

The Wine Cellar on the Kyfhausen.

There was once a poor, but very honest, contented, and merry kind of man in the village of Tilleda, who happened to be giving a christening feast, for about the eighth time, to some of his neighbors.

Desirous of showing all respect to the party at the christening, he set before them the best country wine he possessed, which, being quickly dispatched, his guests seemed to be looking for a little more.

"Go then," said the father to his eldest child, a girl about sixteen years old, "go and bring us some better wine from the cellar."

"From what cellar, father?" inquired the daughter.
"From what cellar, child?" repeated her father, merely in jest, "why the great wine cellar belonging to the knights upon the Kyfhausen."

With perfect simplicity the young maiden took a firkin in one hand and proceeded toward the mountain. About midway, seated in an old and deserted path leading down toward the spot, she found an old house-keeper, dressed in a singular, quaint old fashion, with a large bunch of keys hanging at her side. The young woman paused, not a little surprised at the sight, but the old lady inquired of her very kindly whether she had not come to fetch wine from the knights' cellar.

"Yes," replied the timid girl, "but I have got no money."
"Come with me," said the old housekeeper; "you shall have it for nothing, and better wine than your father ever bought in his life."

They both then proceeded along an old deserted road, the old lady inquiring very particularly by the way, what was the appearance of things then in Tilleda—who was dead, and who was alive.

"Once," said she, "I was as young and as pretty as you art, before I was kid-napped and buried under ground by the knights, or rather knight-riders, who stole me away from the very house which now belongs to thy father. Shortly before this they also seized four young ladies of these parts, who were often afterwards seen about here on their caparisoned steeds. They were entrapped and carried off in open day by these mountain knights, as they were coming from church at Kelba. They made me, as I grew older, into housekeeper, and entrusted me with the keys of the cellar, which, you see, I still wear."

By this time they had reached the cellar door, which the old housekeeper unlocked. It was well laid out with rows of vats and butts. Most of them were either quite, or more than half full, and broaching one of them with great dexterity, she took the little furkin and filled it up to the brim.

"There," she said, "take that to your father; and whenever he may happen to be giving a treat, you may come again; only see that you tell no one, besides your father, where you have it for nothing. And, moreover, take heed that you sell none of it or give it away for in either case will it be worth anything at all. If you ventures hither to obtain wine for sale, let him be warned; his last bread has baked—now go!"

Unluckily, just opposite to them lived the landlord of the village inn, who dealt as largely as he could in adulterated spirits. He among others, had also a taste of the knights' wine.

"My friend you might mix this with ten times its body of water, and sell it for good wine still. Where can you contrive to get it from?"

He resolved to watch; and he followed the daughter as she went, for about the fourteenth time, with her little furkin, toward the Kyfhausen hill. He hid himself, and saw her in the exact way from the old cellar, with furkin quite full, shortly afterwards. Accordingly, next evening, he set out himself, having first rolled into a little cart one of the largest empty barrels he could find, intending to fill it with the same precious kind of liquor.

He thought it would be easy to convey it down hill; and he made a vow to return every night until the cellar became empty. As he approached the spot where he had marked the path the day before, the sky suddenly began to grow dark and lowering. The wind rose, and whispered portentously of the gathering rain which soon fell in torrents. The tempest carried him and his barrel from one side of the road to the other. At last down the hill he went, and continued to fall deeper, until he finally found himself lodged in a burial vault.

Here appeared an awful procession before his eyes—a regular funeral, with a bier hung with black, and his wife and four neighbors, whom he recognized easily enough by their gait and garments, followed in his wake. At this sight he very naturally fainted away, and on recovering some hours afterwards; he still found himself in a dimly lighted vault, and heard the old familiar steeple-bells of Tilleda striking twelve. Now he knew that it was the witching hour, that he was there lying under the church and the burial ground of the village, in a gloomy vault. He was certainly more dead than alive, and scarcely ventured to breathe. But see, a man now approaches him slowly down the narrow steps, opens the door, and in perfect silence put some money into his hand, and then taking him up in his arms, he laid him down at the foot of the mountain. It was a cold, frosty night. By degrees the good host came to himself, and crept without either wine casks, as far as home. It struck one just as he reached it; and he felt himself so unwell, that he must take to his bed. In the course of three days he died, and the money which he had brought home, given him by the ghostly figure, was just sufficient to defray all his funeral expenses; his wife and the four neighbors, as he had seen them, following him to the grave.

The Army Mechanics.
The Boston Commercial Bulletin has the following in its "Sharp Shooter's" column: The regiments of the Northern army, it is well known, contain practical mechanics of every branch of trade, as well as artists, merchants, clerks, and men from every walk of business; so that when a commander wishes a bridge built, a locomotive repaired, or a pair of boots mended, he finds a ready response to his order of "Carpenters to the front! Machinists, two paces forward—march. Shoemakers to the front and centre—march!"

In an army composed of such material, the branch of trade from which such companies have been drawn will be indicated to the shrewd observer by their style of expression toward the enemy. For instance,

Printers—Knock him into 'pi.' Smash his 'form.' 'Lead' him well. At him with a 'dash.'
Carpenters—At him full chisel. Shave him down.
Tailors—Sew him up. Give him a good 'basting.'

Sailors—Smash his top lights. Run foul of him. Sink him.
Sloemakers—Give him a wetting. Peg away at him. Close him up.
Fishermen—Split him and salt him. Hook him in the gills.
Blacksmiths—Let him have it red hot.—Hammer it into him.

Painters—A little more lead. Lay it on to him. We're just the size for him.
Barbers—Our dander is up. Now for a good brush. Give him a good lathering.
Cutler—Polish him down. Give him a keen edge.
Baker—He (k)neads working over. Let's do him brown.
Glaziers—Smash the awful set. Let's do our putties.

Lawyers—Be brief with him. Get his head in chancery. Stick him with the costs.
Machinists—Set his running gear in motion. We'll start the driving wheel, and he shan't break the connection again.
Bill Posters—Stick him to the wall.
Musical Instrument Makers—His notes are all spoiled. String him up.
Jewelers—Chase him well. Show him your metal boys.
Stage Drivers—Whip him into the traces. Touch up his leaders with the string.

REMARKS ON PLANTING—In transplanting trees, the earth should be mellow and dry. For a moderate sized tree the hole should be dug three and a half feet in diameter, and fifteen to eighteen inches deep—always sufficiently large to secure all the roots without fending. All bruised or broken roots should be removed with a sharp knife before planting. Trees should not be planted more than one inch deeper than they stood before they were removed from the nursery.

The whole Southern coast is in a state of alarm. Regiments that were being hurried to reinforce the army of the Potomac are stopped on the road, and the utmost consternation prevails. If our fleet continues active, not another regiment can be spared from the Cotton States in Virginia, and the army that is now threatening Washington will melt away like mist, and the summer morning of peace will dawn over the rebel sham Empire to its center.

At one of our camps last week, a soldier who was on guard during the night, reported to the captain in the morning that, "he was abused by a fellow because he would not let him pass."
"Well," said the captain, "what did you do?"
"Do! why I remonstrated with him."
"And to what effect?"
"Well, I don't know to what effect, but the barrel of my gun is bent!"

A western clergyman, in presenting a revolver to a volunteer said—
"If you get into a tight place and have to use it, ask God's blessing if you have time but be sure and don't let your enemy get the start of you. You can say amen when you shoot."
"Is it very sickly here?" asked a son of the Emerald Isle, the other day, of a brother Irishman.
"Yes; a great many have died here this year who never died before," was the truthful reply.

"What is the reason your wife and you always disagree?" asked one Irishman of another.
"Because we are both of one mind—she wants to be master, and so do I!"

The rebels are fond of comparing themselves with the patriots of seventy six. There is this difference—they are fighting again, while the men of seventy six fought for.

The number of officers taken at Hatteras Inlet might surprise our readers if they did not know that at the time the bombardment commenced, the rebels were holding a court martial on one of their officers.

Cyrus, the conquerer of Babylon, of whom we read in the Bible, was once asked what was the first thing learned.
"To tell the truth," was the reply.

A dandy observed that he had put a plate of brass on his boots to keep him upright.
"Well balanced, by jing," said a Dutchman, "brass at both ends."

D. MOTT'S
CHALYBEATE
RESTORATIVE
PILLS OF IRON.

An aperient and stomachic preparation of IRON purified of Oxygen and Carbon by combustion in Hydrogen. Sanctified by the highest Medical Authorities, both in Europe and the United States, and prescribed in their practice. The experience of thousands daily proves that no preparation of Iron can be compared with it. Impurities of the blood, depression of vital energy, pale and otherwise sickly complexions indicate its necessity in almost every conceivable case.

Influxions in all malleadies in which it has been tried, it has proved absolutely curative in each of the following complaints, viz:
In Debility, Nervous Affections, Emaciation, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Inipient Consumption, Scrophulous Tuberculosis, Sallow Complexion, Menstrual Disorders, Nervous Lacer Complaints, Chronic Headaches, Rheumatism, Intermittent Fevers, Pimples on the Face, &c.

In cases of General Debility, whether the result of acute disease, or of the continued diminution of nervous and muscular energy from some other cause, the use of this restorative has proved successful to an extent which no description nor written attestation would render credible. Invalids so long bed-ridden as to have become forgotten in their own neighborhoods, have suddenly re-appeared in the busy world as if just returned from a protracted travel in a distant land.

Some very singular instances of this kind are attested of female Sufferers, emaciated victims of apparent marasmus, sanguinous exhaustion, critical changes, and that complication of nervous and dyspeptic aversion to air and exercise for which the physician has no name.

In Nervous Affections of all kinds, and for reasons familiar to Medical men, the operation of this preparation of Iron must necessarily be salutary, for, unlike the old oxides, it is vigorously tonic, without being exciting and overheating, and gently, regularly aperient, even in the most obstinate cases of costiveness without ever being a gastric purgative or inducing a disagreeable sensation.

It is this latter property, among others which makes it so remarkably efficient and permanent a remedy for Ides, upon which it also appears to exert a distinct and specific action, by dispersing the local tendency which forms them. In Dyspepsia innumerable as are its causes, a single box of these Chalybeate Pills has often sufficed for the most habitual cases, including the attendant costiveness.

In unchecked Diarrhoea, even when advanced to Dysentery, confirmed emaciating and apparently malignant, the effects have been equally decisive and astonishing.

In the local pains, loss of flesh and strength, debilitating cough, and remittent febrile, which generally indicate Indigestion, such a course, and remedy has allayed the alarm of friends and physicians, in several very gratifying and interesting instances.

In Scrophulous Tuberculosis, this medicated iron has had more than the good effect of the most cautiously balanced preparations of bismuth, without any of its irritating qualities. The attention of females cannot be too confidently invited to this readily and restorative, in the cases peculiarly affecting them.

In Rheumatism, both Chronic and inflammatory—in the latter, however, more decidedly—it has been invariably well reported, both as alleviating pain and reducing the swellings and stiffness of the joints and muscles.

In intermittent fevers it must necessarily be a great remedy and energetic restorative, and its progress in the new settlements of the West will probably be one of high renown and usefulness.

No remedy has ever been discovered in the whole history of medicine, which exerts so prompt, happy and fully restorative effects. Good appetite, complete digestion, rapid acquisition of strength, with an unusual disposition for active and cheerful exercise, immediately follow its use.

Put up in neat flat metal boxes containing 50 pills, price 50 cents per box; for sale by druggists and dealers. Will be sent free to any address on receipt of the price. All letters, orders, &c., should be addressed to

The cheapest and most durable Roofing in use.
IT IS FIRE AND WATER PROOF.
It can be applied to new and old roofs of all kinds, and to Shingle roofs without removing the Shingles.
THE COST IS ONLY ONE-THIRD THAT OF TIN AND IT IS TWICE AS DURABLE.

GUTTA PERCHA CEMENT,
For preserving and repairing Tin and other Metal Roofs of every description, from its great elasticity, is not injured by the contraction and expansion of metals. And will not GLACK IN COLD OR RUN IN WARM WEATHER.
These materials have been thoroughly tested in New York and all parts of the Southern and Western States, and we can give abundant proof of all we claim in this favor.
They are readily applied by ordinary laborers, at a trifling expense.

"NO HEAT IS REQUIRED."
THE LAW OF NEWSPAPERS.
1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered as wishing to continue their subscription.
2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of newspapers, the publisher may continue to send them until all arrearages are paid.
3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their papers from the office to which they are directed, they are held responsible until they have settled the bills and ordered them discontinued.
4. If subscribers remove to other places without informing the publisher, and the newspapers are sent to the former direction, they are held responsible.

The courts have also repeatedly decided that a Postmaster who neglects to perform his duty of giving reasonable notice as required by the regulations or the Post Office Department, of the neglect of a person to take from the office newspapers addressed to him, renders the Postmaster liable to the publisher for the subscription.
