JAMES B. CLAY is, after all, elected to Coagress from the Lexington District, Kentucky. Sorry—but can't help it. Traitors are seldom pusiched as they deserve, and too often absolutely researced. Strange world.—

To what party is Mr. Clay a "traitor," pray He certainly never was a Republican-neither can he be charged with Americanism, for he declared against it, and took the stump against it upon its first inception in Kentucky. Then to Most likely the latter from the location, what party is he a "traitor?" To the Whig you say? Why, he had just as good a right to form new party associations, when the Whig supports Standard, printed at Pottsville, by party disbanded, as his opponents, or the Gazette-hence, if he is a "traitor," our sotemporary is obnoxious to the same charge. Very "strange world," is'nt it!
