A FEARFUL TRAGEBY .- The English journals, received by the last mail, contain accounts of a shocking affair-involving the deaths of a wife and four children by the hands of the husband and father, which occurred at a place called Lerwick, in Scotland : The actor in the fearful drama was a Mr. Peter Williamson, who is described as a respectable and prosperous merchant, a worthy neighbor, and, to all appearances, an affectionate husband and a kind parent.

His first victim was his wife. He had apparently struck her a fearful blow with the cleaver on the head ; with the razor he inflicted a frightful cut on her throat. He went through the same horrifying process in the case of the daughter as she still lay asleep .--He next rushed up stairs to the apartment occupied by the three children, The elder boy was seized, numerous and serious cuts were inflicted upox his head, either with the hatchet edge of the cleaver or with the razor blade, and with the latter instrument a fearful wound was made upon his throat ; but before the consummation of his intended fate, he managed to release himself from his father's hands and made his escape down stairs. Upon the youngest of the three-the sleeping infant-the same elaborate attack was made as in the case of the first two and stronger victims. With its head smashed, almost severed as it was from the body, its death must have been instantaneous. The ter ninatingscene of the sickening tragedy was carried out in the other room on the the same floor on which these transactions took place. To this room his son John, had made his escape in his night dress. He could scarcely, however, have done more than reach the apartment, when his father, following in hot persuit, overtook him, and seizing him as he vainly attempted to elude his hold leaping into an unoccupied bed dragged him out by erected a Blast Furnace, called Johnstown Furhis superior strength One or more stuning blows upon the skull soon served to make him resistless, and by a deep razor cut in the place a few days ago, is the best or worst throat he was in the next deprived of life
