Miscellaneous. One of the Pioneers. Tom Holmes of the far West—no town or State in particular—is one of the pioneers. Decidedly he is one of them. Tom has faced more wild lands, fever and ague, and Indian troubles than almost any other man now on the borders of civilization towards the setting sun, and still westward the course of his empire takes its way.

Tom was the original settler of Chicago where he pre-empted a tract of land and laid out a town—an easy thing to do in the West. He then laid out Janesville, Wisconsin, and he, with two or three others, laid out the city of Milwaukee. The rapid growth and present size and importance of these places, attest the judgment of this pioneer in locating towns.

Ancient Ruins in the United States. Dim and mysterious is the early history of man on this continent. It is enveloped in thick darkness, never, it may be presumed, to be penetrated by human research; and yet the ruins of ancient cities are frequently discovered that tell of a race that has long since passed away—probably exterminated by the ancestors of our present Indians, who are also fast departing from the human family—fairly dying out before the ever-advancing firmness of the pale face. But these monumental cities indicate great populations, and prove the existence of mighty men of old. A new stimulus is likely to be given to American Archeology, by a discovery recently made some ninety miles north east of Fort Stanton, a long account of which has just appeared in the Fort Smith (Arkansas) Times. We condense. The plan upon which lie the massive relics of gorgeous temples and magnificent halls slopes gradually eastward towards the river Pezos, and is very fertile crossed by a gurgling stream of the purest water that not only sustains a rich vegetation, but perhaps furnished with this necessary element the thousands who once inhabited this present wilderness.

The city was probably built by a warlike race, as it is quadrangular and arranged with skill to afford the highest protection against an exterior foe, many of the buildings on the outer line being pierced with loopholes, as though calculated for the use of weapons. Several of the buildings are of vast size and built of massive blocks of a dark granite rock, which could only have been wrought to their present condition by a vast amount of labor. There are the ruins of three noble edifices, each presenting a front of three hundred feet, made of ponderous blocks of stone, and the dilapidated walls are even now thirty-five feet high. There are no partitions in the area of the middle (supposed) temple, so that the room must have been vast; and there are carvings in the bas-relief and fresco work. Appearances justify the conclusion that these silent ruins could once boast of halls as gorgeously decorated by the artist's hand as those of Thebes and Palmyra. The buildings are all loopholed in each side, much resembling that found in the old feudal castles of Europe designed for the use of archers. The blocks of which these edifices are composed are cemented together by a species of mortar of a bituminous character, which has such tenacity that vast masses of wall have fallen down without the blocks being detached by the shock. We hope, ere long, to be favored with full and descriptive particulars, as it is probable that visits and examinations will be made amongst such interesting relics of the unknown past by some of the United States officers attached to the nearest fort.

Scene with a Newly Married Pair. Day before yesterday, says a late Cincinnati paper, a trio of newly-wedded couplets from the interior of Kentucky arrived at the Burnet House, and took apartments for the night in that well ordered hotel. The roomy corridors, marble floors, gorgeous drawing-rooms and well spread table of the hotel, drew from them the most ingenious remarks of surprise. In the evening they visited the Opera-House, and were so astonished by its magnificence, that even Mrs. Waller's wonderful impersonation of "Meg Merrilies" almost failed to interest them. Nothing more was thought of the verdant trio till about one o'clock yesterday morning, at which hour the boot-black of the Burnet House, in making his customary round, observed one of the bauclic Benedicks seated in hall, near the door of his room. He naively asked the polish of understanding if it was the clerk. Receiving a negative answer, he informed the boot-black that he would like to see that individual. In a few moments one of the attentive office-men was at his side, and politely asked him what was needed.

An Amusing Law Case. Some years ago, in Newcastle county, Delaware, an Irishman was knocked down and robbed. He accused a man of having committed the robbery; and in due time the case came to trial. The Irishman being upon the stand, was cross-examined, after having sworn positively to the guilt of the prisoner, by one of our keenest lawyers, and something like the following was the result. "You say that the prisoner at the bar was the man who assaulted and robbed you?" "Yes." "Was it moonlight when the occurrence took place?" "Divil a bit iv it." "Was it starlight?" "Not a whit; it was so dark that you could not have seen your hand before you." "Was there any light shining from any house nearby?" "Divil a bit iv a house was there anywhere about."

The Father of Waters. A writer, referring to the vastness of the Mississippi river says: "It extends 2 100 miles from the frozen regions of the North to the Sunny South, and with the Missouri river is 4,500 miles in length. It would reach from New York across the Atlantic ocean, or from France to Turkey and the Caspian sea. Its average depth is 50 feet and its width half a mile. The floods are more than a month travelling from its source to its delta. The trappers can exchange the furs of animals caught by them on the Upper Mississippi for the tropical fruits gathered on the banks below. The total value of the steamers afloat on the river and its tributaries is more than $60,000,000 numbering 1,699 boats, with more than twice the steamboat tonnage of England. It drains an area of 1,200,000 square miles, and washes the shores of 12 powerful States. In one single reservoir at Lake Pepin, between Wisconsin and Minnesota, 2,500 miles from the sea, the navies of the world might safely ride at anchor."

The Courteous Report. Hon Alexander H. Stevens, of Georgia, was once running for Congress with an opponent of unusually large stature, and on the stump one day the discussion became exceedingly warm. Whereupon the large man said to Stevens, who was small and delicate. "Why, I could button your ears back and swallow you whole."

One of the most amusing scenes in the Legislature of Pennsylvania occurred on a motion to remove the capitol of the State from Harrisburg to Philadelphia. A matter-of-fact member from the rural districts who had heard of the great facilities with which brick houses are removed from one part of the city to another, and who had not the least idea that anything but moving the State House was in contemplation, rose and said: "Mr. Speaker, I have no objection to the motion, but I don't see how on airth you are going to get it over the river."

Monumental Pillars. "But," said I, "do you really break these pillars purposefully?" "Why, that all depends, you see, sir. When the father of a family is called away on a sudden, we break the column short off with a rough fracture; if it has been a lingering case we chisel it down a little dumpy. That, for instance," said he, pointing to a very thick pillar, fractured as sharp and ragged as a piece of granite, "is for an awful sudden affliction—a case of apoplexy—a wife and seven small children." "But," I observed, "there are some tall and short columns." "Well, you see," said he, "that's all according to age. We break 'em off short for old 'uns, and it stands to reason, when it's a youngish one, we give him more shaft."

Chessal Elegance. One of the greatest speeches on record is the following, describing the destruction of a meeting-house by flood: "A few short weeks ago, and you saw the stately house towering up in your midst like a graynymph in a corn field. Now none so poor as to do it reverence! It has gone the way of all flesh. The mighty torrents descended from the eternal clouds; the air was filled with cries of despair; the river swelled and ran over; the mighty building creaked, shook, rose from the surface of water, moved like a world in a miniature down the vast expanse, carrying with it an old pair of boots that I left in one corner of our pew."

Rather Idle. A popular preacher tells a good story as a hit to those kind of christians who are too indolent to pursue the duties required of them by their faith. He says that one pious gentleman composed a very fervent prayer to the Almighty, wrote it out legibly and faxed the manuscript to his bed post. Then on cold nights he merely pointed to the document, and with the words—"Oh, Lord! those are my sentiments!" blew out the light, and nestled among the blankets.

A Hint to Editors. "When I go into my office to stop my paper," said a good natured gentleman, "and the editor happens to look glum, I can do the business with some kind of boldness; but when the aforesaid gentleman is dreadful glad to see me, polite and smiling, the worst stick in my throat, and by some kind of internal process, change into, 'I think I'll subscribe for another year, sir.' Isn't it curious."
