nothing and unmerciful opposition was brought to bear against us, but our friends were in the field and fought with a zeal as fervent as it was commendable.

At times dark clouds obscured our horizon, and a gloom, deep and threatening, hung over us and chilled our efforts, but we remembered our duty to our cause and ourselves, and we emerged from the darkest and most despondent of all our previous contests.

Our candidates were men in whom we had unlimited confidence, and who were generally popular with the people, but we attribute our success more to the correctness of the principles of the Democratic party, than to the personal popularity of its nominees.

We have elected, in Cambria county, an entire Democratic ticket. In connection with the counties of Blair and Huntington, we have elected a Senator, and with the counties of Bedford and Fulton, two members of the House of Representatives.

It is sufficient to fill our hearts with rejoicing, but when we remember that, in every portion of the State, the Democrats have been equally triumphant, we feel more than joy.

Our candidates were men in whom we had unlimited confidence, and who were generally popular with the people, but we attribute our success more to the correctness of the principles of the Democratic party, than to the personal popularity of its nominees.

Many Democrats, whom we could name, have labored ardently, zealously, and faithfully to accomplish this result, and we shall ever remember them with gratitude. Their time and means were freely sacrificed for the success of the cause, and they spared no honorable efforts to effect this victory.

THE ELECTION.

Sufficient returns have been received before going to press to enable us to announce that the Democracy of Pennsylvania have gained a signal triumph in the election of our State Ticket, by a majority unprecedented, considering the smallness of the vote that has probably been polled.

Pennsylvania has thus shown her devotion to principle in the midst of discussion, distinction and organization in many of her sister States. The Senate will be largely Democratic, and will be seen to follow by a large majority, but the returns come in so slowly that we are only able to present the following imperfect return.

In Philadelphia county, owing to an amalgamation of the Whigs and Natives, only about one half of the Democratic members of the Legislature have been elected.

The city of Philadelphia, the Consolidation ticket, composed of Democrats and Whigs, has beaten the regularly nominated Whig ticket by a respectable majority.

The entire Whig ticket is elected in Lancaster county. Majority, however, considerably reduced. Prohibitory Liquor Law vote about 400.

In Dauphin county, Hemmell, (Whig) and Salada, (Dem.), are elected to the Legislature. Maine Liquor Law vote about 1,400.

Gilpin is re-elected Mayor of Philadelphia. Murphy, Marshal of Police. The Democrats have elected two members of the Common Council.

Berks county gives 4,000 Democratic majority. Northampton 1,500. Montgomery 1,200. Schuylkill 800. York 1,000. Westminster 1,000.

Medill, the Democratic candidate for Governor in Ohio, is elected by over 20,000 majority.

Escape of Irish Exiles.

The editor of the New York Times has seen letters from Australia, giving full particulars of the escape of Mitchell and Martin, co-exiles of Meagher. American citizens were about appealing through our Minister, Mr. Buchanan, to the humanity of England, in behalf of these suffering patriots. But these gallant spirits were weary, waiting for the softening of royal hearts. They have escaped, thank God, and soon we hope to welcome them with glad hearts to this "Asylum of the oppressed."

John Mitchell was one of the most eloquent and daring advocates of Ireland's rights. He labored ceaselessly and fearlessly for a separation from England's rule, until arrested on a charge of sedition, convicted, of course, and hurried off to drag out a miserable life with the most infamous and degraded of England's criminals. He was a ruling spirit of the "Young Ireland Party," was a writer for the Dublin Nation, and afterwards established the United Irishman. Royalty was frightened at his earnestness and eloquence, the ability and power of his logic, and he was banished for fourteen years. Martin, his friend and admirer, soon followed him, under sentence of ten years imprisonment.

They have escaped, thank God, and soon we hope to welcome them with glad hearts to this "Asylum of the oppressed."

FOOLHARDINESS.—A London paper states that a man at Loveth offers to ascend the spire of St. James' Church, which is 295 feet from the ground to repair the weather cock, but the church wardens refuse to allow him. The Stamford Mercury says that four or five ascents have been made within his memory, out of bravado or a drunken frolic. The most extraordinary feat of all, took place on the 5th of May, 1818, when a man named Benjamin Smith, known afterwards as "Spire Smith," scaled the summit of the spire, drank his majesty's health, threw down the bottles, danced a hornpipe, turned around the weather-cock several times tied his neckerchief to the vane, (why he left it) and descended safely.

Lola Montez.

A California correspondent of the Nashville Gazette gives the following account of the movements of Lola Montez: LOLA'S LOCATION.—Lola Montez is now residing at Grass Valley, (a village in the mines) entirely without restraint of her inclinations in (romantic) rambles upon the mountain cliffs as nimble and sure footed as the fearless goat. One knows not which to admire the most, her light form and rosy cheek or snow capped sierras, tinted by the blushing morn. She is wild and beautiful as the maiden discovered in the Black Mountains; (where Don Quixote went to perform his noble penance in behalf of "peerless Dulcinea," and where, during said penance Sancho Panza saw things he should not have seen, turning Peuple and himself away for very shame.)

LOLA'S COTTAGE.—The Countess de Lansfeld has a beautiful little, white, vine clad cottage, enclosed in a green lawn, formed by grid mountains. The bearded gold secker returning from his day's toil is privileged to glance in her window and learn some thing of the indoor life of a real "live Countess. Lucky republican herds.

LOLA SEETH FOR DIVORCE.—Marie Montez Hall has sued for a separation from her present hiege Lord P. H. Hall Esq., and sought the legal protection of a handsome calabrier. Her assigned reasons are not for cars bold. Like one of the wives mentioned in address of Will Henry's speech, she has "left her husband and brought her gallant." We read that during the sojourn of the city of Newburg by Emperor Nicolas, the noble wives petitioned him that they might have what they could carry out of the city—their prayer was granted, whereupon each one came forth with her husband upon her back. Lola prays unlike them. She has deserted poor Hall in the hour of peril and misfortune.

LOLA TUN MIXER.—The favored Countess of Louis King of Bavaria mixed one whole day in a conchery bloomer costume. She was quite awkward with the "Long handle Turn," but seriously informed an astonished digger that she had "never yet had use for a cradle, thank heaven and my lucky stars!"

LOLA WHIPPETH HER SERVANT.—Joseph Hoan of the order of St. Therese, paid a heavy fine for "assault and battery." It was proved in a certain squall of her anger, her Chinese servant was taken "all blank," (as women say, "she sized him by his long tail of hair tied to the door knob and slapped his nose masticating faces most unmercifully. Poor "John" He could not jerk loose unless he scalped himself. In court, during the recital of her wrongs in California, tears fell from her eyes, as she rapidly as the trees of Araby drop their medicinal gums. Unlike the moor, she is used to them, so are other women when brooding over imaginary wrongs

The Love of Home.

It is only shallow minded petted ones who either make distinguished origin a matter of personal merit, or obscure origin a matter of personal reproach. Talent and selfing at the humble condition of early life affect nobility in this country but those who are foolish enough to indulge them, and they are generally sufficiently punished by the published works. A man who is ashamed of himself need not be ashamed of his early condition. It did not happen to me to be born in a log cabin, but my elder brothers and sisters were born in a log cabin, raised among the snow drifts of New Hampshire at a period early that when the smoke first rose from its rude chimney and curled over the frozen hill, there was no similar evidence of a white man's habitation between it and on the settlements, on the rivers of Canada. Its remains still exist: I make it an annual visit. I carry my children to it to teach them the hardships endured by the generations which have gone before them. I love to dwell on the tender recollections, the early afflictions, and the naritions and incidents which mingle with it. I know of this primitive family abode. I weep to think that none of those who inhabited it are now among the living: and if ever I fall in afflictive vicinities for him who raised it, and I defend it against savage violence and destruction, cherished all the domestic virtues beneath its roof and through the fire and blood of seven years' revolutionary war, shrunk from no toil, no sacrifice to serve his country and to raise his children to a condition better than his own, may my name and the name of my posterity be blotted forever from the memory of mankind.—Daniel Webster.

Hints to Young Men.

This is a great country, but only so on account of the energy and intelligence of its inhabitants. Nature has done as much for other lands as it has for ours, but the difficulty is, the people do not push themselves along like we do. That's the secret. Push yourselves along, boys, always keep in motion! Always have something to do, and do it well. Do not fritter away your time in idle pursuits. Segars and cence, and jugs, do not make a man. Set more value upon what is in your head, than upon what covers it. Do not rim about at night disturbing respectable people, who require rest or the fatigues of the day are over. Go to bed at ten o'clock and rise at five, or sooner, and you will then have abundant time for repose, and a portion for improvement, before the day's labors begin. Seven hours for sleep, and seven for active life in every twenty four.—See the difference. Yonder foolish youth retires at two, and rises, perhaps, at seven; you have the advantage ever him by two hours; these two hours may be all your own, and two hours every day, for a period of ten years, will enable you to add four hundred and twenty nine days, of seven hours each, to your consens life. Think of that. Think of what may be accomplished in four hundred and twenty nine days. Think how much you would be able to read in that time of good, well digested and properly seasoned matter. And after having fully considered the thing in all its bearings, loaf away your time in led if you can. GET UP SOON.

Conspiracy in Mexico.

BALTIMORE, Wednesday, Oct. 12, 1853. The New Orleans Bee of Thursday last has special intelligence from Mexico, received by a private letter to the effect that Government had discovered an extensive conspiracy in Puebla, and that several prominent persons had been arrested—among them Don Juan Miraveja, late Governor of the State of Puebla; General Marquez, Robles, and Don Luis de la Rosa. They had been ordered to leave the country.

A THIMBLE RIDGER AT SEA.—The master of the bark Orline, writing to the Herald, says that during his late trip from Mantanzas, a lady passenger accidentally let fall her thimble overboard, which was, of course, given up as lost. On the same day a large dolphin was caught, when to the astonishment of all the thimble was found inside of the fish, and safely returned to the owner.

Willis says: "The true alone is beautiful." What nonsense! The mammoth ox is a true mammoth ox, and so is Malloney's brick-kiln a true brick kiln, yet what beauty will a poet discover about either? As a general rule, the beautiful is made up of shams. Some of the most deliciously merited forms to be met with in Broadway are made up, not of genuine flesh and blood, but of wire, gauze, and cotton fixings.—N. Y. Dutchman.

A correspondent of the New Orleans Bulletin, of September 30th, writes: "I was shown last evening a letter direct from Havana, per steamer, in which it was stated that upwards of sixteen thousand negroes had died on the plantations in the vicinity from cholera, and that it was raging violently, and on the increase at Havana, and among the shipping; and that the small pox was also being very violently there."

Mrs. Island, of Nora, Illinois, has given birth to a son which has attached to the middle joint of each little finger by its proper stem, a perfect tenato. The mother has bestowed unusual care upon her tenatoes in the garden, and hoped to have them ripe before her confinement. The specimens brought by her son were about the size and state of maturity of those in the garden, and could not be distinguished from them by the closest scrutiny.

DEATH OF MAJOR DECKERSON.—Trenton, Oct. 6.—Hon. Major Deckerston, formerly an active Democrat of this State, died yesterday at his residence, near Succasunna Plains, N. J. Mr. D. was formerly in the United States Senate, and was Secretary of the Navy under General Jackson, and Mr. Van Buren. He was eighty-three years of age.

A NEW TRAVELLER TO THE DEAD SEA.—M. De Sauley, gives an entirely fresh description of this famous river. He claims that so far from finding it as most persons have represented, it was "a splendid lake, glittering in the sunshine, with its blue waves gently breaking on the sands of the deepest beach." He also saw a flock of wild ducks feeding on its waters, and observed beautiful insects on the gravelly beach.

ENCOUNTERAL.—The Cincinnati Commercial says: "The colored men of this city have organized a Library Association and Reading Room. They deem this necessary, as they are denied access to those already established. As there are many young men among them capable of appreciating and desiring the establishment of such an association, they should be encouraged."

EXTRAORDINARY MULE SHOPS.—Mr. William Hoshins, Sr., of Gattard county, informs us that there has been shed at his shop the present season, without an accident, 4,963 miles. He has two hands who can shoe 200 miles a day.—Danville, Ky. Tribune.

DELEGATE TO CONGRESS FROM NEW MEXICO.—By our latest letter from Santa Fe, we learn that quite an animated canvass is going on in New Mexico for a delegate to Congress. The candidates are Ex Governor Lane, and a Mexican Priest, Don Jose Manuel Gallegos. This is food for consideration.

Another cargo of 600 slaves has been safely landed in Cuba, with the assent of the local authorities, making a total of 1000 negroes from Africa landed on the south side of the island, within a month—so stated by advices from Cuba to the New York Times.
