BLACK AND WHITE.

Happening to pick up, the other day, two reent and very popular publications, the striking outrast they presented in certain phases of hu-. man condition, the poculiar reverse they pictured of currently received social opinions, arrested our attention. The one, from Dickens' "Household Words," shows us human suffering and human neglect, limned by the pencil of Mr. Dickens, himself an eye-witness, such as we could otherwise hardly believe to exist in a ('hristian age and christian country The other, from Olmstead's "Scaboard Slave States," (published by Dix & Edwards, N Y)furnishes a graphic, and we have no doubt an accurate, view of negro life in the South, but one that will be found to coincide very little with the notions entertained by those who see misery and wretchedness only out of freedom, and fancy that liberty alone brings an | was lost. ample beritage of happiness.

From Household Words A MIGHTLY SCRUE IN LONDON.

On the fifth of last November, I, the conductor of this journal, accompanied by a friend well known to the public, accidentally strayed into Whitechapel. It was a miserable evening; wry dark, very muddy, and raining hard.

There are many woful sights in that part of London, and it has been well known to me in most of its aspects for many years. We had forgotten the mud and rain in slowly walking along and looking about us, when we found ourselves. at eight o'clock, before the workhouse.

Crouched against the wall of the workhouse. in the dark street, on the muddy pavement stones with the raining upon them, were five bunkle of rags. They were motionless, and had no resemblance to the human form. Five great beehives, covered with rags-five dead bodies takes out of graves, tied neck and heels, and covered with rags-would have looked like those five bunadles upon which the rain rain rained down in "What is this" said my companion. "Whi is this?"

"Some miserable people shut out of the cisual ward, I think." and I

We had stopped before the five ragged mounds and were quite rooted to the spot by their horrible appearance. Five untui Sphiuzes by th wayside, crying to every passer by, "Stop and guess! What is to be the cul of a state of sociers that leaves us here?" As we stood looking at them, a decent working man, having the appearance of a stone mason touched me on the shoulder "This is an awful sight, sir," said be, "in Christian country."

"God knows it is, my friend," said I "I have often seen it much worse than this, as I have been going home from my work. I have counted fifteen, twenty, five and twenty, many a time It's a shocking thing to see

"A shocking thing, indeed," said I and my companion together. The man lingured near us in little while, wished us good night, and went on We should have felt it brutal in us, who had man, to leave the thing as it was, so we knocked at the workhouse gate I undertook to be spokespanion I lost no time in passing the old porter, nounce and abominate them in their insanity;

"Be so good as to give that card to the master of the workhouse, and say I shall be glad to speak to him for a moment '

We were in a kind of covered gateway, and the old porter went across it with the card. Before he had got to a door on our left, a man in a cloak returning the compliment

"Now, gentlemen," said he, in a loud voice. "what do you want here?" "First," said I, "will you do me the favor to look at that card in your hand? Perhaps you may know my paine

"Yes, ' says he, looking at it. "I know this "Good I only want to ask you a plain question in a civil manner, and there is not the least occasion for either of us to be angry It would be very foolish in me to blame you, and I don't blame you I may find fault with the system you administer, but pray understand that I know you are here to do a duty pointed out to you, and that I have no doubt you do it Now, I hope you won't object to tell me what I want to know." "No," he said, quite mollified, and very reasonable, "not at all What is it?" "Do you know that there are five wretched creatures outside" "I haven't seen them, but I dare say there

"Do you doubt that there are?"

"No, not at all. There might be many more. "Are they men, or women?"

"Women, I suppose Very likely one or two of them were there last night, and the night be-

I ask, for this reason; that we mean to give them a trifle to get a lodging-if they are not shelterless because they are thieves, for instance. You don't know them to be thieves?"

"I don't know any thing about them," he repeated, emphatically. "That is to say, they are shut out, solely be

"Do you know any of these others?"

Iknow her next but one. She was here last | night, and she told me she came out of Essex. I don't know no more of her." "You were here all last night, but you have not been here all day?" "No. Not all day." "Where have you been all day?" "About the streets." "What have you had to eat?"

"Nothing."
"Come!" said I. "Think a little. You are red and have been asleep, and don't consider what you saying to us. You have had something to est to-day Come! Think of it!" "No, I have'nt. Nothing but such bits as could pick up about the market. Why, look at

She bared her neck, and I covered it up again. "If you had a shilling to get some supper and lodging, should you know where to get it?" "Yes. I could do that."

"For God's sake get it then!" I put the money into her hand, and she feebly rose up and went away. She never thanked me, never looked at me-melted away into the miserable night, in the strangest manner I ever saw. I have seen many strange things, but not one that has left a deeper impression on my memory than the dull impassive way in which that worn ness. At one end there is a great open fireout heap of misery took that piece of money, and

One by one I spoke to all the five. In every one, interest and curiosity were as extinct as in the first They were all dull and languid. No one made any sort of profession or complaint; no one cared to look at me; no one thanked me.— When I came to the third, I suppose she saw that my companion and I glanced, with a new horror appears like a fierce furnace. The chimnies of upon us, at the two last, who had dropped against each other in their sleep, and were lying like little precaution can be taken against this danbroken images. She said she believed they were | ger. Several cabins are placed near together, young sisters. These were the only words that and are called "the quarters" On a plantation were originated among the five.

And now let me close this terrible account with a redeeming and beautiful trait of the poorest of the poor When we came out of the workhouse, we had gone across the road to a public house, finding ourselves without silver, to get change for a sovereign. I held the money in my hand while I was speaking to the five appa-lock up closets, and every two having a common ritions. Our being so engaged, attracted the at-kitchen or living room, are accommodated tention of many people of the very poor sort usual to that place; as we leaned over the mounds of rags, they eager!y leaned over us to see and hear; what I had in my hand, and what I said, and what I did, must have been plain to nearly all the concourse. When the last of the five had got up and faded away, the spectators opened to let us pass; and not one of them, by word, or look, or gesture, begged of us. Many of the observant faces were quick enough to know that it would have been a relief to us to have got rid of the rest of the money with any hope of doing good with it. But there was a feeling among them all, that their necessities were not to be placed by the side of such a spectacle; and they opened a way for us in profound silence, and let Linseed Oil, Spirits of Turpentine, Co-

My companion wrote to me, next day, that the five ragged bundles had been upon his bed all night I debated how to add our testimony to that of many other persons who from time to time are impelled to write the newspapers, by having come upon some shameful and shocking sight of this description | I resolved to write in those pages an exact account of what we had seen, but to wait until after Christmas, in order that there might be no heat or haste. I know that the upreasonable disciples who push arithmetic and political economy beyond all bounds of sense, (not to speak of such a weakness as a better chance of being heard than the working humanity,) and hold them to be all sufficient for humanity,) and hold them to be all sufficient for THE every case, can easily prove that such things HEW YORK HORTICULTURAL REVIEW. ought to be, and that no man has any business man The moment the gate was opened by an to mind them Without disparaging those inold pauper, I wont in, followed close by my com- disponsable sciences in their sanity, I utterly refor I saw in his watery eye a disposition to shut and I address people with a respect for the spirit

HOW SLAVES ARE FED AND LODGED.

I said I supposed that they were much better and hat hounced out of it very sharply, as if he off, more improved intellectually, and more kindwere in a nightly habit of being bullied and of ly treated in Virginia than further south. But a well informed capitalist and slaveholder said I was mistaken in both respects-that in Louisiana, especially, they were more intelligent, because the amaigamation of the races was much be seen the small be seen.

For instance, they required the planter to give slaves 200 pounds of pork a year; and he gave a very apt anecdote, showing the effect of this law, but which at the same time made it evident that a Virginian may be accustomed to neglect providing sufficient food for his force, and that they sometimes suffer greatly for want of it.

I was ascured, however, that this was very rare—that generally the slaves are well provided for—a lways allowed a sufficient quantity of meal, and generally, of pork—were permitted to raise pigs and poultry, and in summer could always grow as many vegetables as they wanted. The general allowance of food was thought to be a peck and a balf of meal, and three pounds of bacon a week.
