Brigham Young the Mormon

A cotemporary says: An elequent man is Brigham Young, though his oratory is rather novel and belongs to himself alone. Common sense and cant, scriptural allusions and rowdyism are curiously blended in his style but in a direct. vigorous and manly manner, which reminds us exceedingly of Cobbetts' prose in his savage moments. An amusing instance of this quirred Col. B-, for defendant. combination comes vividly before our memory. A man, named Gideon, had the boldness to question Young's perogative as Prophet of the Lord. The Governor denounced a fair specimen of his ordinary orations : "Who is this Gideon who has come among you? He used to sell tape in St. Louis, and how he is here to blaspheme the Lord and destrey the House of Israel. And what should he, children of the covenant, do in return for his cvil work? Out with the bowie knives ve worne like breastpins at Nauvoo, and in the name of God and the Prophet, give him

Mysterious Explosion.

About So'clock, on Sunday evening a tremendons explosion occurred in the wine and isquor store of Messrs Macy & Jenkins, No. 146 Fulton street, New York-completely demolishing the doors and windows both front and rear. The rear windows were secured by iron shutters, which were blown open, the strong iron bolts thereon being torn from their fastenings by the violence of the concussion. The windows in the cellar were also shattered, and fragments of the doors were thrown across tie street.

An alarm of fire was immediately given. The fiermen of the District were early at the scene but fortunately th ir services were not required, as Officer Bringhampton and one of the insurance patrol happened to be on the corner of Nassau and Fulton streets at the time the explosion occurred, ran across and of liquors and teas, the liquor being in easks the fire. which stood on the floor in the centre of the

From an examination of the promis s after the excitement had in a measure subsided, it appeared evident that an attempt had been made to blow up the building with gunpowder. The explosive material had been placed between a puncheon of liquor and the stairway, and lighted with a slow match, the design evi- opposition, and not to the Democracy. dently being to burst the cask and ignite the liquor, and thus spread the flames in every'direction about the premises. The strong sulphurous smell, as if from the burning of powder, was perceptible in the store for several thours after the explosion. Capt. Leonard. Fire Marshal Boker, Mr. Bouton, and several others made a thorough examination, but could find nothing further than above described.

The proprietors, Messes, Macy & Jenkins, were sent for and soon arrived. They also examined the store, but nothing was missing; the safe and desk were untouched, and their stock was in pretty much the same condition that they left it on Saturday evening The damage done will not exceed fifty dollars.

Fortunately there was no one injured, :1- Munder of Hon. David Hume of Virginia. though there were several persons within a few feet of the store at the time.

York papers says: Quite unexpectedly this morning I found the name of our friend, the Hon R. J. Walker, upon the books of the Girard House .-Upon visiting his room we found him ill, in bed, suffering from the disease contracted some three weeks ago in Washington, and which, at the National Hotel, has assumed the nature and form of an epidemic. Mr. Walker attended for two nights upon a sick friend, a guest at the National, partook of several meals there, and has suffered in common with most of the guests of the establishment. Mr. Buchanan was also attacked with the same disorder, while at the National, and has not yet entirely recovered his usual robust bealth and physical condition " This epidemic was of rather strange origin, and embraced in its devastation all the boarders at the National, including the President elect, Hon J. Glancy Jones and Hon. Rolt. J. Walker. It was caused by the proprietors of the aforesaid hotel poisoning the rats (the four-legged ones) that infest the premises, who immediately took to the nearest water. On examining the large tank from which the aqueous fluid used in the hotel is drawn, the bottom was found to be black with the carcases of arsenic poisoned rats! Hence the epidemic
