The Whig Party Ignored.

The Philadelphia Sun, of Thursday, says the Reading Gazette, takes the News to task for claiming the election of Judge Conrad as a Whig victory, and predicting another Whig victory in the State. The Sun ridicules the idea of the present existence of such a thing as the Whig party, and says "it has no ghost of a chance of success." It then proceeds to lay the Whig party out, in the following emphatic style.

"The result must either be an American or a locofoco triumph—no Whig candidate, as such can be elected, and no issue will be recognised by the people, except as between Americans and Foreign Influence.

"To make ourselves fully understood, we here say that James Pollock can be elected the next Governor of Pennsylvania, if he will give the same pledges, and adopt the same principles which carried Robert T. Conrad as triumphantly into the Mayoralty of Philadelphia; he can be elected as an American, but not as a Whig—The American party will not assist to elevate any Whig to office, if it is to be claimed as anything beyond a triumph of American principles. The Whig party must become Americanized, or remain a minority faction, split up, divided, and disorganised. The large bulk of its members are truly American, but its leaders superciliously arrogate to themselves the credit of all victories achieved without their agency, and upon principles which they misrepresent and oppose—Those who are not for us openly, are against us—those who fear to declare for our principles, and are timorous lest they should alienate any class of foreign voters from their former partizan tendencies, are the worst enemies of American republicanism—traitors to their country, and infidels to the cause of civil and religious liberty"

There it is, in black and white. The Whig party must give up the ghost, and merge itself in the stronger body of Nativism, or else "the game's up." The Natives won't agree to any more compromises—they will henceforth "know nothing" of Whiggery, and require every Whig who seeks entrance to their ranks, to renounce his old party name and principles, now and forever There must henceforth be no parties but the "Know-Nothings" and "Locofocos." Are the Whigs ready to accept these terms?

Cure of a long standing and aggravated case of Rumor

SOUTH AMBOY, N J June 17 1854

C. Bradelow, Esq.—Permit me to give a voluntary testimonial to the virtues of Dr. Wever's syrup and Pills. The case that to them my mother owes an entire restoration to health, is one of forty of long standing. Her case was as follows—Both hands were afflicted, rendering her of no use whatever for a while the pain was intense The best Allopathic and Homœopathic treatment was bestowed upon her Finding no relief she resorted to a root doctor, but with the same success. This case was a surprising thing, and soon interested to extend to her suffering condition, and with your recommendation of Dr Wever's remedies was induced, and after one month's use of the same, was entirely restored to health, and has never been afflicted with cutaneous affections since. I therefore recommend to the afflicted with confidence, as the remedies have never failed in a single instance to relieve and cure within the compass of my knowledge, and he receives his cure with the entire by them.

You may feel at liberty to make what use you think proper of this testimony as there can be no doubt of the truth of the above statement.
