I began life by running away from home .-Bolleau, we are told, was driven into his career by the hand of fate and the peck of a turker.

Atilla started in life with no other course and capital than an old sword, which he was indroit enough to them of for the fivine weapon of Mars; and Ropespierrs owed his political career to wetting his stockings; and there heard "the words which burn," which fired his soul and determined his souless in life. My running away from home arose from a minor mortification, caused by carrying a pretty girl over the brook.

Donald Lean and myself were good friends at fourteen years of age, and we both regarded, with little more than friendship, pretty Helen Graham, "our eldest girl," at school. We remped and denced together, and this lasted for such a length of time that it is with feelings of bewilderment that I looked back upon the mys. tery of two lovers continuing friends. But the time came, as come it must, when jealously lit her spark in my boyish bosom, and blew it into a consuming flame.

Well do I remember how and when the "green eyed," perpetrated this incondiary deed. It was on a cold October evening, when Helen, Donald and myself were returning with our parests from a saighboring hamlet. As we appressed a ford where the water ran somewhat hig ier than ankie deep, we prepared to carry Helen strones, as we were accustomed to do, with hands interwoven, "chair fashion," and thus carried our pretty passenger over the brook.—Just as we were in the middle of the water-which was cold enough at that time to have from the water in the most carry than ourselves—a faint pang of jeslousy nipped my heart. Why it was I knew not, for we had carried Helen fifty times across the brook ere now, without emotion, but this evening I thought or fanced that Helen gave Donald an undue preference by ceating her pretty arm around his neck while she steedied herself on my side by holding the enf of my jacket.

No flame can bern so quickly, or with so little fuel as jeslousy. Before we had resolved the opposite bank, I was wishing Donald at the "bottom of the sea." Being naturally impetance, I burst out with—

"You need an hand sae gingerly, Helen, as if ye feared a fa. I can aye carry ye lighter than boald each half of ye."

Surprised at the vehrence of my tone our quess interposed with an admission that we were both strong, and that ahe had no idea of sparing my powers. Donald's ine was kindled and he utterly denied that I was at all qualified to compete with him in feats of carriage. On such a considerable with him in feats of carriage. highest in her affections. The reflection stimu. hated me to exert every effort, and I verily believe to this day, that I sould have carried Donald and Helen on either arm like feathers. But

I must not anticipate.

We suffered all the rest of the party to pass quietly along, and then returned to the ford lifted Helen with the utmoss care, and carried her like an infant to the middle of the water .-Jealousy had inspired a warmer love, and it was ! with feelings unknown before that I embraced ber beautiful form, and felt the pressure of her shock against mine. All went swimmingly, or rather wadingly for a minute. But alas, in the very despest par' of the ford, I trod on a treacherous bit of wood, which rested I suppose, on a smooth stone. Over I rolled, bearing Helen with me, nor did we rise until fairly soaked from head to foot. I need not describe the taunts of Donald, or and my rival demonstrated his superior ability, bearing her in his arms for a long distance on our homeward path. As we approached the house, Helen, feeling dry and beter humored, at. | Directly opposite the Furnace of Liddell, Kepler 4: Co. tempted to conciliate me. But I preserved a moody silence. . That night I packed up a few things and ran away from home. My boyish mind sensitive DRUGGISTS & APOTHECARIES, and irritated, exaggerated the negation which it had received; and prompted me to a course which fortunately led to better results than usually attends such irregularities. I went to Edinburg, where I found an uncle, a kind bearted, childless man, who gladly gave me a place in his house, ed in upon him. I became his partner—went abroad—resided four years on the continent; and finally returned to Scotland rich, educated, in short everything but married. One evening, while at a ball in Glasgow, I was struck by a young lady of prepossessing appearance, but whose remarkable beauty and high-toned expression indicating a mind of more than ordinary power. I was introduced, but the Scottish names had long been unfamiliar to my ear; and I could not catch hers. It was Helen something, and there was something in the face, too, that seemed familiar-something suggestive of pleasure and pain.

But we became well acquainted that evening. I learned without difficulty her history. She was from the country, had been educated, her parents had lost their property, and she was all the building Lumber taken in a family of the city.

I was faccinated with her conversation, and refinement of manner, that she was capable of moving with distinguished spooses in a far high. have allotted her. I am naturally neither prone to telking nor confidence; but there was that in this young lady which inspired heat. this young lady which inspired both, and I conversed with her as I had never conversed with any. Her questions of the various countries with which I was familiar, indicated a romarks. ble knowledge of literature, and an incredible store of information.

We progressed in intimacy, and as our conversation turned on the causes which induced so many to leave their native land, I laughingly re-marked that I owed my travels to falling with a pretty girl into a ford.

I had hardly spoken these words, ere the blood mounted to her face; and was encoseded by auiti a remarkable paleness.

I astributed this to the heat of the langhed-and, at her request, proceeded to give the details of my ford adventure with Helen Graham, which I did, pointing in glowing colors the artichility of my love.

Her mirth during the recital became almost irrepressible. At the conclusion she remark-

We were soon married-Hilen and I made our bridal tour to the old place. As we approached it in our carriage, I greeted a stout follow working in the field, who seemed to be a better sort of laborer, or perhaps a small farmers boy, inquiring some particulars relating to the neighborhood. He answered well exough, and I was about to give him a sixpence, when Helen stayed my hand, and cried in the old style-

"Hey, Dosaid, mon, diama ye ken ye'r cld The mon looked up in astonishment. It was Donald Loss. His assessment at our oppour-ance was heightened by its style; and it was with the greatest difficulty that we could induce him

THE sciences of Chemistry and Medicine have been taxed their aumout to produce this best, most perfect purgative which is known to insea. Insumerable proofs are shown that these Fulz have virtues which surpass is accellence the ordinary medicines, and that they wis unpressive accellence the ordinary medicines, and that they wis unpressive accellence the ordinary medicines, and that they wis unpressive the pass accellence the ordinary medicines, and that they wis unpressively upon the estimate of all maps. They are saids and pleasant to make hat powerful to curs. Their posserting properties estimates the virtal activities of the body, resorts the olderwectons of its organs, parify the blood, and apad disease. They purps out the foul humors which bread and grow diseases, stimulate slongesh or diseasered organs into their natural action, and impart identity tone with strength to the whole system. Not only do they care the everyday conjugation of every body, but also breakfable and dangerous diseases that have builted the best of human skill. While they produce powerful effects, shey are, at the same time, in the minimized dozen, the masse and best physic that can be employed for children. Being sugar conted, they are pleasant to take; and being purely regetable, are five from any risk of harm.
