THE WANING YEAR.

From the old woods, dim and lonely,
Comes a moan,
There the winds are sighing only:
"Summer's gone!"
All the bright and sunny hours,
And the green and leafy bowers,
With the Summer's latest flowers,
Are fall'd now
And the glory
Of the waning year
Has been trampled with frost-leaves,
And the gathering of the sheaves
Tell us Autumn is here

Now the winds go softly moaning
Through the trees,
And the forest trees are groaning
Mournful tales
Of dewars that surely gather,
Of the coming wintry weather,
Of the snow, that like a feather
Soon will fall:
And the call
Of Death is sighing
Over all the rippling streams
And the Summer's imperial gleams
Are sadly dying

'Tis the waning, waning twilight
Of the year
That hovers now, all strangely bright,
Round us here
And soon the year will pass away,
Like the light of an Autumnal day,
Adown old Winter's dim highway
To its tomb
And the gloom
Of the Silent Land
Will rest in the bright years down
And the winds of Time will moan
Over the dreamless land

A True and Romantic Story of Bravery.

In Gen Bean's report to Gen Walker, detailing the desperate and successful retreat of the remaining forces from this place, the following passage occurs:

"The wife of Mr Bingham, an American woman, deserves honorable mention for the heroism which she was the Nightingale of the army. She was deeply cut off with her child by fever."

Mrs Bingham went out to Nicaragua with her husband and family, in the month of October last. Her husband was at that time unable to walk, having been deprived of the use of his limbs about two years ago from a burst vessel in the back. From the time of her arrival in Nicaragua, Mrs. Bingham was occupied in the city with attending to the sick and the wounded of Gen Walker's army—a strong aid to the prince of camp disease, every where, but owing on the part of the valid soldiers such kind attentions and such treatment as to evince the deepest gratitude and most friendly regard.

But her heavy work in the hospitals proved fatal to her child, a lovely girl of four years, arriving by the last steamer, and it sickened from the prevalent fever in three days.

This is not the last we hear of Mrs Bingham. She has been found on the battle field and on the sick bed, soothing and consoling the dying. Her life has been a romance, full of suffering and heroic endurance.

Her husband, Charles Edward Bingham, familiarly known at a large circle of acquaintance as "Ned" Bingham—a handsome and high-spirited young man—has been heard from in the rear of the Mexican war he was one of the aids-de-camp of Gen Taylor, with the rank of Orderly, and went through the whole campaign under Gen Ringgold and Ready. His daring gained him many distinctions, and he was frequently selected for enterprises requiring great boldness and address. In the course of the war Mr Bingham became acquainted with the daughter of an American officer, at that time a widow, in Gen Taylor's camp, a woman whose kindness of heart had already made her a favorite with every visitor to the sick and wounded. She with her noble sympathies and generous nature, what was at first admiration soon ripened into love. They were married and remained for years at San Luis Potosi, Mr Bingham having resigned his position in the army. At the end of this time Mr Bingham undertook a hazardous project of running a mule train from Potosi to San Francisco where he proposed to resume his profession. After running his train in the middle of Winter for San Francisco, his wife, who was the mother of twins about six months old, and accompanied by a single attendant. The party were reported as dead. After a long succession of privations and suffering they reached their destination, having gone a distance of some fifteen hundred miles.

Soon after arriving at San Francisco Mr Bingham, in connection with others erected the first theatre built in that city, and became its manager. Mrs Bingham made her first appearance on its boards, showing a fair degree of talent and considerable versatility. During her stay in California, Bingham's pecuniary affairs greatly fluctuated. Twice his theatre was burned down in San Francisco, once in Sacramento, and once in Marysville. About one year before he left California he sent his wife home to the States on a visit to her friends. When his resources were nearly exhausted, he chanced to meet Susan and Kate Denin, who were then on a professional tour in California, the former of whom became enamoured of him, and as she was about to return to New York, urged him to go also, promising to secure him a profitable engagement at the Bowery Theatre here. It will be remembered that Susan was some time previously married in this State to Mr Woodward, a merchant of Sparta, who accompanied her to California, in the double capacity of husband and business agent. Mr Woodward could not regard the intimacy between his wife and Mr Bingham without pangs of jealousy and displeasure, but his efforts to influence her were of no avail, and the parties consisting of the Denins, Woodward and Bingham, finally sailed together for this city, in the year 1855

While on the passage to Panama, Woodward succeeded in exciting, among certain of the passengers, a strong dislike towards his rival, which at length took the form of open threats, and in Mr. Bingham to secrete himself from their search. On arriving at Panama a number of the friends of Woodward assembled about Mr Bingham's state room door, armed with knives and revolvers. Through this crowd "Ned" forced his way, revolver in hand, without being assaulted, while in the act of mounting the steps of the American Hotel, at Panama, in the midst of a promiscuous crowd, just landed from the steamer, he was shot in the back, and fell to the ground. In the confusion the assassin was not detected, though suspicion was fixed upon a certain individual, supposed to be the tool of Woodward. From the effect of this shot Bingham was laid up in Panama, for about seven weeks, and completely lost the use of his lower limbs; nor has he at any time since been able to walk. Recovering sufficiently to be moved, he came on to New York, physically helpless, and completely destitute of funds. For a time he was nursed at the house of a friend, and was thence removed to the City Hospital

His wife, who was playing at some Provincial Theatre, now heard of the arrival of her husband and as soon as possible, joined him. Mrs Bingham procured employment at the Bowery Theatre, and endeavored to support her husband and three children, all of whom were entirely dependent on her exertions. After struggling in this way for some months, the Bowery Theatre was closed last Summer in consequence of difficulties between its proprietors, costing her a situation, and with it her only means of sustenance. During the past year, Bingham and his family occupied wretched apartments in a tenement house in Stanton street, and after the theatrical ruse had failed were obliged to rely for subsistence on the voluntary contributions of friends and public charity. In August last Mrs. Bingham was confined. Deprived of her assistance, the family was almost reduced to starvation. Frequently Mr. Bingham relates, he passed thirty six and forty-eight hours without tasting a morsel of food, and knew of no source from which relief would come. The Baptist Society in Stanton street contributed something to their support, and a trifling aid came from members of his own profession. Two of the children—boys, aged eight and ten years—were taken by the proprietors of a traveling circus, who agreed to support them for their services, such as they might be.

The mother at length became well enough to go out, and spent several days in the futile attempt to procure work

At length when the hope of bearing up against misfortune was almost exhausted, she came across the advertisement of the Nicaraguan agency, which offered to every emigrant who would go to Nicaragua, a free passage and a certain number of acres of land. Mr. Bingham, being well enough in body, except that his lower limbs were useless and thinking he could teach school or otherwise employ himself in Nicaragua—that at all events he was no more likely to starve there than here, concluded to take his family thither as soon as possible. Another inducement was that he had known Gen. Walker in San Francisco, who confided to him his plans of invasion at that time, and urged him to join his fortunes.

In October last this unfortunate family emigrated for Nicaragua, as already stated, and it seems, became connected in some capacity, with Walker's army. Since their departure nothing has been heard from them here until the recent news of the death of Mrs Bingham. Mr Bingham, as may all, has a brother, now residing in New York who recently returned from a voyage to the Sandwich Islands where he was employed in the services of King Kamehameha III. We are not aware that there are any other relatives of the family living.

[illegible] story as we have given it from those who are [illegible] you can rely on. We shall be glad to receive any further statement which may interest the further statement which may have escaped our notice, and will be happy to receive expert need in the [illegible] Nicaragua army.

Daughter of Yellow Smoke.

Many years ago the Omaha Indians were a powerful tribe. The beautiful prairies of Nebraska, which lay North of the Platte River, belonged to them, and far North and West they hunted on the war path and the game was plenty. Brave and brave warrior, he [illegible] of his nation

His daughter, Necomah, was the flower of the [illegible] many of the young braves sought to win her beauty. But all [illegible] except Tanugah, the [illegible] were armed without game, and [illegible] came from the warpath with [illegible] Necomah, and he [illegible]

For a time [illegible], the day had arrived for the consummation of their marriage, and the presents [illegible] and horses were already gathered at the lodge of her father, while within [illegible] and venison was boiling over the [illegible]

Among the Indians, as among [illegible] true love never did run [illegible] at the auspicious moment [illegible] and reported a hostile band of the Sioux encamped not far distant. In a moment [illegible] and braves were arrayed in their war dress, and the war paint glowed on their faces. Tanugah had no bride farewell and his dark [illegible] sight of far off over the prairie

A fierce and sanguinary battle was fought, and among the Omahas were sent untimely to the [illegible] and among others in the thickest of the fight fell the Brave Tanugha. The news [illegible] came to the village of the Omahas [illegible] squaws wept and wailed for the departed [illegible] But there was one who took no part in the [illegible] of mourners—one who wept not, mourned not—was Necomah. Her bright eyes [illegible] lighted up with an unearthly fire, and the medicine men of the tribe said she was mad and that [illegible] had left the body and gone to the [illegible] and the conjurors told Yellow Smoke [illegible] daughter must be taken to the great Sulphur Spring near the old Council Bluff, [illegible] waters which were a great medicine [illegible] back its spirit and restore the reason [illegible] And so the chief started, but [illegible] laughter died of a broken heart. [illegible] believing in the efficacy of the Spring [illegible] "medicine to a mind diseased," he took [illegible] high bluff over the white [illegible] and there buried them

And to this day the grave of Necomah [illegible] and the rude fence about it still stands, though the big wig-wams of the pale faces [illegible] and every moon the [illegible] visits the resting place of [illegible] and leaves upon the grave a cup of [illegible] waters that the troubled spirit of Necomah may drink therefrom and be healed.

But [illegible] was the medicine men of the [illegible] patients to the new Saratoga, [illegible] began to rise, and a wealthy company has begun the erection of a magnificent hotel near to [illegible] spring, where a thriving town, called Saratoga, is growing up near the grave of the dusky maiden and the tramp of civilization in its westward march is crushing into silence the rustling of the [illegible] on the long prairie grass.—New York Day Book.

A MISERABLE SWINDLER.—The Ledger tells [illegible] Mr E., who was admitted as a free patient in the Massachusetts General Hospital about two months since, and while lying on [illegible] sickness managed to secure the confidence and affections of his nurse, a Miss T. The [illegible] woman recoiled to her loved patient [illegible] she had saved out of her earnings, over $400, and this financial statement induced Mr E. to make a declaration of his love, which was gladly received and reciprocated by the [illegible] As soon as the patient became convalescent, a week before Christmas, the wedding came off, and the happy pair took lodgings at [illegible] hotels. On the morning after the [illegible] the husband proposed to his wife to [illegible] would be more convenient and safer to have [illegible] Tarion, then represented in bank bills, exchanged into gold. The wife assented, and handed him the bills, which he left the house with and has not been heard of since. Both [illegible] swindle the wife was left completely penniless, not having money enough to even pay the hotel bill. The swindler had been previously married but was discovered from his wife's application.—Boston Telegraph

A STRANGE DIVORCE CASE.—In Cincinnati they have a Judge named Van Hamm, to whose Court all virtuous dames, accused of infidelity or marital rows will undoubtedly flock. A few days ago, a Mr Sledge petitioned for divorce, charging his wife with adultery with her own nephew, Mr Harper. It was proved that Mrs S., during a severe illness, was attended and nursed exclusively by Harper, he officiating in no respects as a female nurse. It was also proved that on July last, Harper and Mrs S. travelled together through New York and New Jersey, and that at all the hotels they stopped at the names were recorded as man and wife, and that on several occasions they occupied the same room and the same bed. The Court said, however reprehensible the conduct of the parties, there was no proof of adultery, and he dismissed the case. Harper was twenty two years of age, and the lady thirty-five.

Physicians and their Modes of Treatment of Diseases.

There is no subject on which there is so much [illegible] controversy among the practitioners and professors as that of the PRACTICE OF MEDICINE. One school of physicians will blister, bleed, administer [illegible] calomel and hundred drugs until the enfeebled patient sinks under their weight, and should he die, the practitioner will tell you that the patient's constitution could not bear treatment, when the facts were the treatment was not to be borne even by one in perfect health. How then could reason expect one in imperfect health!

Another school of practitioners will tell you that water alone will cure all the complaints of man. Still another administers herbs, roots, and so on to the end of the chapter. The different schools being as numerous as their theories

When Benjamin Franklin, by the simple means of his kite, brought the electricity from the Heavens, the world wondered what use he could make of it. What did he do? He, like [illegible] thing, as the benefactor of Mankind, applied it to the saving of human life from destruction by that subtle fluid electricity. And in this there is a remarkable similarity between the experiments and results of the Great Tamer of Lightning and those of Prof. Charles De Grath, the discoverer and maker of the great ELECTRIC OIL. Prof. De Grath's experiments commenced with simple means years ago and have gone on until with years of [illegible] unrivalled exertion he has produced, at Philadelphia, the second Franklin's success, a wonder second only to that of his great forerunner.

Than this astonishing Annihilator of the ills and pains of Man, there does not exist a more meritorious medicine, nor one which has drawn such universal and undivided testimonials in its favor. Read all who have given it a simple trial as to its virtues. Physicians, Editors, Congressmen, Mayors of cities, Hotel proprietors and first-class Merchants, in the cure of such diseases and affections as the following—not everything—Rheumatism, Fever and Ague, Deafness, Gout, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Sciatica, Spinal and Kidney complaints, Tic Doloreux, Headache, Cramps, Croup, Piles, Sprains and Bruises, Cuts and Wounds, Swellings, Colds, Stiff Joints, Scrofula, Erysipelas, Sore Nipples, Chapped Breast, Wounds, Burns, Scalds, Salt Rheum, Canker in the mouth and stomach, Pimples, Blotches, Eruptions, Caked Breast, Quinsy, Sore Throat, Palsy, Fever Sores, Ulcers, Lock Jaw, Heart Burn, Tooth and Earache, Neuralgia, Costiveness, Burns, Sore Gums of teething infants, &c

As an example of the estimation in which it is held by one of the ablest jurists and writers on law, &c., in this country, we subjoin a letter received by Prof. De Grath, from John Livingston, Esq., Editor of the well known Monthly Law Magazine, 120 Broadway, New York; a word of such testimony is of more weight among the best classes of the country, than volumes from unknown sources

GIRARD HOUSE, Philadelphia,
May 7th, 1856.

Prof. Charles DeGrath—I freely give it as my opinion that your "Electric Oil" is among the most wonderful remedies of the times. At the earnest request of a lady who alleged she had relieved of a most painful affection by its use, I was induced to buy a bottle, though at the time of purchasing, I had [illegible] a quack medicine and a catch penny humbug. But [illegible] convinced me that it does possess a magic power, and is [illegible] a blessing to suffering humanity

I recently took a cold from sleeping in damp sheets, and it became so much swollen and painful, that I could [illegible] my head

After using, without success, everything prescribed by [illegible] can, I last evening tried your Electric Oil. This morning I am well, the relief having been as complete as it was instantaneous.

Yours very truly,
JOHN LIVINGSTON,
Editor Monthly Law Magazine,
167 Broadway & 120 West Fourteenth st., N. Y.

Mr. Livingston belongs to the old Wealthy and highly respectable families of the first settlers of New York. Any one can address him on the subject of the above letter, which will be answered with pleasure.

The Medical Faculty have also spoken in unmistakeable terms of this remedy. See this

LETTER FROM DR. KEYSER

PHILADELPHIA,
May 29, 1856

Prof. DeGrath, 39 South 8th street, Philadelphia

I have a remarkable cure. Deputy Sheriff Kerr, of Pittsburgh, had a very swollen and painful hand. I applied the oil personally, which gave instant relief. He has recommended the Oil to others afflicted with rheumatism, in which the results were most satisfactory.

Yours, very truly,
GEORGE H. KEYSER, M. D.

Dr. Keyser stands in the first ranks of his profession in Pittsburgh.

The Clergy having themselves and some of their families so healed almost as miraculously as the miracles of Scripture, a case of complaints that made life a burden and impaired their usefulness in their calling, have not been backward in recommending this alleviator of suffering to thing people. The Reverend gentleman, whose letter we publish below, insisted on taking a dozen of Prof DeGrath's cards and pamphlets and handing them personally to members of his church and of the [illegible] Conference of M. E. Church in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA,
June 4th, 1856

Prof. DeGrath—My dear sir—I must inform you of the beneficial effects I have experienced from your Electric Oil. I have been terribly afflicted for thirteen years past with Neuralgia, and other complaints, to such an extent have my sufferings been that I have been unable to walk two squares without stopping to rest, and for five years I have not had a good night's rest, being unable to sleep from pain. About the 2d of this month I commenced using your Electric Oil, taking about ten drops internally as well as externally to the most painful parts. On the first night I slept better than I had done for many years, and now, at the end of a week, I find myself well, and able to attend to my duties. Your Oil having done for me in a short time what the entire Medical Faculties of the New York Colleges of Medicine and those of the Jefferson and Pennsylvania Colleges of Philadelphia have failed to do in 13 years.

Most truly yours,
Rev. JAS. TEMPLE,
210 South street, Philadelphia

Any party can have further information if wanted by addressing the Rev. Gentleman.

We will give the following also, from a Merchant of New Haven Connecticut:

ALEXANDRIA,
July 19th, 1856

Prof. DeGrath,—Dear Sir:—My son struck a nail into his foot and was unable to walk without the use of a crutch. One application of Prof. Chas. DeGrath's Electric Oil, he was entirely relieved of pain and could walk without the use of a crutch. I believe he was saved from becoming permanently lame by it. I would therefore, recommend it to all whose class of complaint it professes to cure.

JOHN ARNOLD, Hatter

We might go on adinfinitum with these letters of testimony, but our space will not permit, and the above will convince all who read, any doubts, and leave before us none whatever of its genuineness.

The sale of this Great Remedy has been unprecedented, as no one alone, over $1,200 worth was sold, and wherever it is known there it is used. Purcell, Ladd & Co., of Richmond, bought one year over $1,200 worth; Barnes & Park of New York [illegible] worth Seth J Hance, of Baltimore, over $4,000. J D Park, of Cincinnati $1,000 worth, and other large Druggists all over the United States.

All the late Railroad accident on the North Pennsylvania Railroad near Philadelphia, many so many were [illegible] Prof DeGrath offered his services and many were saved from having them limbs amputated and being cripples for life, by the timely application of his great Electric Oil.

It is needless to say their thanks were overwhelming, and that [illegible] scarce to manufactured fast enough to meet the [illegible]

This Electric Oil takes the pain from a burn in two minutes and leaves no scar. Dont use any thing else for burns. Wm Elliott, Esq., Washington, extensive druggist says, [illegible] cured a gentleman a lame leg, and Messrs. Barnes & Park, N. Y. published the cure of Wm. P. Beers, Esq., of a fracture of the ankle. L. Wood, of Wood's Philadelphia Museum, [illegible] Georgia. Geo Wunderick, Artist, No. 40 Lafayette street, [illegible] cured in one day. Charles Davenport's children, Adelaide [illegible] cured of Mumps, Broad and Cuthbert streets—the wife of Nathan Jones Ott, Esq., Hotel, between Ohio and 9th sts., Richmond, cured in two days. Jacob Hafer, Diamond street [illegible] Road, cured each [illegible] W. Wyns, Esq., large Furnishing Store, Chesnut street, if it cured him. The Rev. C. Peters [illegible] acted like a charm with him, and many, many others [illegible] many editorial notices have been voluntarily given [illegible] Balm—instance "Washington Star, "Understand Dr. [illegible] Philadelphia, New York and Boston papers, although we [illegible] not to see such notices, relying on the [illegible] know that if it has no merit, the newspapers, it would go down sooner by having it noticed beyond its merits. This is a [illegible] preparation to command and put up, and we cannot advise [illegible] puffs, like those Doctors whose medicines are in nature of [illegible] water. This Oil cannot be adulterated with any thing that is cheapen it, without spoiling it. Capt Jas M Turner of New Castle, Del and hurt his back, could not walk—went to work [illegible] rubbing with this Oil cured him

CAUTION FOR SAFETY

As there have lately sprung up many base imitations of this article, which the makers dare call Electric Oil, I deem it my duty to the public on their guard. DeGrath's Electric Oil has a handsome sweet as cologne, and always leaves you better than it found you. One bottle always produces an effect, often a complete cure. You must be sure therefore, that you ask for and get the name is blown in every bottle—thus, Prof DeGrath's Electric Oil Philadelphia.

FOR THE RAPID CURE OF Colds, Coughs, and Hoarseness.

BRISTOL, MASS., 20th Dec., 1856.

DR. J. C. AYER: I do not hesitate to say the best remedy I have ever found for Coughs, Hoarseness, Influenza, and the consumptive symptoms of a Cold, is your Cherry Pectoral. Its constant use in my practice and my family for the last ten years has shown it to possess superior virtues for the treatment of these complaints.
