

Miscellaneous.

A Vicious Sheep.

Mac, who loves a good thing as well as anybody got out the following last week, vouching that it was true, according to the "Bob tail" limitation—that is, "as far as he knew."

Out West a settlement was sorely annoyed by a rogue who stole sheep frequently, but who by adroitness always managed to escape direct proof of his guilt.

At length, one Sunday morning, a neighbor, on some sudden emergency was passing across that country—perhaps for a doctor—through a turn-out field but little frequented, where a small flock of sheep were accustomed to graze.

The Westfield News Letter contains the following account of an innocent robbery: Mr. Jacob Short, on his way home from a lecture, in which he had been interested, fell in with a well dressed gentleman who addresses a casual inquiry to him.

He ran after him with a hasty step, and succeeded in overtaking him. "Surrender that watch," said he in a determined tone, "or the consequence be upon your own head."

"Why, Jacob, what have you done! Your own watch is lying on the table, where you left it before going to the lecture, that I should like to see my dear husband a pickpocket."

He slept but little that night. Visions of handcuffs and prison bars floated across his troubled mind, and he arose from a sleepless bed the next morning to read the following announcement in the morning papers:

"Gentlemen—We learn that the Rev. Mr. C. when returning from a lecture last evening was violently assaulted by a stranger and threatened with instant death unless he delivered up his watch. He was accordingly obliged to do so. The person who committed this outrage is represented as short and stout, with ferocious expression of countenance."

"I have seen. I have seen the most worthless and lazy fellows, dress most fashionably. I have seen the most talented young men turn tipplers and die drunkards."

"I have seen a man who requested another to solicit him to become a candidate for office. I have seen a man urging another to become a candidate; and I have seen the same fellow vote against him at the election."

"I have seen parents urging their children to marry against their inclination, and I have seen a lovely young girl marry a rich old widower merely for his wealth; and I have seen the same girl die broken-hearted within a year."

"I have seen the young and beautiful, the talented, marrying a dashing, brainless fop, because he too was rich; and I have seen her ever, drag out a wretched, miserable existence."

DIARRHEA.—A day or two ago, a gentleman mentioned in our office, a very simple remedy for the diarrhoea. It is simply dried peaches. Put a handful in your pocket and nibble at them occasionally. We have tried it since, and so have a number of our family, and found them a speedy and perfect cure.

AN OLD MAN. I have seen a man who requested another to solicit him to become a candidate for office. I have seen a man urging another to become a candidate; and I have seen the same fellow vote against him at the election."
