He referred to the report of fraud and outrage upon the part of slavery men in the Kansas election, and emphatically confirmed the worst statements which had proceeded his arrival. He said his opinion on the subject of popular sovereignty had undergone no change, but that the conduct of the people of the border counties of Missouri had astounded and amazed him by their reckless disregard of all laws, compacts and constitutions. That the territory of Kansas in her late election had been invaded by a regular organized company armed to the teeth, who took possession of their ballot boxes and made a Legislature to suit the purposes of the pro-slavery party.
