

[From the Louisville Journal.]
Letter from Mrs. Lincoln.
It has been published in the Southern papers that the sympathies of the President's wife are with the secessionists. The following very handsome letter, received by one of our fellow Kentuckians, does not indicate it—

EXECUTIVE MANSION, June 20, 1861.
COL. JOHN FRY—My Dear Sir: It gives me very great pleasure to be the medium of transmission of these weapons, to be used in the defence of national sovereignty upon the soil of Kentucky.

Though some years have passed since I left my native State, I have never ceased to contemplate her progress in happiness and prosperity with sentiments of fond and filial pride. In every effort of industrial energy, in every enterprise of honor and valor, my heart has been with her; and at this time, when the institutions that are fostering care we owe that we have of happiness and glory are rudely assailed by ungrateful and parialed hands, the State of Kentucky, ever true and loyal, furnishes to the insult of flag of the Union a guard of her best and bravest sons. On every field the prowess of Kentuckians has been manifested. In the holy cause of national defence they must be invincible.

Please accept, sir, these weapons as a token of the love I shall never cease to cherish for my mother State, of the pride with which I have always regarded the exploits of her sons, and of the confidence which I feel in the ultimate loyalty of her people, who, while never forgetting the homage which their beloved State may justly claim, still remember the higher and grander allegiance due to our common country.

Yours very sincerely,
MARY LINCOLN.

THE CONFEDERATE ARMY.—It has been frequently stated by refugees from the seceded States that the insurgent power had, in many instances pressed persons into the army against their will. These statements may have been received with some doubt, coming from such sources, but Mr. Russell may be called an impartial witness, and he confirms the statement fully. In one of his letters from New Orleans, he says—

"Englishmen will be surprised to hear that within a few days, British subjects living in New Orleans have been seized, knocked down, carried off from their labor at the wharf and the workshop, and forced by violence to serve in the 'volunteer ranks.' These cases are not isolated. They are not in twos and threes, but in tens and twenties; they have not occurred stealthily or in by-ways; they have not taken place in the open day, and in the streets of New Orleans. These men have been dragged along like felons, protesting in vain that they were British subjects. Fortunately their friends bethought them that there was still a British consul in the city, who would protect his countrymen—English, Irish or Scotch. Mr. Mure when he heard of the reports and of the evidence made energetic representations to the authorities, who, after some evasion, gave orders that the impressed 'volunteers' should be discharged, and the 'Tiger Rifles' and other companies were deprived of the thirty-five British subjects whom they had taken from their usual avocations. The mayor promises that it shall not occur again. It is high time that such acts should be put a stop to, and that the mob of New Orleans should be taught to pay some regard to usages of civilized nations. There are some strange laws here and on the part of foreigners, which it would be well to inquire into, and Lord John Russell may be able to deal with them at a favorable opportunity."

If the army is composed of many men impressed in this mode, we need not be surprised that the rebels are not in a hurry to meet the loyal troops.

AN EXTINGUISHER.—Dr. X. attended a masquerade ball. In the motley and happy throng he falls in with a fair pigmy in black silk, whose charming person, snow-white neck and bewitching coquettish airs awaken in his soul the most rapturous love. She casts upon him looks of the most languishing tenderness; he revels in the hope of having made a blissful conquest. He masters up his courage, and ventures to address her: "Who art thou, lovely miss?" asked the doctor, almost melted in the glow of love. "Is it possible that you do not know me doctor?" "Up, upon my honor I do not know thee." "Behold yourself, dear doctor." "Ah! thou art the gracious fairy who has appeared to me to day for the fourth time to open for me the gates of bliss." "You mistake, doctor; I am no fairy." "Ah who art thou then?" "I am the well known lady to whom you have these nine weeks been indebted in the sum of two dollars and seven shillings for washing and ironing." The doctor stood like a petrified herring.

WOMAN'S ADVANTAGES.—Some of the advantages of women over men are as follows: A woman may say what she pleases without being knocked down for it. She can take a snooze after dinner while her husband goes to work. She can go into the street without being asked to treat at every saloon. She can paint her face if it is too pale, and powder it if it is too red. She can stay at home in time of war, and get married again if her husband is killed. She can wear corsets if too thick, and other fixings if too thin. She can eat, drink and be merry without costing her a cent. She can get divorced from her husband whenever she sees one she likes better. She can get her husband in debt all over until he warns the public by advertisements not to trust her on his account.

While the boys were out at recess recently, at one of the village schools at South Adams, a gentleman riding by stopped and inquired of a bright looking lad. "What did you do in there?" The urchin looked up, scanning his interrogator's face a moment, and then replied, "They tan hides, sir." That boy probably knew whereof he spoke.

"There is no place like home!" said a frailest for the other day to a pretty young lady. "Do you really think so?" said the young lady. "Oh yes," was the reply. "Then" said calico, "why don't you stay there?"

"My son, haven't I told you three times to go and shut that gate?" said a father to a four year old. "Yes," said young America. "And haven't I told you three times that I wouldn't do it? You must be stupid!"

A NEGRO DISCUSSION ABOUT EGGS.—General, the lovely village of Seneca Lake, furnishes us the following specimen of Parliamentary ruling: "In the fairest village of Western New York, the 'cuddled pussions,' in imitation of their white brethren, formed a debating society for the purpose of improving their minds by the discussion of instructive and entertaining topics. The deliberations of the society were presided over by a venerable darkey, who performed his duties with the utmost dignity peculiar to his color. The subject for discussion on which we write was—

"What am de mudder ob de chickens—de hen wat lay de eggs or de hen wat hatch de chicks?"

The question was warmly debated, and many reasons pro and con, were urged and combated by the excited disputants. Those in favor of the latter proposition were evidently in the majority, and the president made an attempt to conceal that his sympathies were with the dominant party. At length an intelligent darkey rose from the minority side and begged leave to state a proposition to this effect: "Spouse," said he, "dat you set one dozen duck eggs under a hen, and dey hatch, which am de mudder—de duck or de hen?" This was a boomer, was well put, and nonplussed the other side, even staggering the President who plainly saw the force of the argument, and had committed himself too far to yield without a struggle; so, after cogitating and scratching his wool a few moments, a bright idea struck him. Raising in his chair with all the consciousness of superiority, he announced: "Ducks am not before de house; chickens am de question, derefore I rule de ducks out;" and do it he did, to the complete overthrow of his opponents."

THE MAN WITH A SNAKE IN HIS HAT.—Dr. Dixon, in his New York Monthly Scalpel, states that a gentleman of the "highest veracity" related to him the following snake story, which beats anything that we have read lately:

Going into a public house for dinner, he was surprised to observe the extra care with which the gentleman who took the seat opposite to him took off his hat; he turned his hat as nearly upside down as possible without breaking his neck; then placing his hand over the inside of his hat, he then turned and received its carefully guarded contents, concealed in a pocket handkerchief, in his hand; then gently laying the back of his hand on the cushion, he slid the hat and its contents off and commenced his dinner. The attention of my friend was irresistibly directed towards the hat; and his surprise greatly increased, the reader may imagine, on observing the head of a sizeable snake thrust out looking sharply about him. The gentleman perceiving the discovery, said:

"My Dear Sir, I was in hopes to have dined alone and not annoyed any and with my poor pet. Allow me to explain; he is perfectly harmless; only a common black snake. I was advised to carry him on my head for a rheumatism; I have done so for a few weeks and I am cured—positively of an agonizing malady. I dare not yet part with him; all my care is to avoid discovery and treat my pet as well as possible in his irksome confinement. I feed him on milk and eggs, and he does not seem to suffer. Pardon me for the annoyance—you have my story; it is true; I am thankful to the informer for my cure, and to you for your courtesy in not leaving your dinner disgusted."

PORING FEN AT HIM.—A few of the Wilson Zouaves, tired of waiting orders, made their escape from the camp on Sunday. They went in different directions, and hid themselves in all manner of ways. A search was immediately instituted. One had crawled into the remains of a haystack, and having arranged the hay with which he was covered so as not to excite suspicion, he lay entirely and effectually concealed, awaiting his chances. But he had been seen to do his work by some of the boys, who reported his whereabouts to his pursuers, and one of them went to the haystack to discover him. He stamped on the loose hay, calling loudly, but failing to get an answer or to find any trace of the fugitive. Thinking the boys were mistaken the pursuing soldier left; but taking a second thought he returned, and after due warning drove his bayonet into the hay in every direction. After diligent work a noise was heard, and the Zouave crawled out. Though the bayonet had grazed him three or four times, piercing his clothing, yet he was uninjured. His coat, directly under his arm, had a bayonet stab, and there were two or three through his loose pantaloons. At Fairville, whither he was taken, he was exceedingly jolly.

"If I had thought," said he, "the fellow wouldn't have punched me more than forty or fifty times more, I would have stood it; but I thought he would never stop." What disposition was made of him was not ascertained.

A PRETTY EXPERIMENT.—Professor Rodgers has solved the problem of seeing through a mill-stone. In a paper read before the Scientific Association at Newport, he says— "Take a sheet of foolscap or letter paper; roll it up so that the opening at one end shall be large enough to take in the full size of the eye, and at the other end, let the opening be not half so large. Take it in the right hand, holding it between the thumb and fore-finger; place the large end to the right eye, and look through it both eyes open towards the light. You will see a hole through your hand. If you take it in your left hand, and hold it to your left eye, it will be the same. You will in both cases be astonished to see that you have a hole in your hand. The illusion is most complete."

From this and other experiments, he concludes that an impression made on the retina of either eye cannot of itself enable us to determine on which retina it is received, and that the visual perception belongs to the part of the optical apparatus near or within the brain, which belongs in common to both eyes.

During the trial of the Holbrook divorce case, at Dedham, Mass., one of the lawyers proposed to narrate a history of the case. "Don't want to hear it," said Judge Metcalf. "I haven't heard anything else for two years."

Some time since, a letter was received at the Chicago post office, directed to an "Honest Man." The chief clerk sent it to the dead letter department, with the candid confession that no such man lived in Chicago.

There are two languages that are universal—the one of love the other of money. The girls understand one, and the men the other.

D. MOTT'S CHALYBEATE RESTORATIVE PILLS OF IRON.

An aperient and stomachic preparation of IRON purified of Oxygen and Carbon by combustion in Hydrogen. Sanctified by the highest Medical Authorities, both in Europe and the United States, and prescribed in their practice.

The experience of thousands daily proves that impurities of Iron can be compared with it. Impurities of the blood, depression of vital energy, pale and otherwise sickly complexions indicate its necessity in almost every conceivable case.

Innoxious in all malleadies in which it has been tried, it has proved absolutely curative in each of the following complaints, viz:—
In Debility, Nervous Affections, Emaciation, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Insipient Consumption, Scrophulous Tuberculosis, Salt Rheum, Menses, Whites, Chlorosis, Liver Complaints, Chronic Headaches, Rheumatism, Intermittent Fevers, Prurples on the Face, &c.

In cases of General Debility, whether the result of acute disease, or of the continued diminution of nervous and muscular energy from Chronic complaints one trial of this restorative has proved successful to an extent which no description nor written attestation would render credible. Invalids so long bed-ridden as to have become forgotten in their own neighborhoods, have suddenly re-appeared in the busy world as if just returned from a protracted travel in a distant land. Some very signal instances of this kind are attested of female Sufferers, emaciated victims of apparent marasmus, sanguineous exhaustion, critical changes, and that complication of nervous and dyspeptic aversion to air and exercise for which the physician has no name.

In Nervous Affections of all kinds, and for reasons familiar to Medical men, the operation of this preparation of Iron must necessarily be salutary, for, unlike the old oxides, it is vigorously tonic, without being exciting and overheating, and gently, regularly aperient, even in the most obstinate cases of costiveness without ever being a gastric purgative or inducing a disagreeable sensation.

It is this latter property, among others, which makes it so remarkably effectual and permanent a remedy for Piles, upon which it also appears to exert a distinct and specific action, by dispersing the local tendency which forms them.

In Dyspepsia innumerable as are its causes, a single box of these Chalybeate Pills has often sufficed for the most habitual cases, including the attendant costiveness.

In unchecked Diarrhoea, even when advanced to Dysentery, confirmed emaciating and apparently malignant, the effects have been equally decisive and astonishing.

In the local pains, loss of flesh and strength, debilitating cough, and reticent hæmorrhage, which generally indicates Insipient Consumption, this remedy has allayed the alarm of friends and physicians, in several very gratifying and interesting instances.

In Scrophulous Tuberculosis, this medicated iron has had far more than the good effect of the most cautiously balanced preparation of rhubarb, without any of their well known liabilities.

The attention of females cannot be too confidently invited to this remedy and restorative, in the cases peculiarly affecting them.

In Rheumatism, both Chronic and inflammatory—in the latter, however, more decidedly—it has been invariably well reported, both as alleviating pain and reducing the swellings and stiffness of the joints and muscles.

In intermittent fevers it must necessarily be a great remedy and energetic restorative, and its progress in the new settlements of the West will probably be one of high renown and usefulness.

No remedy has ever been discovered in the whole history of medicine, which exerts such prompt, happy and fully restorative effects. Good appetite, complete digestion, rapid acquisition of strength, with an unusual disposition for active and cheerful exercise, immediately follow its use.

Put up in neat flat metal boxes containing 50 pills, price 50 cents per box; for sale by druggists and dealers. Will be sent free of any address on receipt of the price. All letters, orders, &c., should be addressed to
