He then proceeded The other day an up river young 'an, who is to the residence of Mr. W. Curry, a mile or two about to forsake father and mother and cleave from town, in the absence of the family, and de anto Nancy Ann, came down to view the city, stroyed nearly every thing in the house. He and get his new suit—and, as a matter of course, says he went there "to have some fun;" broke a found his way into one of the large clothing gan, with the barrel of which he amashed the stores which abound in Market street. He did ornekery, dishes, glassware and windows; took not swagger in with that easy don't care air of a to pieces a clock and two watebes, grinding ap town bred searcher of cheap clothing, for the the works in a cider press. It then struck him verdant tint was tolerably fresh on him yet, and that the ground where the house stood would be he stopped and knocked at the door. He was at an admirable location for a circus, whereupon he ones admitted, and became perfectly bewildered built a fire on the floor and it was soon in flames, with the cordial reception he met with. The proprietor was ready to forward him a "suit" at once, if he saw fit, or they would take his measure and furnish him to order. He snaked them out in a twinkling He was particularly delighted with the trewsersthey ween long, yellow just the thing, and proceeded at once to put them ou The store had a corner curtained off for the purpose, and Nehemish was speedily closed therein

The pants had straps and the straps were but toned. Now, Nehemiah had seen straps before. but the art of managing them was a mystery -On consideration, he decided that the boots must go on first. He then mounted a chair, clevated his pants at a proper angle, and endeavored to come his legs into them. He had a time of it. His boots were none of the smallest, and the pents were none of the widest, but bending his energy to the task, he succeeded in inducing one leg into the "pesky things." He was straidled like the Colossus of Rhodes, and just in the act of raising the other foot, when whispering und giggling in his immediate vicinity made him alive to the appalling fact, that nothing but a chints curtain seperated him from twenty to thirty of the prettiest and wickedest girls that were ever caged in one shop.

Nehemiah was a bashful youth, and would rather make a circumbendibus of a mile any day, than meet those girls, even if he had been in full dress; as it was, his mouth was much aiar at the bare possibility of making his appearance among them in his present dishabille What if there was a hole in the curtain? What if he should fall? It would not bear thinking of, and plunging the foot into the vacant leg with a sort of frantic looseness, he brought on the very catastrophe he was so anxious to avoid. The chair collapsed with a sudden acrough, pitching Nehemiah heels over head through the curtain? he made a grand entrance among the spiching di vinities, on all fours, like a fettered rhinoceros

Nehemiah was a perfect "model," every inch of him, and, though not exactly revolving on a pedestal, her was going through that move ment on his back—kicking, plunging, in short, personifying in thirty seconds all the Mitudes ever chiseled! As for the girls, they sound, of course, jumped upon chairs and cutting bord threw their hands over their faces, peeped their fingers—screamed again and deale, ed they should die-they knew they should!

The goose sated expressly for thick seams, and the way it hissed the seat of his new "trowsers," was afflicting to the wearer. Nebemiah ris in an instant, and seizing the source of all his troubles by the slack, he tore himself from all save the straps, and some fragments that hung about the ankles and dashed through the store at a two forty rate, and made tracks for Boad Paving at Oldenburg, Germany.

The Acting Commissioner of Patents has re-The Acting Commissioner of Patents has received from the Department of State a copy of a

Anything in the above Line

CAN BE FOUND AT letter from Consul Epping, describing the man ner of paving roads in Oldenburg with bricks made of a peculiar clay, which, it is suggested, may be found in this country, and which may be made applicable to the same purpose in marshy districts. A box containing two ready burnt bricks, two unburnt bricks, and a small quentity of elay in its natural state, was sent to the cure of the collector of the port of New York.

Mr. Epping states that, from the absence stone, all the public roads in the marshy districts of lower Germany and Holland are being pared with these bricks. The pavement of cities are also made of them. Roads in the low and marshy country which were formerly altogether impessible for vehicles during the wet seasons of the year, sometimes for months, have become, by means of these bricks, the finest in the

The brick itself is made like any other ordinary brick, only requiring a greater amount of heat to cause the mass to melt and to form one solid and compact body, rock-like, and is then able to resist a great amount of pressure and friction.

The fuel used there for burning the brick, is turf, or bituminous coal, but the burning of the mame with coal has only lately been introduced, and found very practicable. In making roads with these bricks, the follw-ing plan is pursued in the clayey, marshy dis-Wiete: A read is formed by digging two deep and wide ditches, some forty feet spart. The earth which is gained in this way is used to raise the road somewhat above the level of the adiaosat grounds. The road itself is then prepared by digging out, about eighteen inohes deep, as much space as is wanted to be paved—say about twenty four feet wide—leaving a bank some seven or eight feet up each side.

The opening thus formed is then filled in about twelve inches deep with coarse sand, and the brick is set in on its edge without any mortar, so that the road is considerably raised in the middle-that is, the road is built so convex as to allow the water to run freely, leaving the banks on each side higher than the road, but making drains through the same for the passage of the water. After the road is finished pearse sand is always kept on the surface, to fill up the interstices and to prevent too much direct fristion. The banks on each side of the road having been left higher than the road itself to pre-vent the wind from blowing the sand off, small brash wood is then planted on the same for the still better protection of the sand. The cost of these roads is considerable, saiz thousand thelers a German mile,) from the high prior of the land taken for roads, the lowest price of land in the marshy districts being above two hundred dollars an acre. The bricks cost in Germany from eleven to twelve thelers a mile; other bricks of the best quality used for building purposes cost but seven to eight thulden a mile. These roads, however, are the cheapest in the and, costing nothing for repairs, except occocionally at first, when the bed sinks a little .-The bricks never wear out if care is taken to keep coarse sand constantly over them. The weight transported over these reads in wagons is regulated by the width of the wagon wheel. A wagon having a wheel of over six inches in width can carry from the let of November till the 1st of May, 9,000 pounds; from the lat of May till the lat of November, 11,000 pounds. The largest width a wagon may load to is eleven feet, and two wagons cannot follow each other in the same track.

Physicians and their Modes of Treat-

There is no subject on which there is no meets controversy strong the practitioners and professors as that of the PRACTICE OF MENCING. Or school of physicians will bitster, bleed, administer coloniel and kindred drugs until the confiding patient sinks ander their weight, and should be die, the prectitions will tell you that the patient's constitution could not bear treatment, when the last is were the treatment was not to be borne even by one in perfect health. How then could reason expect one in imported feet health. How then could reason expect one in imperiod health?

Another school of practitioners will tail you that water alone will care all the complaints of MAN. Still snother administers herbe, roots, and so on to the end of the chapter. The different herbe, roots as numerous as their theories.

When Benjamin Franklin, by the simple means of his hits, brought the electricity from the Hanvens, the world wondered what he he could make of it. What did his do? He, the first thing, in the benefactor of Menshind, applied it to the saving of human life from destructions by that subtle fluid electricity. And in this there is a resurchable similarity between the experiments and results of the Great Tamer of Lightning and these of Prof. CHARLES DE GRAYES, the discoverer and maker of the great ELECTRIC OIL. Prof. De Grath's experiments commenced with simple means years ago had have gone on until with years of toil and unresulted exertion he has preduced, at Philadelphia, the scene of Franklin's success a wonder setond only to that of his great fore runner.

Then this astonishing a spinisher of the life and colors of Man. unner. Than this astonishing Applifilator of the ills and pains of Man Than this actonishing Annihilator of the ills and paiss of Man, there does not exist a more meritorious medicine, nor one which has drawn such universal and, undivided testimonials in its favor from all who havagiven it a shaplastral as Citegymen. Giazan Blooss, Philadelphia, May Yth, 1869.

Prof. Charles DeGrath—I freely give it as my opinion that youh "Electric Oil" is among the most wonderful remedies of modern times. At the carnest request of a lady who alleged she had been relieved of a most spainful affection by its use, I was indused to try a bottle, though at the time of purchasing, I fully believed it to be a quack medicine and a catch penny humbug. But a trial coowinces me that it

l recently took a cold from sampang in the local of turn my became so much swollen and painful, that I could not turn my head.

After using, without success, everything prescribed by my physician, I last evening tried your Electric Oil. This morning I am well, the relief having head as complete as it was instantaneous.

Yours very truly,

At the late Railroad ascident on the North Pennsylvania Railroad near Philadelphia, when so many were hopelessly mangled, Prof. DeGrath offered his services and many were saved from having them limbs amputated and being cripples for life, by the timely applicable on of his great Electric Oil.

It is needless to say their thanks were overwhelming, and the Oil can scarce to manufactured fast enough to meet the present dem.

It is seedless to say their thanks were overwhelming, and the Oil can scarce to manufactured fast enough to meet the present dem. and.

This Electric Oil takes the pain from a burn in twenty minutes and leaves no scar. Dont use may thing else for this. Wallace Elliott, Esq., Washington, setessive draggiet' says, it immediately cured a gentleman's lams log, and Massra. Barnes & Park, N. York, published the cure of Wis. F. The Great Remedy for Pulmonary Consumption Also, an effectual cure for Scrafula, Dyspepsia, Obstimute Outaneous Eruptions, Chronic Rhevity, and all discours depending upon an impure state of the blood. This Wonners. Research the blood.

This Wonners. Research has done more to alleviate human suffering than all other ments put together. It has the greatest sale of any medicine in the world for Primonany Complaints, from Maine to the most retired dwellings of Oregon, or wherever consumption is known, it finds its way, carrying health and joy into thousands of families. The most emineut physicians have been forced to acknowledge that it does core consumption, and they now use it in their practice as a standard and vur remedy.

There is no remedy equal to it in building up a system, that, under the inflence of various diseases, hardships, or exposure, has an independent of the property of the constant of the power to reach the blood, correct the vitated duids, and arrest the deposite of tuberele in the lungs, and it is as safes as it is certain in its action.

arrest the deposite of tuberele in the lungs, and it is as analy as it is action.

Take God Liver Oils, Cherry Syrups, therry Pectorsis, inhalation of Yapors, and all other payfed mostrume for this disease: combine all their striuce into one, and we should not have a remedy which would, at all, compare with this. Put all those men together who have become notorious by advertising that they can cure communition, and they cannot produce s; many real cures during their whole lifetime as we can unrish to one munt. It his may look the boasting, but it is the solemn trath. And here we would state, for the beat men in the profosolon, and as often been rejected as uscless. It has been tested and rejected for certaintes. If it is fords a nil tile relief, it is sure to be temporary, and the disease returns with lacreased violence. The reason is obvious, size. Pulmonary Consumption is not a local but a constructional instance of the remedy for all our moral its. The induced a remedy for every disease to which man is necessarily subject. However, the condity believe that Nature has provided a remedy for every disease to which man is necessarily subject. CONSUMPTION, and for the celled of consumptive patients in advanced stages and for the quilef of consumptive patients in advanced stages of the disease. We need not speak to the public of its virtues. Throughout a very town, and almost every hamlet of the American States, its wonderful cause of pulmonary complaints have made it already known. May, few are the families is my civilized country on this continent without some personal experience of its affects; and fewer yet the communities any where which have not among them none living trophy of its victory over the subtle and dangerous diseases of the throat and lungs. While it is the most powerful antidote yet known to man for the formidable and dangerous diseases of the pulmonary organs, it is also the planeautest and aniset remedy that can be employed for instants and young persons. Purents should have it in store against the instillens ensury that stasks upon them unprepared. We have abundant grounds to believe the CEURAY PECTORAL saves more lives by the consumptions it prevents than those it cures. Keep it by you, and cure your colds while they are curable, nor neglest them until no human still can master the inscoroble canker that, fusioned on the vitals, eats your life sway. All know the dreadful fishally of lung disorders, and as they know too the virtues of this remedy, we need not do more than seame them it is still made the best if can be. We spare no cost, no care, no toil to produce it the most perfect possible, and thus afford those who rely on it the best agent which our skill can furnish for their ever.
