The Career of Garibaldi.

Born in the middling rank of life, he was obliged to flee, when still young, from his native city, Genoa, during a persecution of the sect of Carbonari, of which he was a member. He afterwards went to Brazil, with the object of engaging in some commercial undertaking, but devoted to the cause of liberty, he soon joined a small band of Italian refugees who were serving as volunteers in Montevideo, defending the cause of liberty and the republic. His desperate courage, his personal prowess as a soldier, and his heroism, never stained by any act of cruelty, made him the theme and admiration of the country; he quickly rose to the rank of general. But Garibaldi was more than a warrior. If he took away life, it was from devotion to a cause which he believed to be that of humanity, and he disdained to contaminate the purity of his motive by receiving riches or rewards for his services, and he lived always in the greatest poverty. In 1847, he returned to Italy. His deeds at Rome are well known. When the siege of Rome was over, and the city taken possession of by the French, he collected about four thousand of its defenders and made a rash attempt to cross Italy to the Adriatic, thus hoping to make his way by sea to Venice, where the last ray of Italian liberty still lingered. He was quickly surrounded by Austrian troops from Florence, Bologna, and Ancona, and he reached with difficulty, with a portion of his force, the little republic of San Marino; here nine hundred men gave up their arms to the authorities of the republic, who, as authorities of an independent state, proposed to make terms for them with the Austrians. They were, however, made prisoners, and sent to Mantua, many of them first being ignominiously flogged. Garibaldi and about three hundred companions reached the shore, and embarking during the night on board some fishing boats, made sail towards Venice; as morning dawned the wind fell, and two Austrian steamers were in sight.

Some boats were taken, others sunk, and two only reached the shore, near Rimini: in one of these were Garibaldi and his wife, a lady of the Brazils, who had insisted on accompanying her husband on his retreat from Rome. Garibaldi and his companions immediately separated themselves, as the only chance of escape, and carrying his wife in his arms, who was unable to support herself from fatigue, left the shore and went inland. Two days afterwards he appeared at the cottage of a peasant, still carrying his wife, and asked for water to be given her, but she expired as he put it to her lips.

His companions were hunted about, and most of them shot down like beasts of chase. Two months later, Garibaldi arrived at Genoa, having passed through the midst of the Austrian forces in various disguises; and he who had always refused to enrich himself by war, who disdained self-interest, and defied all perils in devotion to a noble cause, now thinks it no dishonour to earn his livingas the captain of a merchant vessel trading between Chili and Boston.

We are not extensive, but what we have will always be found of the choicest and best. Persons particularly over in their tastes cannot fail being suited with our selections. In the line of

Paints, Oils, Varnishes, &c.,

Our stock is very extensive, embracing not only a full and complete stock of materials used in house painting, but also every variety of article required in Chair and Cabinet painting also, for Porcelain, Landscape, Mezzotinto and the various kinds of Fancy Painting.

In WINDOW GLASS our stock is necessarily large, and as we are extensively engaged in the manufacture of SASH DOORS and BLINDS, consequently are obliged to keep on hand at all times from two to five hundred boxes, making an assortment of any size, from 6x8 inches to 40x60, of the various brands, French, English and American, among which are large and double thick, suitable for Show Windows, Cases, Pictures, Coaches, Cars, Boats, Lanterns, &c., &c.

And as to PERFUMERY, Soaps, Combs, Hair, Nail and Tooth Brushes, Fancy Toilet, and miscellaneous articles we have useful to meet the reasonable wants of this entire community.

As to our ability to make such selections as will suit the tastes and views of our customers, both in quality and price, we leave for others to decide. Yet we think an experience of nine and twenty years in this business, with a reasonable amount of cash, enables us to make our purchases in such a manner as to assure our friends that we will not be undersold by another House in this city.

PROTECTION INSURANCE COMPANY,

HARTFORD, CONNECTICUT.

ESTABLISHED 1835.

Capital $300,000.

THIS Company have in operations upon such a perfect plan of cash premiums, well seasoned risks and long experience in insuring hazards, that the interests of all concerned are protected. The Company receives from almost innumerable sources, and in small sums, a large annual deposit. From this fund, held as a public trust, losses are paid. There is the only plan of Insurance which can long deserve the public confidence, and the undersigned Agent confidently invites his friends to secure themselves at his Agency, against Fire or Lake Risks.

The advantages of this contract need scarcely be urged upon wealthy men, or merchants, for they rarely neglect it, and if they do are leaves them other resources. It is especially valuable to laboring men, mechanics and others of moderate means—who, perhaps, have little less than a home and its contents in the world.

These should never neglect to insure; a fire which may visit them at any hour, would leave them homeless, and with no capital but their labor, to begin again the struggle of life, and years of toil and watching must pass before they can regain what they have lost, if indeed it ever regains.

If the individual is worth little, the expense is less; if he owns much property, still the expense is trifling, and by investing a few dollars he is safe. He is certain by misfortune, and his all laid in ashes he receives a recompense in cash equal to what is his loss, and may soon restore what has been destroyed.

Applications received, and Policies issued at all times upon favorable terms, by
