A Human Life Saved. Dowagiac, Mich., March 11, 1856. J. A. RHODES, Esq.: Dear Sir-As I took your medicine to sell on consignment, "no cure no pay," I take pleasure in stating its effects as reported to me by three brothers who live in this place, and their testimony is a fair specimen of all I have received:

W. S. CONKLIN told me-"I had taken nine bottles of Christie's Ague Balsam, and continually run down while using it until my lungs and liver were Congested to that degree that blood discharged from my mouth and bowels, so that all thought it impossible for me to live through another chill. The doctors to did all they could for me, but thought I must die. Notning did me any good until I got Rhodes' Fever and Ague Cure which at once relieved me of the distress THE undersigned would respectfully inform the and nausea at my stomach and pain in my head good citizens of Ebensburg and the surround- and bowels, and produced a permanent cure in a

H. M. CONKLIN says: "I had been been taking medicine of as good a doctor as we have in our county, and taken any quantity of quinine and specifics without any good result, from 25th August to 17th December. But seeing how nicely it operated on my brother, I got a bottle of RHODES' FEVER AND AGUE CURE, which effected a permanent cure by using two thirds of

S. M. CONKLIN was not here, but both the other brothers say his case was the same as H. M's. I sold the medicine to both the same day, and the cure was as speedy from the same small quantity and I might so specify, Yours with respect, A. HUNTINGTON.
The above speaks for itself. Good proof as it is, it is of no better tenor than the vast number of like certificates I have already published, and the still greater amount that is continually pour-One thing more. Last year I had occasion to Caution the Public in these words :-" I notice one firm who have taken one of my general circulars, substituted the name of their nostrum for my medicine, and then with brazen impudence end their pamphlet with the exclamation, "Let the proprietor rf any other medicine say as much if he dares." &c.

Now I take pleasure in saying that the Caution referred to the same "Dr. Christie's Ague Balsam" that is mentioned in the above cer-

There are several other industrious people who are applying to their poisonous trash all that I and the Certificate of the celebrated Chemist Dr. James R. Chilton of N. IMPORTANT TO EVERYBODY.

NOR the last two or three years, I have been engaged in a business known only to myself, and, comparatively, a few others, whom I have instructed for the sum of $200 each, which has averaged me at the rate of from $3,000 to $5000 per annum; and having made arrangements to go to Europe in the month of August next, to engage in the same business, I am willing to give full instructtions in the art to any person in the United States or Canadas, who will remit me the sum of $1. I am induced, from the success I have been favored with, and the many thankful acknowledgments I have received from those whom I have instructed, and who are making from $5 to $15 per day at it, to every person an oppotunity to engage in this business, which is easy, pleasant, and very profitable, at a small cost. There is positively No Humbug in the matter. References of the best class can be given as regards its character, and I can refer to persons whom I have instructed, who will testify that they are making from $5 to $15 per day at the same. It is a business in which either LADIES or GENTLEMEN can engage, and with perfect ease make a very handsome income. Several ladies in various parts of New York State, Pennsylvania, and Maryland, whom I have instructed, are now making from $3 to $6 per day at it. It is a GENTEEL BUSINESS, and but a FEW SHILLINGS are required to start it. Upon receipt of $1, I will immediately send to the applicant a printed circular containing full instructions in the art, which can be perfectly understood at

[From Benton's Thirty Years' View, to be published in a few day's by the Appleton's]

Death of Silas Wright.

HE died suddenly at the age of fifty-two, and without the sufferings and premonitions which usually accompany the mortal transit from time to eternity. A letter that he was reading was seen to fall from his hand; a physician was called: in two hours he was deadapoplexy the cause.

Though dying at an age deemed young in a statesman, he had attained all that long life could give-high office, national fame, fixed character and universal esteem. He had run the career of honor in the state of New York -been Representative and Senator in Congress-and had refused more offices, and higher, than he ever accepted -He refused Cabinet appointments under his fast friend Mr. Van Buren, and under Mr. Polk, whom he may be said to have elected; he refused a seat on the bench of the federal Supreme Court : he rejected instantly the nomination of 1844 for Vice President of the United States when that nomination was the election. He refused to be put in nomination for the Presidency.

He refused to accept foreign missions. He spent that time in declining office which others did in winning it; and of those he did accept, it might well be said they were thrust upon him. Office, not greatness, was thrust upon him. He was born great, above office, and unwillingly decended to it; and only took it for its burdens, and to satisfy an importunate public demand. Mind, manners, morals, temper, habits, united in him to form the character that was perfect, both in public and private life, and to give the example of a patriot citizen-of a farmer statesman-of which we have read in Cincinnatus and Cato, and seen in Macon, and some others of their stamp-created by nature-formed in no school: and of which the instances are rare and long between.

His mind was clear and strong, his judgment solid, his elocution smooth and equable, his speaking, always addressed to the understanding, and always enchaining the attention of those who had minds to understand. Grave reasoning was his forte. Argumentation was always the line of his speech. He spoke to the head, not to the passions; and would have been disconcerted to see anybody laugh or cry at anything he said. His thoughts evolved spontaneously, in natural and proper order, clothed in language of force and clearness; all so naturally and easily conceived that an extemporaneous speech, or the first draft of an intricate report, had all the correctness of a finished composition. His manuscripts had no blots-a proof that his mind had none: and he wrote a nest and compact hand suitable to a clear and solid mind.

He came into the Senate in the beginning of General Jackson's administration, and remained during that of Mr. Van Buren; and took a ready and active part in all the great debates of those eventful times. The ablest speakers of the opposition always had to answer him; and when he answered them, they showed by their anxious concern, that the adversary was upon them whose force they dreaded most. Though taking his full part upon all subjects, yet finance was his particular department, always chairman of that committee when his party was in power, and by the lucidity of his statements making plain the most intricate moneyed details. He had a just conception of the difference between the functions of the Finance Committee of the Senate, and the Committee of Ways and Means of the House-so little understood in these latter times: those of the latter founded in the prerogative of the House to originate all revenue bills; those of the former to act upon the propositions from the House, with out originating measures which might effect the revenue, so as to coerce either its increase or prevent its reduction. In 1844 he left the Senate to stand for the governorship of New York; and never did his self-sacrificing temper undergo a stronger trial, or submit to a greater sacrifice. He liked the Senate; he disliked the governorship even to adsolute repugnance. But it was said to him (and truly, as then believed and afterwards proved) that the state would be lost to Mr. Polk, unless Mr. Wright was associated with him in the canvass; and to this argument he yielded He stood the canvass for the governorshipcarried it-and Mr. Polk with him; he saved the presidential election that year. Judgment was the character of Mr. Wright's mind; purity the quality of his heart. Though valuable in the field of debate, he was still more valuable at the council table. where sense and honesty are demanded. General Jackson and Mr. Van Buren relied upon him as one of their safest counsellors. A candor which knew no guile -- an integrity somewhat like getting drunk, the more a which knew no deviation-which worked right ou, like a machine governed by a law telegraph. alles all sentege attendated manne beitente betil entre er enter bette en of which it was unconscious-were the inexorable conditions of his nature ruling his conduct in every act, public and private. No foul legislation ever emanated from him. The jobber, the speculator, the dealer in false claims, the plunderer, whose scheme required an act of Congress; all these found in his vigilance and perspicacity a detective police, which discovered their designs, and in his integrity a scorn of corruption which kept them at a distance from the purity of his atmosphere.

His temper was gentle-his manners simple-his intercourse kindly-his habits laborious-and rich upon a freehold of thirty acres, in much part cultivated by his own hand. In the intervals of Senatorial duties this man who refused cabinet appointments and presidential honors and a seat upon the Supreme Bench-who measured strength with Clay, Webster and Calhoun, and on whose accents admiring Senates hung: this man, his neat suit of broadcloth and fine linen ex changed for the laborer's dress, might be seen in the harvest field, or meadow, carrying the foremost row, and doing the cleanest work : and this is not a recreation or pastime, or encouragement to others, but as work, which was to count in the annual cultivation, and labor to be felt in the production of the needed crop. His principles were Democratic, and innate founded in a feeling, still more than a conviction, that the masses were generally right in their sentiments, though sometimes wrong in their action; and that there was less injury to the country from the honest mistakes of the people than from the interested schemes of corrupt and intriguing politicians. He was born in Massachusetts, came to man's estate in New York, received from that state the only honors he would accept; and in chosing his place of residence in it gave proof of his modest, retiring, unpretending nature. Instead of following his profession in the commercial or political capital of his state, where there would be demand and reward for his talent, he constituted himself a lawyer, where there was neither, and pertinaciously refused to change his locality. In an outside county, on the extreme border of the state. taking its name of St Lawrence from the river which washed its northern side, and dividing the United States from British America -and in one of the smallest towns in that county, and in one of the least ambitious houses of that modest town, lived and died this patriot statesman-a good husband, (he had no children)-a good neighbor-a kind relative .-- a fast friend -- exact and punctual in every duty, and the exemplification of every social and civic virtue.

TURN THEM OUT .- The Fusionists, it is well known, have an undoubted majority in the present House of Representatives. That has been demonstrated in the election of a Speaker, in ejecting several Democrats from their seats, and in appointing a roving Commission to take Fusion testimony in Kansas for purposes of the Presidential campaign. Two outrages have recently been committed by members of that body, one by Herbert a Know-Nothing member from California in the shooting of a waiter, and the other by Brooks, in the caneing of Sumner. Let this Fusion House now purge itself of both these obnoxious members. They have the power. Let them do it, or forever after hold their peace.

A CASH FOR SYMPATHY .- The Buffalo Republic, one of the intensified negro worshipers, states that a few days ago "a negro, fat and wholesome, with about a pound and a half of rags on his person," called at the police office, in that city, and waited some time for the Justice. The Republic then adds:-" The Justice came, and then this greasy black man told his story. His name was John Wright, and he had been a slave in Middletown, Delaware, and was owned there, and ran away in 1855. He had had a hard time of it. The people of Canada didn't want him over there-nobody wanted him, and he didn't want nobedy-he didn't care for anything-he wanted to go to the penitentiary, make his will and end his days there."
