M., at which time their names will be called and vacancies (if any) filled. filled. They will report by the number on the article exhibited, and, in awarding Premiums, be gov-erned by the printed lists furnished them by the Secretary. They shall require such evidence from Exhibitors release to the stock or articles on exhibition as shall be to them entirely satisfactory. Any deception in the statements of exhibitors shall, when discovered, work a forfeiture of the premium to which the party making it would otherwise be entitled. All the articles specified in classes No. 10, 11 and 13 must have been manufactured in the county, in order to entitle them to premiums. Also, all animals entitled to premiums must be such as have been raised in the county, or owned and kept therein for at least six months prior to the

No article exhibited shall be entitled to two premiums, as, for instance, the best bushel of grain receiving the premium shall not be included in the best acre upon which a premium is offered. The judges of the several classes will be requi-

Any person ethibiting an article not mention-ed in the printed list, but which may be deemed meritorious by the judges, shall be awarded a 50 50 Diploma. 50 1

The judges will not permit any one to interfere with them during their adjudication, and when any judge is interested he shall withdraw, and the balance shall decide on the merits of the article. The judges of the various classes will meet on the ground, on the second day, at 10 o'clock, A.

velect poetra. UPON THY TRUTH RELYING. BY T. H. DAYLEY. adl guiainey They say we are too young to love, Too wild to be united In scorn they bid us both renounce The fond vows we have plighted,

They send thee forth to see the world, Thy love by absence trying : ----Then go, for I can smile farewell, Upon thy truth relying. ... "Jashangabal

I know that Pleasure's hand will thread Her silken net around thee : I know how lonesome I shall find The long, long days without thee. But in thy letters there'll be joy-The reading-the replying ; I'll kiss each word that's traced by thee, Upon thy truth relying.

When friends applaud thee, I'll sit by In silent rapture gazing ; And, oh ! how proud of being loved By her they have been praising ! But should Detraction breathe thy name, The worlds reproof defying. I'd love thee,-laud thee,-trust thee still,-Upon thy truth relying,

E'en those who smile to see us part, Shall see us meet with wonder , Such trials only make the heart That truly loves grow fonder. Our serrows past shall be our pride, When with each other vieing ; Thou wilt confide in him who lives Upon thy truth relying.

'It matters not how I got it, wife,' said he, you see that it is a good mill, whose water loes not cease to flow, and that's enough ! And then be ground oatables and drinks les, and every possible dainty for Christma bles, and every possible damy for Christmas week; and on the third day he invited his friends to a banquet. When the rich brother saw what a feast was in preparation, he turned has and cold with varation, for he grudged his brother the least windfall.

'On Christmas eve,' said he to the other guests, 'he was so miserably poor he came to ask me for a triffe in God's name, and now, all of a sudden, he is as grand as if he had became an earl or a king.' Then turbing to his brother, he said-"Where on earth did you get all these riches?"

'Behind the door,' answered the other, who had no mind to let the cat out of the bag .--But towards evening, when he had taken a drop too much, he could not keep his counsel any longer, but brought out his mill.

'Here is the golden goose that has brought me all my riches,' said he, and made the mill grind first one thing and then another. On seeing this, the brother wanted to buy the mill of him, but the other would not hear of it at first. At length, however, as his broth-er seemed to wish for it so very much, he said he would take three hundred pounds for it, only he bargained not to part with it till harvest time, "for," said he, "if I keep it till then, I shall be able to grind enough for many a year to come.'

During this space of time, we may easily imagine that the mill was not allowed to grow rusty; and when harvest time came, the brother had it given him, only the other had taken good care not to tell him how he was to manage it. It was evening when the rich brother bro't the mill home, and, on the following morning he told his wife that she might go into the field with the respers, and that he would meanwhile prepare the dinuer. Towards midday, therefore, he placed the mill on the kitch-
