11 Dr. Hardman treats Consumption, Bronchitts, Asthma, Laryingtia and all diseases of the throat and itings by Middle and Erikala-riox, latey used in the Brompton Hospital London. The great point in the treatment of all human maiadies, is to get at the disease in the direct manner. All medicines are estimated by their action upon the organ requiring relief. This is the important hos upon which I shaladies is based. If the integrated diseased, we take medicines directly into the stomach. If the lungs are diseased, breathe or ionale medicated vapors directly into the lungs.—

Medicines are the antidotes to disease and should be applied to the very seat of disease. Inhalation is the application of this principle to the treatment of the lungs, for it gives us direct access to those intricate aircells and those which lie out of reach of every other means of administering mediciness. The reason that consumption, and other diseases of the lungs, have heretofor resisted all treatment has been because they have never been approached in a direct manner by medicines. They were intended to act upon the lungs, and yet, they were so administered that they should may act constitutions; yet appending their principal and immediate action upon the unoffending stomach. Their action was intended to be local, and yet, they were so administered that they should may act constitutions; yet pending the principal and immediate action upon the unoffending stomach, whilst the foul along within the lungs were unproblested. Inhalation brings the medicine in direct contact with the disease, without the disadvantage of any rioent action. Its application is no simple, that it can be simployed by the nouncest tufant or feeblest invalid. It does not derange the stomach, it further in the smallest degree, with the strength, comfort or business of the patients.
