THE PRINTER.

Among the ranks of human kind Some go before and some behind, But mind them well and you will find Not hindermost is the Printer.

The lessons which you learn at school, That you might not grow up a fool, Had all, in scientific rule, Been published by the Printer.

How do your Presidents and Kings Govern so many thousand things? 'Tis by the TYPES, and screw and springs Belonging to the Printer.

The farmer and the mechanic, too, Would sometimes scarce know what to do, Could they not get a certain view Of work done by the Printer.

The doctor cannot meet the crooks Of all his cases, 'till he looks Upon the pages of the books Supplied him by the Printer.

The lawyer for a wit has passed; But high as he his head may cost, He would be but a dunce, at last, Were it not for the Printer.

Who is it that so neatly tells The various goods the merchants sells, Inviting all the beaux and bolles? Who is it but the Printer?

The classes of the human race, Of different size, of different face, Appears in this and every place-How obvious to the Printer ?

One sings the bass on sharps and flats, Bedecked with pantaloons and hats, And long-tailed coats, and smooth cravats, Of this class is the Printer.

The other sing the table sweet, Adorned with frocks and bonnets neat. And look! how beauteous and complete, And levely to the Printer.

'Tis hymen's will, of course you know, These classes should in couples go, And, since, the world would have it so, So be it, says the Printer.

There's not a man below the skies, Who better understands to prize The charm that graces a lady's eyes, Than does this very Printer.

Young maidens then, without debate, "Tis hoped you'll duly estimate, Before in fact it be too late, The value of the Printer.

The Gentleman.

What makes the gentleman? The shape of the hat, the cut of the coat, and the qualito make a gentleman! Yes we can take the fessional business. veriest blackguard that walks the street; the. knave, the loafer, the gambler, the debauchee, and even the robber can be made into a gendeman, by the combined skill and effort of a latter and tailor. And it does not require alf the time to do this that is necessary for he honest laborer to earn his sunday suit .-But suppose those who would become gentlenen, have no money; how can they obtain he materials and pay for the work? Oh! ,ou may rest easy about that. The way and neans are the least difficult to get at, in these lays of unparallelled invention. Yes, by nere dint of invention The men who till the ground, who erect our dwellings, who sail our ships, who make our clothes and saw our wood; can never be gentlemen, till they forsake these low employments. If they should become gentlemen, which their means seldom allow, how long could they remain so? Not long, for the very nature of their pursuit would ruin them in an hour. What! a gentleman with his new beaver and $10 broad cloth go to work; it would sink the best fortune in the country. There is therefore, no such thing as a working gentleman.

But is there not a capital error in all this? Is it not the mock rather than the real gentleman, which we have described? It is not so easy a thing to make a real gentleman; neither is it very easy to find one The real gentleman is he who pursues some honest employment, keeps his expenditures within his income, never injures the feelings of any one unnessirarily, uses no deception, always tells the truth, and minds his own business

OPPOSITES -A good wife should be like three things which three things she should not be like:

First-She should be like a snail, to keep within her own house; but she should not be like a snail to earry all she has on her back. Secondly-She should be like an echo, to speak when spoken to; but she should not be like an echo, always to have the last word.

Thirdly-She should be like a town clock, always to keep time and regularity; but she should not be like a town clock, to speak so loud that all the town may hear her.

HE subscriber having purchased the Black I smith Shop formerly occupied by James Kolly, in the borough of Loretto, respectfully appeals to the public in general, and the farmers in particular, to inform them, that he has received from Philadelphia, a full assorted stock of Iron and Steel, and is prepared to work cheaper and better than any other man or men in the district. He defies any man to compete with him either in cheapness or durability; and, since "Opposition is the life of trade," he goes in for his share.

He has always on hand a large lot of Horse Shoes and Nails, for the accommodation of trav. P. MEALEY. July 6, 1854;
