"SATURDAY MORNING, NOV 17, 1855.

The Next Session of Congress.

The session of the National Congress which assembles next month, will perhaps be the most important which has transpired for the last dozen years-the most important, at least, since the famous extra seesion called by President Harrison, and during which the whigs, flushed with triumph and chard eider," attempted to engraft again upon the country that, condemned institution, a National Bank Like that Congress, too, the thirty-fourth will be composed of a large majority of opponents of the Democratic party. They will go to the National Capitol each with his own particular hobby, but all animated with hatred to the Democratic party. They will go there representing the views and wishes of the halfdozen factions into which our opponents are di vided, and while their paramount object will be to dig a pit in which to bury the hated Democracy, the representatives of each will have an eye to windward, and will not fail, if the opportunity offers, to tumble each other into the same or a similar pit The leaders of Know Nothingusm cannot affiliate with the leaders of the so-called Republicans; and this want of sympathy will be fully and cordially reciprocated by the Republicans, and thus, while the leaders of these two most powerful factions of the opposition, will be arrayed in all the bitterness of hate, engendered by defeat, against the minority of the House, and the majority of the Senate, they will be in reality ready to cut each others' throats in order to appropriate to themselves all the hopedfor -poils incident to a successful campaign next Fall This state of facts-these plots and counter-plots among the friends of the various aspirants for Presidential honors on the opposition roll of Fame-will, of themselves, make the session one of no ordinary interest. But in addition to this, the state of the Democratic party. both in that body and throughou the country. is of a character that will largely tend to increase the interest, as well as the anxiety of the people Not that we think the Democratic party is in a position of peril, either from the majority of the House, or from the condemnation of the people As we said last week, our party will present au unbroken front, and rally around its standard bearer, when selected, with renewed enthusiasm still, as a great deal of the preparation for the Compaign next year, will necessarily devolve upon the Democratic members of this session. we cannot shut our eves to the fact that the wisdom or the want of wisdom they will display in treat ing the question's that may be brought before New York Tribune school; and upon it the Bufthem, will have an important bearing upon the fale ('ommercial makes these sensible remarks: nomination, if not upon the result But the various phases of the coming Presidential con test which the new Congress will evolve, is not alone the reason why all eyes will be turned up- as a State The free soil sentiment of the Teron its doings It will open with a violent strug. ritory is becoming every day stronger and strongle for the offices at the disposal of the House The names of the aspirants for these honors are the people, when admitted, will form their own already numerous; each one has his friends, and | constitution, the only effect of delay on the al-
