

Death of Prince Albert.

By the arrival of the steamer Persia we have intelligence of the death of Prince Albert, husband of Victoria, Queen of England. He died of gastric fever, on Sunday, the 15th. Prince Albert was born at Rosenau, Germany, on the 26th of August, 1819, and was of the house of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha. He was the second son of Ernest Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, under whose immediate personal superintendence he received an admirable education, which he completed by attending the University of Bonn during three academical sessions. In July, 1838, he visited England, in company with Leopold, King of Belgium, and spent some time at the court of the youthful Queen, and in November, 1839, it was formally announced to the Privy Council by the Queen that she intended to form a matrimonial alliance with Prince Albert. The secret had long been public property, but was kept in suspense by the decorous contradictions of the ministerial journals. The marriage was solemnized February 10, 1840. For the purpose of rendering him perfectly independent, the magnificent personal allowance of $150,000 a year was made to him by Parliament. Besides which he was field Marshal, Knight of the Garter, and other orders, Colonel of the Fusilier Guards, and held a number of other lucrative or honorary appointments. He was a man of refined taste, and an accomplished musician, and draughtsman. Forbidden by his position to interfere in politics, he occupied his attention in superintending the education of his children. The progress of the arts and sciences and general philanthropic subjects, such as the 'improvements of the working classes,' sanitary arrangements, &c., also engaged his attention. He was patron and President of numerous charitable institutions, in which he took a personal interest. As President of the Society of Arts, he was the chief promoter of the Great Exhibition of 1851. Similar exhibitions, confined to native productions, had been long held in Paris, Brussels, and even in Manchester, and other towns in England. But when the idea of holding one in London was suggested to Prince Albert, he readily adopted it, and zealously co-operated in the scheme of extending it to the whole world. The popularity which for a long time he had enjoyed with all classes, was, for a brief space, overclouded in 1855, when rumors were current among the opponents of the Government that the Prince took an undue interest in political affairs, and even held communications with some German courts, which were prejudicial to English interests, so that the ministers thought it necessary to clear up all doubts by an explicit denial of the report from their places in Parliament. He was noted in a country of scientific agriculturists, for the spirit with which he carried out agricultural experiments. As a patron of Arts, Prince Albert has showed himself particularly active.

England's steel-clad ship.

It is stated that we may shortly expect a visit from the Warrior, the famous British steel-plated frigate. If this report be true we shall have an opportunity of judging for ourselves, from ocular examination of her framework and accoutrements, what kind of antagonist she is likely to prove. She is of six thousand tons burden; she has been tried as a sea-going ship, and found to be a complete success; her speed exceeds that of any war vessel in the world, and her size and power are unsurpassed. Such is the account given of her by English papers, and we have little doubt that it is substantially correct. The Warrior is completely equipped. Her armament consists of eight guns on her upper deck, viz: two 100-pounder, four 40-pounder, and two 25-pounder Armstrong guns—and thirty guns on her main deck, ten of which are 100-pounders and the remainder 68-pounders, which throw shells filled with molten iron. With her steel armor on she weighs nine thousand tons, draws 20 feet of water, and can do sixteen and a half miles an hour. Her engines have nearly six thousand horse power, and she is built in compartments, each of which is both air and water tight. Her sister, the Black Prince, is of precisely the same size and armament, and is also fully equipped, and has just made her first trial try successfully. She steamed round from the Clyde, where she was built, to Spithead, at the rate of sixteen miles an hour, and in a few days is to take her place in the Channel fleet. Then there are two smaller frigates, the Resistance and the Defence. The latter is being fitted out for sea at Sheerness, and the former at the Victoria docks. They ate of 3700 tons burden each, and have by this time probably joined the Channel fleet. These four ships have between them one hundred and twenty six of the heaviest Armstrong guns.

WANTS THEM TO RETURN.—A Paris correspondent of the Brussels 'Independence' states that an urgent request has been sent by the ex-Queen, Maria Amelia, to the two Orleans Princess serving in the Federal army to return as quickly as possible to Claremont.

A Characteristic Suggestion.

Apprehensive of an attack upon that city the following suggestion is made by a correspondent of the Charleston Mercury:—Our enemies are at length in our midst, and doing their utmost to carry out their fiendish schemes upon our sea islands. I would propose that our Mayor be requested to have the Yankee prisoners at Columbia brought down to Charleston, and that all of them from the two cities, together with as many more as the Government can be induced to send us from Richmond, be divided into squads of about twenty five and chained together; that they then be distributed, and placed in wooden buildings in all the various parts of the city, and that notice be sent, by flag of truce, to the Commander of the fleet that should be able to effect a passage by our forts and attempt to shell the town, his own brethren shall, at all events, be made to bear their full share of the effects of the fire, shot and shell, which he destined for the particular benefit of our wives and children. We may, in this way, force those devils in human shape to meet us fairly on land at the point of the bayonet, instead of standing off at a comparatively safe distance and destroying us at leisure.

THE CARBON OIL LAMP, HAVE NOW BEEN MADE PERFECT

DITHRIDGE'S SIX FLINT GLASS OYAL CHIMNEYS.

THESE CHIMNEYS HAVE NOW BEEN brought fairly before the public, and everywhere the verdict is pronounced, they are the best to withstand the temperature of any that have been tried by the public. In other places the three-wick chimneys have been received for years, and but rarely and sparingly used, it is necessary to speak of their peculiar merits, to all who make a trade of them will afterwards have no other. Throughout the West, and other places, they threaten a supersede all others, such is their adaptation to the Carbon Oil Lamp.

Patented Oct. 6th 1861. The undersigned having purchased the sole right, and being the sole agent of the county is prepared to sell wholesale or retail as cheap as any of the manufacturing establishments in the larger cities.
