

Democrat and Sentinel.

EBENSBURG & CRESSON RAILROAD.

On and after Monday, May 21, 1866, travel on this road will run as follows:

LOCAL ITEMS.

Persons indebted to Clark Wilson, for subscription to the "Democrat and Sentinel," job work, advertising, &c., are notified that their accounts are in the hands of Esq. Kinkead, Ebensburg, Pa., to whom payments must be made on or before the September Court, or costs will assuredly be added.

The Alleghanian office is trump this week. Next week we shall eulge them. We had the pleasure of forming the acquaintance of Mr. Houston, one of the Editors of the Pittsburgh Gazette, a few days ago. He is a perfect gentleman and commands the respect and esteem of all who become acquainted with him.

Our old friend Maj. Marlett, can be consulted at all times at the "Logan House." (Isaac Crawford's.) He is always happy to see his old friends, and accommodate them.

The National Union Convention. This large assemblage of representative men was one of the greatest successes the country ever witnessed. In point of numbers, ability and weight of character, it surpassed that of any similar Convention ever assembled since the days of the Revolution. The tone and harmony pervading its proceedings were most admirable. Its sessions are now closed, and its work was well done. The platform of principles and the accompanying address to the people adopted are fully up to the requirements of the hour. The dead issue of Slavery is referred to as a thing of the past, while the restoration of the Union, by the admission of the Southern States to their Constitutional right of representation in the National Legislature, the indivisibility of the Union, and the supremacy of the Federal Government, with due regard to the reserved rights of the several States; a full endorsement of the present Administration, and a denunciation of the outrageous course of Congress, are the prominent features of these able productions. The resolutions, or platform of principles we have already published, and the Address, so soon as we can obtain a correct copy, will also be given in full to the readers of the Republic. It is important that these documents, embodying and discussing as they do, the great principles which are at issue, should be read by every intelligent American. The result of the deliberations of the Convention show that the people are alive to the necessities of the hour. What remains for the conservative interest of the Union is to organize vigorously for the coming campaign. The only obstacle in the way of a complete restoration of the country is the present Radical Congress. Everything that contributes towards sustaining them assists in keeping the country divided and leads to confusion, anarchy and civil war. All this is what the blood-thirsty radicals are laboring for, and what they are determined to bring upon us, if they cannot retain power without it. This fact is clearly shown by records of the late sessions of Congress. When the rebellion was crushed and the rebel armies surrendered and peace was declared, the people expected that the restoration of the Union would follow at once. The work of reconciliation was inaugurated by President Lincoln and faithfully prosecuted by President Johnson until the hopes of the country were revived and rejoicing filled the whole land. This was the condition of affairs when the Thirty-ninth Congress assembled. No sooner had they organized than it was found that a revengeful and malignant spirit actuated the leaders and that the majority of that body endorsed them and at once stopped the work of restoration which had up to that time proceeded so satisfactorily. By degrees this majority became more bitter, until speeches breathing denunciation and slaughter, and calling for the head of the Executive of the nation, were applauded in Congress. The cry of more blood once more went forth, and all who dared to oppose the demand were branded as traitors. Under this action of the Radical leaders in Congress the work of restoration, the labor of adjusting the country, was stopped, and before the Radical Congress adjourned riots commenced and have since taken place directly under the supervision. Thus the prize that our gallant armies fought for and won, peace and Union, has been withheld from the people. But now the people have made up their minds to take the matter into their own hands. The Philadelphia Convention is the first demonstration of their strength. This is conclusive evidence of their earnestness, and foreshadows a complete rout of the radical faction at the coming Congressional elections. Let the campaign which has so auspiciously commenced be followed up with vigor. There is no time to be lost. Reunion, restoration, peace, prosperity and the future greatness of the republic are all staked on the result of this campaign. Let the canvass be one worthy of the great issues at stake, and their need be no fears of the verdict of the people.—Pittsburgh Republic.

Mr. John Keough is now canvassing this county for the sale of the "Lost Cause," written by E. A. Pollard, the editor of the Richmond Examiner. This is a valuable work and contains a truthful account of the late civil war. Copies of this work may be seen and examined at the office of Geo. W. Oatman, of this place.

Mr. Edward Glass, of this place, offers his Foundry for sale. It is now doing a good business, and is in perfect running order. It will be sold cheap, as he is compelled to sell in consequence of ill health.

Our old friend Maj. Marlett, can be consulted at all times at the "Logan House." (Isaac Crawford's.) He is always happy to see his old friends, and accommodate them.

The Proprietor respectfully announces to his friends and the public generally, that he has leased and taken possession of this commodious Hotel. He hopes to make it one of the most desirable places for strangers and others to stop, that can be found in any country town.

His TABLE will at all times be spread with the luxuries and substantial of the season. His CHAMBERS are large, and fitted up with a view to promote the comfort of his guests. His BAR will be well supplied with a large and choice selection of the very best liquors. His STABLE will always be provided with good, wholesome provender for stock, and careful hostlers.

No pains will be spared to render entire satisfaction to all his guests; and, pledging himself to endeavor to please all, solicits a liberal share of public patronage.

NEW PUBLICATION. THE LOST CAUSE, A New Southern History of the War of the Confederates.

By E. W. Pollard, of Virginia. The work is comprised in One Large Royal Octavo volume of nearly Eight Hundred Pages, including Twenty-four Steel Portraits of Prominent Confederate Leaders; and contains a full and authentic account of the organization and progress of the late Southern Confederacy, the Campaigns, Battles, Incidents, and adventures of the most gigantic struggle of the world's history. It is neatly printed on good paper, from new type and furnished to subscribers.

On Monday last, says the Tribune, Rev. R. A. Fink officiated at the funeral in Corn-maugh township, of Mrs. Catharine Wertz, who literally slept away on the preceding Sunday. Her age was 90 years, 8 months and 1 day. She was the mother of eleven children, nine of whom are still living—the age of the oldest of the nine being 70 years, and that of the youngest 46 years, their united age being 543 years and their average age 60 years and 3 months. Mrs. Wertz was also the mother of 78 grand children, 126 great grand children, and 9 great great grand children. Her descendants number in all 224. At the time of her death she was in the possession of all her faculties.

Man wants a tonic—no uncommon want—And every year and month brings forth a new one, Which, after cramming the gazettes with cant, The age discovers to be not the true one. Of such as these let their concoctors vaunt, I'll sing the litters that have credit due won— The world's great Tonic, which no skill can better— I mean the matchless BITTERS of HOOPER & WELSH.

Doctors were living long before old Galen, And since, exceeding learned, grave and sore; But the stomachs they were bound to fill in; Success came not until this later age, Now is the era sick folks are made hale in, And dread dyspepsia driven from the stage, Agues, remittents, headaches—real headaches— Vanish like smoke before HOSTEITER'S BITTERS.

Herbs, barks and roots compose the rare infusion; No mineral poison mars their juices pure, And Rye's mild essence holds them in solution. The taste is pleasant, the effect is sure, N'er have the litters proved a delusion; Try them in time, and health and strength secure.

LOVE AND MATRIMONY. Ladies and gentlemen, if you wish to marry, address the undersigned, who will send you, without money and without price, valuable information, that will enable you to marry happily and speedily, irrespective of age, wealth, or beauty. This information will cost you nothing, and if you wish to marry, I will cheerfully assist you. All letters strictly confidential. The desired information sent by return mail, and no reward asked. Address SARAH B. LAMBERT, Greenpoint, Kings Co., New York. June 7, '66-3m

TO CONSUMPTIVES. The advertiser, having been restored to health in a few weeks by a very simple remedy, after having suffered for several years with a severe lung affection, and that dread disease, Consumption—is anxious to make known to his fellow-sufferers the means of cure.

Parties wishing the prescription, FREE, by return mail, will please address Rev. EDWARD A. WILSON, Williamsburg, Kings Co., New York Feb. 1, 1866-ly.
