COURT-WEEK.

We have been informed by those who ought to know that our coming court promises to be unusually throng, which we hope will be the means of bringing all our subscribers and advertisers to town with their "pockets full of rocks." We have been indulging those who have been indebted to us for several years from court to court. We are now hard pressed for money-we are indebted to our paper merchant, hands, merchants and mechanics generally, and they want their money and must have it, and so must we, in order to pay them. Subscribers and advertisers will be indulged no longer than court week. Those that neglect this notice must look out for

Having determined to turn our attention for sometime, to the collection of outstanding debts due the establishment, we have entered into an arrangement with CHARLES D. forthcoming work entitled "Editorial Brevi- tion. ties." The author is well and favorably known to the citizens of Cambria county as a writer of considerable merit. We have no doubt that the work will prove highly interesting and instructive. It will contain seventy-five or one hundred pages of closely printed reading matter. Single copy, 50 cts; ten copics. $4,00

GEORGE C. K. ZAHM, Esq. In our advertising columns will be found the card of the gentleman whose name heads spread terror over the land has passed away, this article, appouncing to the "Free and Independent voters of Cambria county," that be is a candidate for the offices of Register, Recorder and Clerk of the Orphans' Court. Mr. Zahm has always heretofore professed to deny that our relations with him, have for to disorganise party, in the hope of gratifyganizing the Democratic ranks, we are compelled to recognize him as one of the midnight fraternity, and will hereafter treat him

We would like George to explain who are the "Independent voters," to whom he is graciously pleased to address his card. They are certainly not Democrats, for they are too 'Independent" to allow themselves to be used as tools in carrying out the arrangements of a secret Know-Nothing conclave. If they are not Democrats they must be Know-Nothings, and it is hard to recognize as Independent voters the men who have taken an oath to proscribe a portion of their fellow citizens on account of their religion, or the place of their birth We would therefore respectfully ming all shades of principle, he has always suggest to him, the propriety of amending his card next week, by striking out the word "Independent," and inserting "Know-Noth-

We understand George is not willing to be recognized as a Know-Nothing. If he is not, why has he taken his stand among them? that Why is he contributing his utmost to assist them in bringing about the defeat of the en tire Democratic ticket? If he don't like his present company, let him come out at once from among the "foul party," and stand once more on the Democratic platform side by side with the truest political friends he ever had. But if he will not do so, if he is determined to abandon his old friends, he by the company he keeps.

party. This is certainly a mistake, for it well known, that for years he has been the recipient of the emoluments of several of the most lucrative offices in the county. He must have an insatiable hankering after the "flesh pots of Egypt" indeed, if he is not now satisfied with his share of the spoils.

George pledges himself in the event his election, to attend to the duties of the of fice promptly and satisfactorily. It is true he is a good business man, but still "Sparta hath many a worthier son than he." The people of Cambria, will relieve him from the trouble and responsibility of redeeming his pledge, by electing Col. Hasson, who is also a good business man, and withal a staunch and reliable Democrat. The Democracy of Cambria would be insane indeed, could they be persuaded to abandon Col. Hasson, who for years has been one of their boldest champions, and enable the Know-Nothings and Black-Republicans to boast that they had triumphed in a county, which gave Buchanan upwards of thirteen hundred of a majority.

DISORGANIZERS.

Although the secret party which for a time the morbid appetite which it created remains and is spreading itself further than the know nothing ranks. Love of office originated that party, and disappointment of office destroyed it; but the love of office remains, and houts of usprincipled men are found who are willing rears been of the most intimate and friendly ing that ambition which the love of office incharacter. But now that he has arrayed cites. Among these may be found men who himself in the Knew-Nothing and Black-Re- used to call themselves Democrats, not because publican ranks, and at the earnest solicitation | they loved the principles of that party, but of the men who two years ago were nightly | because they believed there was a potency in in the habit of organizing Know-Nothing | the name which would finally elevate them to lodges, consented to announce himself as a a position of honor and emolument. Being volunteer candidate for the purpose of disor- disappointed in that, they curn around and unite with the enemies of those principles which alone could preserve the Union. These men are generally from the ranks of those who sought, but were refused admission into the secret conclave of know nothingism, as being unworthy to belong even to assassins; and it is not to be expected that such men could benefit the Democratic party in any position they might hold. As "dirt clings to dirt" so there is a kind of affinity between the scattered elements of the broken party and these discontented politicians: Among these may be found the renowned "Shanghai" of Bedford, who for twenty-six years has crowed for office, and has as long been considered by the Democratic party unworthy of it. Assuendeavored to affiliate with the dominant party, but has uniformly been mistrusted, and "laid up to dry." Finally, becoming dissatisfied with the consolations of political defeat, he sought spiritual consolation, with such effeet that even his own party organs remarked

"While the lamp held out to burn, The vilest sinner did return."

However copious these consolations were they did not appear to satisfy his yearning soul and he retired from the arena of politics altogether-that is, he "sold out." This also failed to soothe a guilty conscience, and lately we find him returning like the "dog to his vomit and the sow to her wallowing in the must not complain if he is hereafter judged mire." He has returned with about seven other spirits more wicked than himself, and any charter of incorporation, (which of course We have also been told that he complains like the rebellious angel who was thrust from it posesses, by virtue of its sovereignity, althe realms of happiness into the regions of though some affect to dispute it) is expressly despair, he is not satisfied with the narrow bounds of Bedford county, for seeking out his fiendish malice, but must seek new fields of operation, that his Upas breath may also taint the political atmosphere of other regions and bring a greater curse upon the party. He has inveigled a few "kindred spirits," into chains which will bind them politically for a "thousand years," during which the world will have some peace and quietude He is too much of a coward to enter the arena himself, but he promises others an equal share of the miseries which await him if they carry out his designs. And it must be admitted that he has a few supple tools completely harnessed. He shoots his darts across the line, and they pick them up, but they prove "telum imbelle sine ictu." He attacks nominations fairly made, and endeavors to wrest from the people of Cambria county the right to choose for themselves. He tells them that they have not sense enough to make a nomination, and asks them to take his advice .--Will they not resent the insult? Will they not inform this bosoman that he is not only "shooting at a venture." but that they are shielded by principles impervious to his darts, however cunningly they may be armed?-Will they not at once set him down as an old broken down, one horse politician and a notorious disorganizer? Can they not see that the entire opposition to the County ticket is a "ring streaked, speckled and spotted" faction, composed of all the old parties and cliques combined, not to do good, but to make a puerile demonstration against the party and to frighten away or alienate a few inexperienced democrats. The missiles were first aimed at one man, but now the important fact has eked out, that the whole ticket must be opposed. "Straws show which way the wind blows."-Hasson is as objectionable now as Smith and all the rest are as bad as Hasson. The "cat is out." The "piebald" party must defeat the whole ticket, because the insatiate archer from Bedford says so. There is a "wheel within a wheel," and the great Shanghai turns the crank. The whole ticket must be defeated! Now honest Democrats, look at'it. At first the "cloud was not larger than a man's hand." Some silly objections were made to Smith, which some simple Democrats believed. But now the whole ticket is to be defeated! Men who cannot, by the force of merit, get a nomination, must bolt the party, and defeat the whole ticket. Then they will come into rank next year and ask another nomination. We feel confident that they will be severely rebuked. We are not troubled about the result. We wish to put democrats on their guard. The Shanghai may cackle, but he can't crow. He may put the party to some trouble to knock him off;

"You know the feelings that it brings us,

When e'en a mean mesquito stings us." But he will soon be nailed up in his political coffin, a warning to all who maliciously launch into the vice of political dissension.

Constitutional Amendments.

The proposed amendments to the Constitution of Pennsylvania are again published in found an advertisement of this popular restorathe newspapers of the several counties. They tive. We know nothing of its merits save are word for word, the same that were pubby two suscessive Legislatures, the next step towards their adoption will be their submisber, and the vote will be taken for or against each one seperately. They are all of suf importance to demand the serious attention of every citizen, and we think their expediency and propriety are so apparent, that the peo-ple, without destinction of party, will be ready to accept them. The first amendment relates to the public debt, and proposes the following salutary

1. That the State Debt shall never exceed $750.000, except in case of war, invasion, or insurrection, or for the purpose of redeeming the present debt. II. A Sinking Fund shall be provided sufficient to pay the interest on the existing State debt and to reduce the principal $250,000, a

III. The credit of the Commonwealth shall not in any manner be pledged or loaned or the Commonwealth become a stockholder in

IV. The Commonwealth shall not assume the debt of any county, city, borough, or ulator of the system and the most liable to township, or any corporation; unless the same disease, while if kept free from disease is was contracted by the State in time of war. preventative of Dyspepsia, Jaundice, general poration, shall become a stockholder in or.

The second amendment provides against the needless division of counties by prohibiting the erection of any new courty containing less than 400 square miles, and requiering the expressed assent of the voters of the county, to authorize any division of such county which shall cut off one-tenth of its population. The third amendment relates principally to Philadelphia, and propose to amend the first Article of the Constitution, by striking from its several sections the words which recognize the seperate muncipal existence of the old city of Philadelphia. This amendment also proposes some changes in the mode of apportioning the State for Representatives; the most important of which is that it will allow the city of Philadelphia, (and any city with taxable population sufficient for two Representatives) to be divided into single Representative Districts. The fourth amendment proposes a new sec-tion to the Constitution, in which the power of the Legislature to alter, revoke or repeal

This is a mere outline of the proposed Amendments, but sufficient, we trust to show their importance, and to induce our readers to examine them carefully, so that they may be prepared to vote upon them with an intelligent understanding of their nature and bearing our present fundamental law .- Reading | Price $1-

A Masonic Movement .- Purchase of Mount

We find the following announcement in the Richmond, (Va.) Dispatch, of the 8th : We understand that one or more of the Masonic Lodges of this city have originated a plan for the purchase of Mount Vernon, which. if taken hold of in carnest by the "brothers of the mystic tie," throughout the Union, cannot fail of success. The plan proposed is to get the subordinate Lodges to contribute $1 or each member. The price asked for the Mount Vernon estate is $200 000, and the Masonic statistics show that the order numbers three hundred thousand; so that if all the Lodges in the Union accede to the proposition-and the probability is that they will -the purchase of Mount Vernon may be looked upon as a fixed fact. But the suggestion as given out, does not stop here.

When the land which contains the last mortal remains of Washington is possessed by the Masons, they propose to present it to the State of Virginia, only reserving to their order the right to meet around the tomb of their deceased brother once every year, to celebrate his imperishable deeds, and keep alive his great name. We have strong faith in this patriotic plan for the purchase of Mount Vernon, knowing, as we do, that the order from which it emanates are ever ready for good deeds, and never look back when they put their hands to the plow. Let every true Mason feel that the TOMB OF WASHINGTON CAD only be preserved from decay by his efforts, and but a few short months will roll by, ere it will be the property of that State which gave him birth, and to whose keeping alone is ashes should be entrusted.

IMPORTANT TO RAILROAD TRAVELLERS .- A court in Ohio has decided that the loss of a railway ticket falls upon the purchaser. It held that, the ticket being negotiable by delivery, any one picking up the lost ticket co'd ride upon it. The ticket agent, having sold a ticket to the plaintiff, the latter was obliged, if he rode to give it to the conductor. It was held further by the court that passengers, by the purchase and delivery of tickets to the conductor, did not become lessees of the cars: that they were still in the cossession and under the control of the company; that if the company ordered a passenger who had thus paid his fare to leave the cars, and he refused, he might be ejected without rendering the company liable to an action for assault and battery; that they would, however, in such case, be liable for a breach of their duty as common carriers, and might be made to pay such damages as resulted from that breach of duty, either for detention or any other loss.

Hence the name of the book. With regard to these eiitorial articles, we may remark that they embrace nothing of a personal or sectarian character; while (to quote from the Prefuce) "no article has been retained that was supposed would not prove interesting or suggestive to the general roader, and none that would not be as perfinent now as when first published." We may also state that the cader will be unable to discover the slightest trace of political bias in any paragraph of the whole book. It has been our aim in the preparation of this our first literary venture, to present only such facts and opinions as will be acceptable to the majority of all classes and parties, and to aroid the presentation of sentiments which might be deemed obnexious or heterodox by members of any political party. We deem this explanation necesary, since our connection with the "Tribune" as Editor and Publisher, slightly identifies us with the movements of a great political party, the name of which we have now fergotten.
