THE FLOWER'S MESSAGE

From a garden bright and sunny,
Swept by breezes soft and free,
Where the joyous birds are singing,
I have come to gladden thee
Like to whisper of a dear one,
Who has loved thee long and well
Very pleasant is the message,
Sleeping in my tiny cell.
Breathing more of truth and kindness,
Than the giver's life could tell

Take me from my snowy prison,
Place me in some favorite book
Close me very, very softly.
Where thine eyes will often look
And I will forever whisper,
From my little fragrant cell,
The heart that fondly loves thee,
Must me loved thee long and well
Guard that heart's love like a treasure,
Never trod its truth to tell

The Silver Creek Gazette is dead. Its Editor says, in his valedictory, that "it has been virtually dead for six months past, and has been in the meantime galvanized into a kind of spasmodic action merely," for the amusement of the Editor, and to redress some private wrongs. He says he has been amply paid in the fun he has got out of it.—Rather expensive fun we should think.

The United States Magazine for July, presents an attractive table of contents, both in illustrations and letter press. This is perhaps as cheap a magazine as is published and much better than some of its more pretending contemporaries. J. M. Emerson & Co., New York, $1 per year.

Mrs. Julia Deane Hayne has been delighting the Clevelanders during the past week. Her marriage does not appear to have impaired her great dramatic talents.

DO FACTS SPEAK?—In 1859, the American Institute awarded to William A Batchelor, the first diploma ever granted for "a Liquid Hair Dye." Since then he has received fifteen medals and diplomas for Hair Dye, and skill, improvements and superiority in the manufacture of wigs, toupees, and artificial head gear; within that time it is estimated that he has made at his private rooms over 80,000 applications of his "Hair Dye." These facts speak the whole story, and however near others may imitate in general appearance and manner of putting up, none have approached the great and good original "Liquid Hair Dye" made, sold and applied in nine private rooms by Batchelor, at 223 Broadway. Citizens and strangers are invited to examine the workmanship, the hour, models, &c., at the above rooms. The real effects of improper hair dyes are counteracted and restored by an application of "Batchelor's." For further particulars see advertisement in another column

DEPLORABLE DEPRAVITY.—Considerable scandal has been created in town during a day or two past, by the return of two culprits, handcuffed, from Cleveland, Ohio, where it is supposed their conduct with each other has not been altogether of the most approved kind. These culprits were a man and a young girl—we do not choose to mention names—the man far advanced in life, and having a family dependent upon his toil for their support. He was more over a member of various benovolent societies, and an office holder in an orthodox church, where he was noted for his piety; the girl was a foolish creature, and under eighteen years of age. Yet this man and girl left this place a few months since, and have just been found in Cleveland by the enraged father of the girl, and brought together here by habeas. Newburg, and the man lodged in jail. What deplorable degradation is evinced on the part of the parties to all this mischief! If this man is proved guilty of the crime imputed to him, who would save him from the State prison.—Newburg Gazette.
