Welcome, welcome, as the sumahin In the face of Little Kate,

That comes proping bright, with beauty, Through the pickets of the gate. Low and clear her laugh is ringing.

Like a bird-note wild and free, And I almost see the dimples Curl her coral lips in glee

There she stands, among the forward Sure no fairer one is there, The' the rose sends gushing fragramm, And the woodvine fans her hau

> List-her votes's lisping sweethe Gentie sephyrs wait to me, While she talks with "Katy Darling"

Just to soft as soft can be. Now, her bonnie blatht byes sparkie Now, long lashes freep her cheek, Shedding softly o'er its brightness,

Beauty strangely mild and meet Drooping, like the scented lilly, Is her bashful, bending head,

And her glances, tender, leaving all around her magie shed. Oh ! nweet Kate, how could you leave us !

Why, my subbeam, did you stray ? Thy fair house seemed wreathed in shadows While dear Kaje was far away.
