mer to our dispatch. The first note of war that fell so ominously on the cars of Europa has been as rapid'y exchanged for a note o peace. The three days since last advices brought reports from the Danube, announcing successively an engagement and an armistice—the commencement of hostilities and the conclusion of a either of these occurrences, but the London press believes that the pacific intelligence will be fou the more substantial, and that the movements in the direction of peace have been more important than in the direction of war

wich Islands, two weeks since, we expressed the opinion that their annexation, to some shape, to the United States was a foregone conclusion. Later intelligence seems to render that event closer at hand even than we had anticipated. Indeed, we shall be much surprised if the President in his annual message does not lay some sort of proposition of the kind before Congress; and that Congress will set upon it, and that promptly, there can be no question. The time has gone by for the people of this country to be afraid of their own shadows. We have swallowed Louisiana, Florids, Texas, California, and New Mexico, and the country is just as healthy, if not more so, than before; the annexation, then, of these islands with the consent of the people will not be likely to produce any serious results. To be sure it may not set well upon the stomachs of our beef and frog eating neighbors across the waterand to the Democratic party-then might it be England and France-but what of that; what has been forenriained must be accomplished, and they must submit. The intelligence from the theatre of the events we are predicting shows, however, that they are preparing for the eventthat is, the English and French Consuls are protesting against it. accomplished—that there was no humbug in it; that it was not a cunningly devised eard to procure the change of gauge, and then let them whistle for its accomplishment, we have not the least doubt it would have been satisfactory to a very large majority. But, as we have hinted above, the gain their point. This was strengthened when it became known that, instead of waiting for the action of the Councils upon it, the agents and employees of the company immediately proceeded, even upon the Sahhath, to make arrangements to change the Gange! This proceeding, unwise and foolish in the extreme, at once raised an excite those having faith in the genuineness of the proposition submitted to councils, of a favorable result.
