THE SONG OF STEAM.

BY CAPTAIN GEORGE W CUTTER When I saw an army upon the land, A navy upon the seas, Creeping along, a snail-like band, Or waiting the wayward breeze, When I saw the peasant faintly reel, At the toil which he faintly bore,

As he turned away at the tardy wheel,

Or tugged at the weary our When I measured the panting courser's speed The flight of the carrier dive. As they hore the law a King decreed, Or the lines of impatient love; I could but think how the world would feel

As they were out stripped ufar. When I should be bound to tas rushing keel, Or obsined to the flying car' Ha! ha! ha! They found me at last,

They invited me forth at length; And I rushed to my thrine with a thunder blast And laughed in my trost strength' Oh' then you saw a won ir as change On earth and open w de,

Where now my flery armies range, Nor wait for wind or tide Hurrah! hurrah! the water o'er The mountain steep delike,

Time-space have yieled to my power-The world—the world is mine The grant stream of the queenly west, And the orient floods divine The ocean pales were'er I sweep,

To hear my strength rejuce, And monsters of the bring deep Cower trembling at my voice. I carry the wealth and the ford of earth, The moughts of the god live mind, The wind lags after my going forth,

The lightning is left bearing. In the derksome depths or the fathomiess mine, My tireless arm dotn ; ay Where the rocks ne'er saw the the sun'decline Or the dawn of the garage day I bring earth a guttering powers up, From the hidden case below.

And I make the fountain's grante cup Wish a crystal gush o st flow I blow the benows, I forge the steel In a ! the shops of r cle: I hammer the ore, and turn the wheel Where my arms of sines are made,

I carry, I spin, I went. And all my doings I put . True On every morn and ever I've no muscles to weary, no breast to decay No numes to be "nact on the energ"

I manage the furnace, the man the mant,

And soon I intend you may "go to play," While I manage the world myse f, But harness me down with your iron bands. Be sure of your curb and rein, For I scorn the strongth of your puny hands
