

The following preamble and advertisement of LAUREL SWAMP INN, by R. M. S. Jackson, M. D., the original proprietor, will be read with amusement; especially by those who were acquainted with the Doctors and could appreciate his fine accomplishments and original humor.

"THE NEW INN." "Rare Ben Johnston" once delighted appreciating audiences with the wit, the learning, the genuine poetry of a play bearing the above captivating title; in our degenerate days the legitimate Drama has fallen into disrepute; yet although "The New Inn" never more graces the boards of national and capital theatre, the scholar, the man of taste, always pursues the play with feelings of refined pleasure.

But it is of another creation of mingled Romance and reality that we must now speak: to wit, the new Inn of Robert Smith.

The Smith family is one which during ages has been prominently before the public: from time immemorial there have been Smiths who towered above the common herd.

"In shape and gesture proudly eminent." We have not space enough to widen upon them all—we cannot expatiate upon the bright deeds, the shining virtues, the commanding talents which may have distinguished the individual Smiths, from the time of John the adventurer, who made love to Pochontas, down to Joseph the Mormon, who was disposed to make love to everybody; we are even compelled to take Alexander at his word and let him.

"Love and flush and thrill, Or let him die."

Our business with Robert, who having bade adieu to the aesthetics and the angels, is disposed to find "that tranquility which passeth all understanding," in acts of merest philanthropy, in common, every day charities of a cup of cold water to the thirsty, and a crust of bread to the hungry.

Abandoning "star eyed science," turning away from the court of the Muses, he will reside in his new temple of the Actual; and as Prophet and Priest of the new Philosophy, will teach mankind to turn the cold shoulder upon the Mystical, the Abstract, and enapture them with all that is Transcendental in common provender, and all that is Idyllic in three cent whiskey.

No so for Robert's first "utterance."

LAUREL SWAMP INN.

IN the Laurel Swamp is now ready to take in any person that may wish to be "taken in." The human race have been wondering why this Tavern was not finished long ago. This is not at all surprising, as it has been nine weeks, sixteen days, and six hours longer building than the Tower of Babel—and caused more swearing, and confusion of tongues, undoubtedly than the same venerable edifice. Let good men all pray that the same calamity—the curse of God, may not follow this feeble effort of one poor man to get up a shanty for the protection of his fellow creatures, which was inflicted upon the proud and ambitious ones of old—who wished to get up to Heaven on Stone and Mortar, instead of by Good Works and by Grace. This House and surrounding Swamp have been a talking in concern from the first, on account of the nature of the soil. Title—quick sands, glorious legal uncertainties, and eternal delays. In the first place the title of the land has been in a state of "Bor nation" (Cambria County named for birth) for ten years. This has been caused by a "baleful enchantment" and the influence of Mephistopheles.

Although seventeen scientific legal Midwives of the most undoubted genius and reputation as land Lawyers have been at work all that time, no title can be found.

Five Supreme Beldams are now at work with legal forceps and scissors to finish this "Bor nation" from the loom mother of legal abstractions, and whom it is hoped by hook or by crook by right or by wrong will have it accomplished.

The walls of this house itself have taken in more Whiskey and money to build them, than any ten Burns in Cambria county. The timbers of ships to last forever and then make good oven wood are boiled in oil. From high price and scarcity of grease, the Proprietor of the Laurel Swamp Inn thought it best to boil his timbers in Whiskey. There were also other considerations of a Scientific and Chemical character. For, although the Whiskey element will rot the human gut, it preserves Timber, Peaches, and dead animal matter from decay. His bar is only tolerable, Whiskey predominating; but his greatest trouble is that he can only sell by the Barrel or Butt, having no license, as a compensation to the human soul for the want of the Music of the Spheres in the shape of three cent drinks. The Proprietor will supply fiddling gratis, and every man can have the privilege of drinking thirty two gallons or a common barrel. The nineteen gallon law of Massachusetts being considered a too puritanic and contracted arrangement for the Stomach of man in these mountain parts. His table is the ordinary mountain grub, common shanty cooking, hard enough, but suitable to a region near the Line of eternal snow, where the human nose is required to be pickled in Whiskey or drop off with intense frost.

The Inn is situated in the Swamp one half mile west of Calation, at the crossing of the three Allegheny Mountain roads, near a large sand rock Spring, which has its "Bor nation" from the roots of a venerable Pine Forest.

The building itself is of the Egyptian order of Architecture, that is, after the first formula of a human habitation or Temple for the household Gods, wigwam or tent like; in short the aboriginal shanty of the biped man, low and cavernous; simplicity and want having cut the graces entirely.

Hoping to have some custom, the Proprietor is happy to inform the public that this resting place for the weary laden is now arranged. ROBERT SMITH.

The Proprietor would inform the public that Dr. Jackson, of the firm of Jackson & Howe, has rooms in this House—his office being in the original Squatters Log Cabin, opposite. The Dr. is well known to be sound on fits, and common snakes in the hat. His services can be obtained to any time.

AN ACT to authorize payments in stamps and to prohibit circulation of notes of less denomination than one dollar.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Secretary of the Treasury be and he is hereby directed to furnish the Assistant Treasurers and such designated depositories of the United States as may be by him selected, in such sums as he may deem expedient, the postage and other stamps of the United States, to be exchanged by them, on application, for United States notes; and from and after the first day of August next such stamps shall be received in payment of all dues to the United States less than five dollars and shall be received in exchange for United States notes when presented to any Assistant Treasurer or any designated depository selected as aforesaid in sums not less than five dollars.

Sec. 5. And be it further enacted, That from and after the first day of August, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, no private corporation, banking association, firm, or individual shall make, issue, circulate, or pay, any note, check, memorandum, token, or other obligation, for a less sum than one dollar, intended to circulate as money, or to be received or used in lieu of lawful money of the United States; and every person so offending shall, on conviction thereof in any district or circuit court of the United States, be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both, at the option of the court.

Approved, July 17, 1862.

What are we coming to?

The New York Tribune is one of the advance mediums of Abolitionism. It reflects, however, the doctrine to which all abolitionists are tending. In a recent issue it declares it should be happy to blot the word negro out of our Constitution, politics and statutes, and know no distinction in law founded upon color or race. What an attractive country this would be, with four millions of negroes mixed with its white population on grounds of political and legal equality.—Chicago Times.

Such notions as advanced above by the Tribune has been held up before the masses of the Southern people by the leaders of this rebellion, as the ultimate policy of the whole North; but the rank abolitionists have ever denied it. The present aspect of affairs too plainly demonstrates that the assertions of the leading rebels are about to be realized. Were the masses of the people in the South convinced that such was not the design of the leaders of the party in power, this unholy and disgraceful war soon would be brought to a close. Is it not, then, the strongest evidence of cool and premeditated treason for any journal, or any individual to advocate such doctrines at the present, or any other time?—Witching Press

Cast Iron Mouldings

In a paper on this subject recently read before the London Association of Foreman Engineers, the author stated that those who conducted the process of manufacturing iron castings were little, if at all, indebted to any published works on engineering or art, depending mostly on their ingenuity and personal experience in conducting the work. The different qualities of pig iron is an intricate subject to understand, because there is such diversity among them, and without a knowledge of their nature the moulders cannot work to advantage. The destiny of one brand sometimes differs from another to the extent of twelve pounds to the cubic foot, and as the cohesive strength is generally in proportion to the density of the iron, the moulder must know this in order to produce castings for different purposes. There is also great diversity in the crystallization, as well as the fusibility and fluidity of different pig irons. Some are distinguished for a fine, firm grain, others for purity and freedom of dross, and others for the beautiful polish which is capable of being given to castings. A foreman should be acquainted with all these traits.
