THE GOVERNMENT AND TREASON.

The Baltimore American, in commenting upon the course of the Government in relation to treason, quotes from Wendell Phillips and others who are outspoken in their treason, and very justly remarks:

"If it assumes to deal with traitors in these States, let it not determine its policy by mere parallels of latitude, but let that treason which crops out so mistakenly in Ohio and Massachusetts cease to vex the hearts of the loyal elsewhere. In the ends sought, struggled for, there is nothing to choose betwixt the treason of Charleston and that of Boston, unless that which makes its appearance bold, and with arms in its hands challenges a greater respect."

"Let the Government confess its inability to deal with traitors like Phillips and Dr. Olds, or lay a heavy hand on these men whose accursed utterances are costing the very life blood of the nation. If they cannot be reached, let minor offenders be accused, since no Government can long be respected which fails to mete out even-handed justice to all."

Olds has had a "heavy hand laid on him"—he is now in Fort Lafayette—but Phillips is still running at large, though openly advising, in public speeches, the people not to enlist! If he should declare his purpose to vote the Democratic ticket next Fall, he would immediately be arrested and placed in the company of Mr. Olds.
