Philadelphia Election.

The result of the recent Municipal election in Philadelphia is such as cannot but be gratifying to the Democracy of Pennsylvania, as well as cheering to the advocates of civil and religious liberty elsewhere.

The contest was one of the most fierce and exeiting ever witnessed in that city, and the vote larger than had ever been polled, the aggregate which is designed to form the last link needed vote being 55.260.

misrule under Mayor Conrad have been enough to satisfy the tax-ridden and plundered people of Philadelphia of the character of a party that brought disgrace and repreach upon the city.

Still Deserting. We clip the following from the last Bedford Gazette, by which it will be seen that even the colporteurs of the "midnight order " are leaving it in deep disgust. I am truly sorry that I ever allowed myself to engage in such a business, because I know it was prong. In view of these facts, and believing Know-Nothingism to be a gross violation of our glorious Constitution, I have renounced it forever, and have tinctions between him and other eminent returned to my democratic principles which I democratic statesmen, who are, or may be love better than I ever did before. JOHN A. YOUNT.

Governor WISE, of Virginia, has written a letter to New York, in which he strongly advocates the nomination of Mr. BUCHANAN for the Presidency. Amongst other reasons for his preference, he says :

" Pennsylvania has always stood by Virginia, from the days of Simon Snyder and Thomas Jefferson down to this day ; she is one of the largest and oldest and best of the old thirteen States. and she has claims to give a candidate, and she has a son worthy of a nomination, who is a representative, man and name, of his State's democracy, and if Virginia again prefers him, as she did in 1852, I will go for his nomination might

In declaring their sentiments on this subject, they disavow all intention to make unjust or inviduous discandidates for nomination, but they believe it is the spontaneous wish of a large majority of the people of Pennsylvania, (and from all indications of those of the United States.) that Mr. BUCHANAN should be nominated, be-

THE PEACE TREATY. The principal feature of the news is the official publication of the Treaty of Peace, and the formal proclamation of Peace. Three appended Conventions are also provided for. The first has reference to the passage of the Dardanelles; the second for arranging the details of the naval force in the Black Sea, and the third declaring that the Aland Isles are not to be fortified

There is also an important declaration of maritime law, viz: abolishing privateering, and providing that neutral flags protect cargoes except contraband articles, with the addition that neutral goods under the enemy's flag are exempt from capture.

The treaty itself is precisely the same as sent by the last steamer. The missing articles, Nos. 5 and 6, relative to a general amnesty and exchange of prisoners, and Nos. 7 and 8 give Turkey admission into the European political system and secure European arbitration in cases of dispute with her. Peace has been formally proclaimed.

Several important meetings of political par-ties in Parliament have been held presaging rouble to the ministry of Lord Palmerston. A Parliamentary blue book has been published, containing all the Central American documents.

The Cunard steamer Asia arrived on Monday night.

The latest commercial advices are under date of Wednesday afternoon, stating that there had been no change during the day in Grain or Provisions, and that Cotton was quiet, with a downward tendency. ENGLAND.

All the protocols accompanying the treaty of peace have been laid before Parliament. Great excitement pervades the political circles. Lord Pahnerston had called a meeting of his friends, and the Conservatives have also held a meeting to agree upon the tactics of opposition. It is said they intend making the Fall of the Kars the test question.

Lord Clarendon had laid before the House of Lords a copy of the Treaty of Peace, and moved that it be taken up on the 5th of May. Lord Palmerston had also laid the treaty before the House.

The fourth of May had been appointed as a day of thanksgiving for the restoration of his acts, and without loss of caste. There peace. Lord Lyndhurst has consented to postpone.

LETTER NO. VII.

Esteemed Friends-The BIG GUN has been fired which, it seems, was intended for the oint defence of the two companies, viz : " The Greenwich Improvement Company" and the "Pennsylvania Railroad Company." No one was hurt that I have heard of, except a little lameness occasioned by the kicking of the gun from an overcharge of ammunition. To show the source whence it came, the writer says, " The stockholders of the " Greenwich Association" insist that some explanation is due to the public, and as President of the Company, but much against my private feel-ings, I make the following statements." But inasmuch as the explanation and the statements relate chiefly to the affairs of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, it would seem either that President Spangler has got hold the wrong document, or that the two Companies, like kindred drops, have become mingled into one and are managed by the same intellect. The statement above leaves little doubt that the "Greenwich Company," through its able President, has undertaken the defence of the other company, for the following reasons, viz: "other members of the P. R. Co. have treated the misrepresentations of Wm. Neal with silent contempt. (A wise conclusion.) But C. E. Spangler, finding that " forbearance had ceased to be a virtue," had his great gun scientifically charged, and being ready, the stockholders of the Greenwich Company insisted that he should FIRE. There was not much defence necessary, it seems, as respects the Greenwich Company, for in the last paragraph of the labored article the writer says, "I will, in conclusion, refer to the single point which has elicited this communication." And that point was in relation to the branch railroad, which required but a few

Now, let us look at the explanation as regards the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, which the stockholders of the Greenwich Company insist is due to the public. First, in relation to the secret movement to get rid of an obnoxious Director, President Spangler says, that "the members of the Board acted as individuals, and without concert or organized opposition." Secondly, we concluded not to make the stockholders publicly acquainted with our intention ; and thirdly, we concluded to drop him quietly, without exposing was but one feeling amongst us as to his unfitness. By using the phrase one feeling and the word we, President Spangler intends to involve all the members in the secret plot, viz :- Thompson, President; Carpenter, Howell, Butcher, Farnum, Wm R. Thompson, and himself, of course. Foster was spending the winter in the South, and was not included. Then, according to this author, all the mem-

this because Christian Spangler sprung to his feet and exclaimed, that he would not offer such a resolution for five hundred dollars. His reason need not now be given. Perhaps one of the censurable acts was in opposing the subscription of $100,000 to the Cleaveland and Mahoning Railroad, which was strenuously urged by the President. I mention this because the President said to me-"If it had not been for you, I would have carried it through." The Cleaveland and Mahoning road has no connexion with our roads.

But above all, the most obnoxious of my acts may have been, in frequently repulsing President Spangler's solicitations, to become interested in Greenwich stock. By night and by day, in the office and in the street, has he urged his suit, with untiring perseverance. Even the family circle was not exempt, as a place for presentation and explanation of charters, maps and doctments relating to the Greenwich company. For long hours has he laid before me the golden prospects of this Company, with a gentle intimation at the close, that a few shares were left, and could be had on favorable terms. Now, what was President Spangler's object in this ardent pursuit? I was a Director in the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, and measures might come before the Board, affecting the value of the Greenwich possessions. How often have I told my old friend, that I could not risk my independence of judgment, by undertaking to serve two masters, and must therefore decline. I have before mentioned his importunities during the last six months in the Board, and amongst the members, urging the purchase of property for a Depot, and the construction of a Branch Road. His assertion that I had changed my mind in favor of Greenwich, is an entire mistake. That all these enterprises in developing the resources of the country are proper and laudable, and may contribute to the interests of the Railroad Company, no one will deny The evil consists in permitting those who use the Road to fix their own tolls and dictate their own terms. It seems strange that whilst the Reading Railroad Company is charging two cents per ton per mile on a down-ward grade, and the Mine Hill Company is charging three and a half cents per ton per mile to overcome the Broad Mountain, 700 feet, and two and a half cents per ton per mile on this side of the Mountain, that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company can aford to overcome the Allegheny Mountain, with coal. 1277 feet above the point of shipment, and carry the empty cars back, for less than one and a third cent per ton per mile. The gross income of a Road may be very large, but it is obtained at a great expense of wear and tear, and is no criterion of the real prosperity of the Company. Is the Road in first rate condition, and are you gradually decreasing instead of increasing your indebtedness ? are inquiries that would lead to the real state

Buchanan in New York.

It is not only among the political press of New York that JAMES BUCHANAN finds support-the neutral press, also, impressed with the great importance of having a tried and eminent statesman in the Presidential chair, has come up manfully to the work. The Sun, an able and influential neutral journal, thus speaks its sentiments to its numerous rea-

"The Presidency of these United States is an office which every American citizen who possesses a spark of true patriotism, must desire to see filled always by the ablest and the worthiest men. The peace, the permanancy and the prosperity of the Republic depend in no small measure on the fitness and firmness of the man to whose hands the people confide the weighty trusts which belong to the office of Chief Magistrate. While men of broad national sentiments, clear heads, firm purposes and patriotic instincts guided the ship of State, storms might rage and fierce waves of agitation assail it, but the good ship rode proudly and securely on, with not a faint or doubting heart among the crew. ## The Indian War in Oregon

WASHINGTON, May 12-The President sent to the Senate to-day a number of documents relative to the hostilities on the Pacific coast. General Wool, under date of the 20th of March, says the war on Puget's Sound will soon be brought to a close unless prevented by Gov. Stevens' determination to carry on the war independent of the United States troops, and that the same remark is applicable to Gov. Curry, adding that these Governors appear to be running a race to see who can dip deepest into the public treasury. "In the dense forest of Puget's Sound another Florida war can easily be carried on at an expense of twenty or thirty millions of dollars The same will apply to the mountain region and Puget's Sound Valley. I have no doubt I could settle the contest in a short time if the Governors would withdraw from the contest." Gov. Stevens says :--- " Gen. Wool neglected and refused to send a force for the relief of myself and party when known to be in imminent danger, and believed by those who are best capable of judging, to be coming on to certain death ; and this when he had at his command an efficient force of regular troops. He has refused to sanction an agreement made between Gen. Mason and Major Gaines

RIFLES AND BIBLES. - At a Kansas meeting held in New Haven, where one parson presided, another person spoke, and a deacon volunteered, it was announced that Miss Mary chase of a rifle to be used in a contemplated civil war. It is but justice, however, to the unmarried of the sex, to state that the Miss Mary who exhibited so blood thirsty a dispo sition in New Haven is a maiden on the shady side of forty. Some early disappointment the following squib:

bers were engaged in the magnanimous busi-ness of deceiving the stockholders and stabbing a colleague in the dark, but without intending to hurt him, and in order to preserve his caste. They had the English proxies with which to accomplish their purpose, indepen-dent of the stockholders. It follows, of course, that the present Board of Directors had the honor of electing themselves. This is the explanation of President Spangler, at the instance of the stockholders of the Greenwich Association." And these were the doings, according to this honored President, of the high-minded Directors of the Pennsylvania they have received a large and splendid assort Railroad Company. The secret conspiracy to decapitate their colleague whilst holding friendly intercourse with him, reminds us of the Jacobin clubs of the French Revolution, when every night they selected their victims for the guillotine next day.

Now, let us place President Spangler in juxtaposition with Director Spangler. In the conversation before the election which he alludes to, when I remarked to him that I heard I was to be decapitated, he disclaimed all knowledge of anything of the kind. He said emphatically, that he had never heard of such a thing. He asked me over to his office to examine the maps of the river front, and I thought no more of the decapitation. Of course, he could not then divulge the secret.

It might have defeated the project. But " Oh what a tangled web we weave. When first we practice to deceive." This is the same man who acknowledges that Again, immediately after the election, I met Director Spangler going to church, I put the question to him directly, whether, on the day of election, he knew of the secret ticket. He said, emphatically, that he did not. And to relieve himself from suspicion, he said an officer of the company, [whom I will not name,] but whom he named, could tell me all about it. He said, also, that Howe'l was mad about it, His stock of because they did not acquaint him with the secret. I asked him if he could speak for any other of his colleagues ; he said no, they might speak for themselves. It is not my purpose to call hard names, or to say anything about losing caste, or about unfitness for the office, | Ha or a desire not to expose his acts.
