

AGRICULTURE

HOW TO MOW.

A smile wreathes the lips of our veteran farmer, as he reads the heading of this article. Can an editor teach me anything new in that line? Oh no, sir, perhaps not, but let us hint a word or two to your sons, or to some young men who have not such skillful fathers to teach them. We want them to learn this art aright, then they will never forget it.

This is one of the most fatiguing operations of farming, and the more so, as it has to be done in very warm weather. Any hints to lighten the labor will be very useful. In the first place then, rise early and begin before sunrise. By doing so, and having your scythe sharpened and in perfect order the night before, you may get half a day's work done before nine o'clock. The coolness of the morning air, and the dew on the grass will both help along the labor. At nine o'clock, you may return to the house or to some shady tree, and rest yourself for several hours while your slow neighbor is sweating through and perhaps bursting himself by overwork, and by taking down large draughts of cold drink to allay his thirst. Between two and three o'clock you may begin work again, refreshed and vigorous, and may labor till sunset with little fatigue. By all means keep your scythe constantly in good order. Let it be adapted to the surface of the ground to be mowed. If that is level and free from obstructions, the scythe may be long and almost straight, and it will work easy. If the ground is broken, or covered with stones or low stumps the scythe must be short and crooked.

While the snath should not be too heavy, neither should be so light as to tremble and shake in the mower's hand; also, never let it become loose from the blade, as this will cause it to catch on every obstruction, and require a great waste of strength to make it cut. Many young mowers, in their haste to get over a certain piece of ground, often worry themselves by this little neglect.

It is very pleasant to mow in company, but young and inexperienced mowers should be careful how they put themselves against the branny arms of older and stronger workmen. Many a promising young man has been injured for life by this ambition to be thought a great mower.

Hoping that our young laborers will be careful when following close to each other, we commend them to their noble work, and hope they will pass through the hay-harvest in good health, and gather abundant crops.—American Agriculturist.

PEAR TREES.

On Prof. Mape's farm is an orchard of three thousand pear trees, which bear abundantly. The manager claims that the success of the pear is in the mode of cultivation.

Each tree is forced to form a low head. To accomplish this, the main shoot is cut back, and the strength of growth thrown into the lateral branches.

The trees are summer pruned, that is, the buds are pinched off to such an extent as to prevent the tree from forming more wood than it can thoroughly mature. The trunks of all the trees are washed in the spring with a solution of caustic soda. A pound of common sal soda is heated to a red heat to drive off the carbonic acid, and then dissolved in one gallon of rain water. This is said, will destroy insects, and remove any extraneous coating, and leave the pores of the bark in a good condition.

Remedy for Short Pasture.

Those who have but a limited range of pasture and keep stock enough to crop it well, are almost at the mercy of the weather. If there is a chance to the favoring rains, and a good season for the growth of grass and clover, all is well; but if, as frequently occurs, there comes a long period of drouth, the browned fields already closely cropped, suffer severely, having little to protect the roots from the full power of the sun, and the cattle suffer yet more. The milk pails show serious diminution, the dairymen profits shrink, and the stock fall off when they should be gaining. A severe check of this kind will be throughout the season, for much of the pasture may be "summer killed," and the full flow of milk can hardly be regained. This may be guarded against by putting in a small plot of corn, sorghum, millet or other suitable crop for cutting and feeding green. An acre of corn sown broadcast now, will very soon yield sufficient to give great relief to the short pasture. It is not necessary to stable the cows; cut a good supply for them, and feed them night and morning before they leave the yard; they will eat it with a relish and make ample returns in the milk pails and the churn. Even if the threatened drouth should not come, and abundance of grass should grow, the soiling crop need not be lost. Cut at the proper season, and properly cured it will not come amiss next winter.

Hoing.—Don't forget that hoing—repeated hoing and stirring of the ground, constitutes one of the essentials of successful gardening; therefore, hoe early cabbages, and Lettuces, Cauliflower, &c., an occasional light dressing. Hoe the corn and potatoes. Keep an eye to the squash bugs. They will bear close watching. Examine the vines frequently, and destroy the scamps, by soaking them in water and pour on the vines, it will drive them away, and aid to the growth of the vine.

HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS.

It is a fact that, at some period, every member of the human family is subject to disease or disturbance of the bodily functions; but, with the aid of a good tonic and the exercise of plain common sense, they may be able to regulate the system as to secure permanent health. For this purpose, Dr. Hostetter has introduced to this country a preparation bearing his name, which is not a new medicine, but one which has been tried for years, giving satisfaction to all who have used it. The Bitters operate powerfully upon the stomach, bowels, and liver, restoring them to a healthy and vigorous action, and thus, by the simple process of strengthening nature, enable the system to triumph over disease. For the cure of Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Nausea, Flatulency, Loss of Appetite, or any Bilious Complaints, arising from a morbid function of the Stomach or Bowels, producing Constipation, Colic, Cholera Morbus, &c., these Bitters have no equal.

Diarrhoea, dysentery or flux, so generally contracted by new settlers, and caused principally by the change of water and diet, will be daily regulated by a brief use of this preparation. Dyspepsia, a disease which is probably more prevalent, in all its various forms, than any other, and the cause of which may always be attributed to derangements of the digestive organs, cannot be cured without first using HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, as per directions on the bottle. For this disease every physician will recommend Bitters of some kind; then why not use an article so famous to the people? All Cancers have their Bitters, as a preventive of disease and strengthener of the system in general; and among them all there is not to be found a more healthy people than the Germans, from whom this preparation is derived. Numerous scientific experiments have been made to prove the value of this great preparation in the scale of medical science.

FEVER AND AGUE.—This trying and provoking disease, which exacts its toll from the human body in a short time, and rendering him physically and mentally useless, can be driven from the body by the use of HOSTETTER'S RENOWNED BITTERS. Further, none of the above-stated diseases can be contracted, even in exposed situations, if the Bitters are used as per directions. And as they neither create nausea nor offend the palate, and do not interrupt ordinary pursuits, but promote sound sleep and healthy digestion, the complaint is removed as speedily as is consistent with the production of a thorough and permanent cure.

For Persons in Advanced Years, who are suffering from an enfeebled constitution and infirm body, these Bitters are invaluable as a restorative of strength and vigor, and need not be tried to appreciate their value. And to a mother while nursing these Bitters are indispensable, especially where the mother's nourishment is inadequate to the demands of the child, consequently her strength and health are sacrificed. In such cases, such as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, is needed to impart temporary strength and vigor to the system. Ladies should by all means try this remedy in all cases of debility, and before so doing, should ask their physician, who, if he is acquainted with the virtue of the Bitters, will recommend their use in all cases of weakness.

CAUTION.—We caution the public against using any of the many imitations or counterfeits, but ask for Hostetter's Celebrated Stomach Bitters, and see that each bottle has the words "Dr. J. C. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters" blown on the side of the bottle, and stamped on the metallic cap covering the cork, and observe that our autograph signature is on the label.
