REPORTED BATTLE ON NOV. 4TH.
A despatch from Prince Menschikoff sent to Berlin, in cipher, and thence forwarded by a special courier to Paris, states that on Nov. 4th, unusual activity having been observable in the allied camp, (doubtless preparations to a general assault) General Liprandi reinforced by a corps sent by Menschikoff, had attacked the allied camp, and killed 800 men.

This report, however, is doubtful—as is the statement that a practicable breach was opened on the walls on the same day, the 4th. IMPORTANT BATTLE BEFORE SEBASTOPOL.
General Canrobert's official report of the battle of November 5th is published in the Moniteur of the 13th. He says:
"The Russian army, swollen by reinforcements from the Danube, as well as by the combined reserves of all the southern provinces, and animated by the presence of the Grand Dukes Michael and Nicholas, attacked yesterday, November 5th, the right of the English position before Sebastopol.

The English army sustained the attack with the most remarkable firmness and solidity. I supported it by a portion of Gen. Bosquet's division, which fought with admirable vigor, as well as by the troops which were nearest to the English position.

"The enemy, who far outnumbered our force, beat a retreat, with a loss estimated at from 8000 to 9000 men.

"The struggle lasted the whole day."
"At the same time General Forcy was forced to repulse a sortie made by the garrison, and under his energetic command, the enemy were driven back into the place, with a loss of 1000 killed and wounded.

"This brilliant day, which was not purchased without considerable loss by the allies, does the greatest honor to our arms.

"The siege continues with regularity."
(Signed) CANROBERT.
ENGLISH ACCOUNT.

English advices from Bucharest, of the 10th state that on the morning of the 5th, Prince Menschikoff's whole army attacked the English position. A sanguinary battle ensued, which lasted till four in the afternoon. The allies obtained a decisive victory. There were severe losses on both sides. The English took many hundred prisoners. Generals Butler, Adams, Benetick, Torrens, and it was said, also, Sir G. Brown, were wounded. The English official account has not yet arrived.

THE LATEST.
Up to Tuesday afternoon, 14th, no official accounts had been received by the English Government from Lord Ragland or Stratford de Redcliffe, relative to the action of the 5th, but advices received at Liverpool on the morning of the 15th, supply a few additional particulars. The right wing of the English army which was attacked by the Russians, consisted of the English Foot Guards, and the 2d, 3d, and 4th divisions. At Vienna the prevalent opinion was that a few more such "victories" would compel the Allies to raise the siege. Menschikoff appears to be of the same opinion, for, in a despatch to Prince Paskiewitch, he says: "It will be impossible for the allies to continue the siege, and I will continue to harass them (to 'chassie their temerity')." The London Times correspondent telegraphs, that Gen. Canrobert had assured the French Government that the Russians were so weakened in the affair of the 5th, that for ten days to come, they would not be in a position to resist the assault on the town, and that he means to make the attempt. The correspondent calls the Allied loss 5000 English, French and Turks.

THE RUSSIAN ACCOUNT.
"A telegraph despatch from St. Petersburg, dated Nov. 13th, states that Prince Menschikoff reports to the Emperor, under date the 6th of November, from Sebastopol, that on the 5th the garrison made two sorties, one against the right flank, which was successful, and resulted in the capture of one of the enemy's batteries, the guns in which were spiked.

"There was great loss on both sides. The second sortie was also completely successful, the Russians having spiked five guns.

"Immediately afterwards, a French infantry division, pursuing the retreating Russians, attempted to mount to the assault, but was thrown back with immense loss."

ANOTHER BATTLE NEXT DAY—RESULT UNDECIDED.
The Morgen Post of Vienna, has the following despatch from Cernowitz, Nov. 14th. On the 6th, the whole garrison of Sebastopol, amounting to 65,000 men, made a sortie. A furious battle ensued, which was not ended when the messenger left—but the Allies had the advantage.

DIED.
On Wednesday, the 20th inst., in this place, ROBERT, infant son of Wm. J. and Sarah Williams.

At the residence of Johnston Moore, on the 30th inst., FREDERICK FRESKI, aged about 14 years.

On Sunday last, at the residence of Rev. J. A. Stillinger, in this place, Dr. M. J. CANNWELL, in the 26th year of his age.

The deceased was one of our boyhood's acquaintances. Brave and generous to a fault, and of an ever active temperament, he gave evidence then of qualities, which augured well for his future career in life, and which his early manhood well sustained, but the promise of which has been nipped by the untimely hand of Death. After fitting himself for the practice of medicine, he located here in his boyhood's home, some two years ago, with bright prospects before him, but in a few months was attacked by disease, which evacuated in pulmonary consumption, in the alternating hope and fears of which disease he continued for more than a year, until on Sunday he breathed his last. We sincerely condole with the friends, whose hopes clustered around him, and who anticipated him a bright career on earth. May he rest in peace.—Apalachian.
