

Three New States—An Important Movement Among the Choctaws.

Col. Harkins, the chief of the Choctaw Nation, is said to approve in the most cordial manner, of the bill introduced into the Senate of the United States, providing for the establishment of three Territorial Governments out of the Indian territory inhabited by the Choctaws, Chickasaws, and other Indian tribes with the provision of their ultimate admission into the Union as States. The Choctaws, says the St. Louis Republic, have manifested strong opposition to this proposition; but Col. Harkins and the Choctaws take a more rational view of it, and are willing to accept the terms of the bill. The Chief in his communication to the General Council strongly urges immediate action in the premises, and among other things says:

"We may depend upon it as being a fixed fact, that our Indian days of peace are forever departed from us, and that no opposition from us can stay the onward march of the people of the United States in their career to greatness, and the full occupancy of the American continent. We have no power or influence to bear upon any movement of the government, for we are looked upon as children—as wards under her care and protection, and that she has the power to do as she pleases with us.—There is nothing the Choctaws can do to change the course of things. Their only chance to live and exist as a people, will be to educate and civilize as fast as possible the rising generation. And surely now is the time for us to stand together unitedly. We should consider well our situation, and the course we are about to pursue at this time, for one mis-step may prove disastrous and fatal to our people. I recommend that the Council take this matter into consideration, and appoint a committee to report, and point out the advantages and disadvantages of the bill to the Choctaws."

The committee, it is stated, had made a report favorable to the bill, but the Council had taken no final account on the subject. All the enlightened Choctaws were for it—the missionaries are opposed to it, and will probably influence all the church members to go against the bill. The Chickasaws are represented to be adverse to the bill. The Fort Smith Herald says:—"From the present aspect of affairs in the Choctaw nation, we may safely conclude, that they will soon become one of us," and hopes, at some future day, to see Col. Harkins "a member of Congress from the State of Chata."

Later from Mexico.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 11. The steamer Orizaba arrived to-day, with Mexican dates to the 6th inst.

The rebels are reported to have been routed at Morelia, in the province of Michoacan, on the 24th ult., when 300 were killed. Among the killed was General Rehagasy, the Governor of the Province, who commanded the government troops.

An election is progressing to decide whether Santa Anna is to continue as President. He has issued a decree compelling the Government employees to vote, on the penalty of dismissal.

The Revolution appears to be gaining ground. The cities of Mexico and Vera Cruz had voted almost unanimously in favor of Santa Anna as President of the Republic.

One hundred and sixty of the patriots of the unfortunate Count de Boulbon, had been pardoned and released by Santa Anna, as a mark of esteem for Napoleon III.

The plague is committing great ravages among the Indians of Yucatan.

Five of the civil judges of Mexico have been suspended in consequence of a disrespectful communication to the President.

The war of castes continues. It is said that the Government has agreed to sell to the United States Tigre Island, for the sum of $20,000. The ownership is, however, disputed by Honduras.

Since the commencement of the present year, a year which will long be remembered as one of unprecedented disaster and loss of life at sea,—forty-six American vessels have been reported missing, and are as yet unheard from. Of these vessels eight were ships, five barques, fifteen brigs and eighteen schooners. The total number of souls on board these vessels is estimated at four hundred and thirty-seven. The total value of the vessels is computed $599,700, and the insurance on both vessels and freight at $343,650.

The Collision of the Steamer Washington. The Tribune of yesterday morning has the following letter from one of the passengers of the steamer Washington, describing the narrow escape of the steamer on her way from Southampton to Bremen:

BREMEN, Friday, Nov. 24, 1854. "When you, on Sunday, 19th Nov., about two o'clock, were sitting quietly together, you did not suspect that at the same moment the steamer Washington was involved in the same dangerous position, by which, a few weeks ago, the Arctic and her passengers were destroyed. We were cosily sipping our tea when the vessel received a powerful shock.

Notwithstanding that three lanterns were lighted on the Washington, and that there was a special watch on the fore-castle, a brig under full sail had run against us, boring with its bowsprit a hole as large as a man in our left side, leaving therein the broken splinters of her bow. Striking us again, her broken timber bored, in another portion of the fore-part of the steamer, a second hole with such a force, that the whole bowsprit of the brig remained in our vessel. Happily, this damage in the steamer was six feet above the water.

You can easily imagine what an excitement seized upon every body. But the officers did not lose their presence of mind; and the first thing ordered was to post a watch near the boats, armed with loaded pistols to shoot any one who should try to seize upon them without an order from the captain. In the interior of the vessel the chief engineer directed the necessary repairs, and by his orders the holes were stopped with mattresses, outside. The captain himself on ropes above the water, worked for four hours until the work was done.

It was the first passage of the Washington under the command of Capt. Cavendy, and his passengers have every reason to be satisfied with his behavior. We could not ascertain what became of the brig as she instantly disappeared in the darkness. This accident took place in the Channel, between Dover and Calais, as we could discern the light on both shores."

The Russians in the Crimea—Reinforcements.

Our latest accounts inform us that reinforcements to an immense extent, and intended to aid the Russians, were pouring into the Crimea. One letter gives the effective force of Prince Menschikoff as high as 115,000 men, and states that of this number, 75,000 had joined within the last month. These troops marched from Perecop on three columns, and met with no molestation on their way. The first, which was 30,000 strong, with 100 guns, under Liprandi, reached Sevastopol about the middle of October, and got into position on the 18th, the day after the great bombardment. The 30,000 men belong to Ostev Sacken's corps. The two other columns belong to Dannenberg's corps. The first of them, consisting of 25,000 men, reached Sevastopol at the end of last month; the other, 20,000 strong, was in communication with the main army at the beginning of this month. It is highly probable that the force of Prince Menschikoff is greatly exaggerated; but it is considered certain that 35,000 men had arrived at Sevastopol before the two Grand Dukes went to the camp in the Crimea. The Russian Front states, that although the Russian army is stronger than the Allies, it is not likely to act together on the offensive, as Prince Menschikoff has great difficulties in getting the necessary supplies for his army, and must be sparing of his ammunition. The 17th Russian infantry division has reinforced the garrison of Sevastopol. Fifteen thousand men have been sent from Kichenef to Odessa. It is confirmed that General Liprandi was wounded in the battle of the 6th. The Russians confess that if Sevastopol is taken, their power in the Black Sea is at an end; and, therefore, it will be defended to the last. The struggle is a murderous one, but the enormous value of the stake must not be lost sight of.

The Grain Trade in Chicago.

This trade has increased so largely that it has outstripped all calculations heretofore made by shippers and warehousemen. Although there are many extensive warehouses, some of them holding 100,000 bushels of grain, the whole fleet of vessels had not been able to keep them from being overcrowded. Messrs. Munger & Armour, and the Messrs. Gibbs & Griffith, are taking measures, by the erection of immense warehouses, to do a very extensive grain business hereafter. Their foundations are already laid. Messrs. Munger & Armour's will hold from 300,000 to 400,000 bushels of grain. The other will be capable of elevating 23,000 bushels of grain in an hour. Both will be operated by powerful steam engines. The Chicago Tribune says:—"The conveniences for loading and unloading cars, canal boats, and lake vessels, with facilities at these establishments, will be unsurpassed in this country. This should be the case, for the numerous railroads recently constructed from Chicago in all directions, together with the Illinois and Michigan Canal, make our city the outlet and market for one of the richest grain regions in the world."

A correspondent of the London Morning Herald, speaks in the most enthusiastic terms of the conduct of the Coldstream Guards. It is said that "they fought literally to the death. They went into action with sixteen officers and about four hundred men, and out of this small number had eight officers killed, five wounded, and upwards of two hundred rank and file killed and wounded. The Grenadiers and Fusiliers also performed prodigies. On the whole, the brigade of Guards lost thirteen officers killed, fifteen wounded, and five hundred and eighty rank and file out of about sixteen hundred men engaged. The Coldstreamers charged the enemy at the point of the bayonet eleven times. At each time the Russians crossed bayonets and fought fiercely, but were slaughtered like sheep by our gallant fellows. The three battalions of Guards now barely muster one thousand effective men."

At a meeting of the Shareholders in Perham's Third Gift Enterprise, held on the 27th of July, the following resolution was adopted: "Resolved, So soon as it is ascertained that 80,000 of the Gift tickets issued by Mr. Perham in his third enterprise, are sold, the Committee shall call the shareholders together at the most convenient place, for the purpose of instructing said Committee in regard to the manner of disposing of the Gift Property."

Having learned from Mr. Perham that 60,000 of said tickets were sold, and that in all probability the remaining 20,000 called for by the above resolution, would be sold by the first day of January next, we have determined in accordance with the above opinion, to call a mass meeting of the SHAREHOLDERS, at some place to be hereafter named, on the 17th day of January, 1855, for the purpose designated by the resolution.
