

The Secretary of War and the Regular Army.

A Washington correspondent of the Mobile Register, has the following relation of a scene between the Secretary of War, Gen. Davis, and a "colonel in the regular army." It argues favorably for the "privates of the regular army."

The Lorain County Murder.

The Elvira Courier of the 3d inst., gives the following narrative of the bloody affray, which occurred in Lorain county on Wednesday, July 27.

ERIC, PA.

DEMOCRATIC STATE NOMINATIONS. JUDGE OF SUPREME COURT, JOHN C. KNOX, Of Tioga County.

FOR CANAL COMMISSIONER, THOMAS H. FORSYTH, Of Philadelphia. FOR AUDITOR GENERAL, EPHRAIM BANKS, Of Mifflin.

Our Relations with China.

The news brought by every arrival from the East, of the continued success of the Rebellion in China, and the more recent intelligence that the Rebels have embraced Christianity, given to our governmental relations with that country more significance and importance than ever.

Significant and Proper.

Several very proper and significant articles, upon the Pacific Railroad scheme, have appeared in the Washington Union within the last ten days.

Personal and Social Observations.

In looking from one window, which commands one of the finest views of almost the entire city that can be found, one cannot but be forcibly struck by the gratifying evidence of growth and prosperity everywhere apparent.

The Water Question.

To be washed or not to be washed, is a question that is not to be taken lightly. It is a question that is not to be taken lightly.

Loss of the Ship I. Z. by Fire.

The ship Ebenezer, at Liverpool 25th ult., brought intelligence of the total destruction by fire of the packet ship I. Z., on the 7th ult., in lat. 42, lon. 62.

A SUNDAY SCHOOL.

A SUNDAY SCHOOL.—A Western Pennsylvania Company have set up a claim to the whole Western Reserve of Ohio, under a patent from Connecticut, alleged to have been made after the year 1762.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

IN TIME OF PEACE PREPARE FOR WAR.

In alluding to the fact that the Secretary of War, Gen. DAVIS, is making arrangements to send most of our available military force in the old States, to the frontiers of Mexico, the Philadelphia Evening Post writes with propriety that there are several important reasons why our soldiers should be so disposed of.

SETTLING UP WHO ACCOUNTS.

The New York Herald tartly remarks, that according to recent developments, if the late whig party had continued in possession of the federal government another term, the Secretary of the Treasury would have been driven, in another year or two, to the necessity of asking a loan of Congress to balance outstanding deficiencies.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

A SUNDAY SCHOOL.—A Western Pennsylvania Company have set up a claim to the whole Western Reserve of Ohio, under a patent from Connecticut, alleged to have been made after the year 1762.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.

STOP MY PAPER.

It appears that the heretofore supposed prerogative of small men, of stopping a paper whenever the Editor says anything that does not square with the notions of the subscriber, is not confined to the little great men of country villages; but, on the contrary, has been made a diplomatic right by his Excellency Count Bismarck.