Cattle Bloat From Eating Wet Pastures--Prevention and Cure. I observe in a late number of the Farmer

an account of the death of cattle from eating clover while wet with rain. Such accidents are of very common occurrence. I have myself had fresh clover pustures every year, for many years and formerly lost many valuable cattle from bloat; of late years not any. In any kind of good, sweet pasture, cattle will find themselves so full as to produce a great distension of the stomach, but no bad consequence results, beyond some brief distress to them. But if the grass be very succulent, and especially if it be wet with rain or dew, and the weather is very warm, and especially if salt be given when the grass is wet, a fermentation of the contents of the stomach some times take place, and a distension ensues, speedil; fatal to the animal, if not promptly arrested; early in the season clover is especially dangerous. Cattle rarely bloat on other kinds of grass though I have known an instance of a very rank growth of young timothy causing bloat. As the season advances and the clover becomes less succulent and more woody in its texture, the danger diminishes until it disappears altogether. - Every farmer who has clover pasture may observe that though his cattle, in the early season of pasturage eat the clover with avidity, yet the fence corners and swales producing June grass will be chopped close to the ground, while the clover is half a knee high. And if swales and fence corners abound in proportion to the number of cattle, no damage from bloat will ensue. This indicates that a preventative is to supply the cattle with a portion of food not producing bloat. Sowing timothy seed in large proportion with the clover is one method. Good, sweet hay supplied to the cattle, in such quantities as they will consume during the night, while they are yarded, will effectually prevent bloat. It not only partially fills the stomach of the animal, thus diminishing the quantity of clover taken in, but it neutralizes and prevents the acetous fermentation which causes the bloat.

When cattle are first turned into clover pasture in early spring, if they be freely fed with good hay in the morning. no anxiety need be felt about bloat for that day, no matter how abundant and succulent the pastures may be. - Some cattle are continually liable to bloat. It has been advised to fatten and slaughter; but I have this year a voung and valuable cow, having this tendency, that I have carried through the dangerous season, simply by giving her at night all the sweet, early cured hay she could eat .- Visitors have looked on in wonder, when, near sundown, I would call the cow from the pasture, to see the eagerness and avidity with which she would eat the hay, although full even to distress with the clover; often expressing her joy at the sight of the hay by a prance and a caper I have several times observed that when she was so distended by clover so as to make me fear for her, that a few minutes of hay eating would perceptibly diminish the distension, and soon her appearance would be safe. As the clover became woody and less succulent, her appetite for hay diminished. Salt should be freely given to cattle in clover pasture, but never when the grass is wet, for that often causes bloat. When bloat occurs, a good remedy is to twist a hay band, dip the centre of it in tar, insert the tarred part in the creatures mouth, and tie tight behind the horns In one instance--a case of every alarming bloat in a two year old steer-1 made a hole in the paunch on top, just forward of the hip bone, with a long, narrow knife, and inserted a goose quill. The animal was speedily relieved, and lived to be slaughtered for beef, months afterward. Pre vention, however, is a better cure. If it is desired at any time to turn cattle unused to such pasture into clover, it may be done with safety by giving them a quantity of brined hav before turning them in; but never without precaution should fresh cattle be turned into wet clover. Horses rarely bloat, but a ever lived; the cost of the original design and horse near me died this spring from distress caused by eating clover after a shower .- Ohio

KEEPING FARM ACCOUNTS .- A correspondeat of the Farmer and Gardner, thinks that if every farmer kept a systematic account of | 1 cash everything seen and done on the farm, the 1 cash agricultural papers would become twofold 1 cash more valuable than they now are, as the notes | 1 cash of such observations as might be made could be more readily relied upon and communicated, than if made from memory; and farmers who now never think of writing for the papers would take pleasure in so doing.

GROW MORE ROOT CROPS .- "The Hon A. B. Conger, President of the society, made an earnest address to the farmers present to aban don the exhaustive process and adopt the root cultivation. He believed in the English dogma, that without roots for food, there must be few cattle; that with few cattle there must be little manure; and that with little manure there must be little crops.

Solon Robinson observed, in regard to feeding root crops, that the bad taste imparted to the butter by feeding turnips, could be removed by putting a piece of charcoal into the milk before churning, and wold disinfect it thoroughly.

HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS.

It is a fact that, at some period, every member of the human family is subject to disease or disturbance of the bodily functions; but, with the aid of a good tonic and the exercise of plain common sense, they may be able so to regulate the system as to secure permanent health. In order to accomplish this desired object, the true course to pursue is certainly that which will produce a natural state of things at the least hazard of vital strength and life. For this purpose, Dr Hostetter has introduced to this country a preparation bearing his name, which is not a new medicine, but one that has been tried for years, giving satisfaction to all who have used it. The Bitters operate powerfully upon the stomach, bowels, and liver, restering them to a healthy and vigorous action, and thus, by the simple process of strengthening nature, enable the system to triumph over disease.

For the cure of Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Nau-sea, Flatulency, Loss of Appetite, or any Bilious Complaints, arising from a morbid inaction of the Stomach or Bowels, producing Cramps, Dysentery, Colic, Cholera Morbus, &c., these Bitters have no equal.

Diarrhœa, dysentery or flux, so generally contracted by new settlers, and caused principally by the change of water and diet, will be speedily regulated by a brief use of this preparation. Dyspepsia, a disease which is probably more prevalent, in all its various forms, than any other, and the cause of which may always be attributed to derangements of the digestive organs, can be cured without fail by using HÖSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, as per directions on the bottle. For this disease every physician will recommend Bitters of some kind: then why not use an article known to be infallible? All nations have their Bitters, as a preventive of disease and strengthener of the system in general; and among them all there is not to be found a more healthy people than the Germans, from whom this preparation emanated, based upon scientific experiments which have tended to prove the value of this great preparation in the scale of medical science.

FEVER AND AGUE .- This trying and provoking disease, which fixes its relentless grasp on the body of man, reducing him to a mere shadow in a short time, and rendering him physically and mentally useless, can be driven from the body by the use of HOSTETTER'S RENOWNED BITTERS. Further, none of the above-stated diseases can be contracted, even in exposed situations, if the Bitters are used as per directions. And as they neither create nausea nor offend the palate, and render un-necessary any change of diet or interruption of ordinary pursuits, but promote sound sleep and healthy digestion, the complaint is removed as speedily as is consistent with the production of a thorough and permanent cure.

For Persons in Advanced Years, who are suffering from an enfeebled constitution and infirm body, these Bitters are invaluable as a restorative of strength and vigor, and need only be tried to be appreciated. And to a mother while nursing these Bitters are indispensable, especially where the mother's nourishment is inadequate to the demands of the child, consequently her strength must yield, and here it is where a good tonic, such as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, is needed to impart temporary strength and vigor to the system. Ladies should by all means try this remedy for all cases of debility, and, before so doing, should ask their physician, who, if he is acquainted with the virtue of the Bitters, will recommend their use in all cases of weakness.

CAUTION .- We caution the public against using any of the many imitations or counterfeits, but ask for HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS, and see that each bottle has the words "Dr. J. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters" blown on the side of the bottle, and stamped on the metallic cap covering the cork, and observe that our autograph signature is on the label.

AF Prepared and sold by HOSTETTER & SMITH, Pittsburgh, Pa, and sold by all druggists, grocers, and dealers generally throughout the United States, Canada, South America, and Germany.
