

MOORE, PUBLISHERS.

ERIE OBSERVER.

Published Saturday

BY B. F. SLOAN, EDITOR.

Office: 29 N. Moore St.

Subscription Price

Per Annum

Per Month

Single Copies

Advertisements

Business Directory

Real Estate

Legal Notices

Public Notices

Obituary

Marriages

Deaths

Births

Funerals

Religious

Sports

Local News

Foreign News

Editorial

Correspondence

Letters

Queries

Answers

Calendar

Index

Table of Contents

Subscription List

Advertisers

Printers

Distributors

Agents

Booksellers

Stationers

Stationery

Printing

Books

Magazines

Papers

Periodicals

Publications

Booksellers

Stationers

Printers

Distributors

Agents

Booksellers

Stationers

Printers

Distributors

FOR THE SPRING-TIME

BY LOUISE E. VICKROY

The first of the season

The crystal beauty of the lake

Where the water flows

The glistening wings of the birds

The rustling of the leaves

The softness of the grass

The fragrance of the flowers

The melody of the birds

The beauty of the scene

The joy of the heart

The peace of the soul

The love of the world

The hope of the future

The faith of the heart

The charity of the hand

The kindness of the tongue

The gentleness of the spirit

The meekness of the will

The lowliness of the mind

The soberness of the life

The chastity of the body

The continence of the tongue

The temperance of the spirit

The patience of the heart

The gentleness of the hand

The kindness of the eye

The meekness of the foot

The lowliness of the head

The soberness of the face

The chastity of the hair

The continence of the ear

The temperance of the nose

The patience of the mouth

The gentleness of the throat

The kindness of the chest

The meekness of the back

The lowliness of the hand

The soberness of the arm

The chastity of the leg

The continence of the foot

The temperance of the body

The patience of the soul

The gentleness of the heart

The kindness of the mind

The meekness of the will

The lowliness of the spirit

The soberness of the life

The chastity of the body

The continence of the tongue

The temperance of the spirit

The patience of the heart

The gentleness of the hand

The kindness of the eye

The meekness of the foot

The lowliness of the head

The soberness of the face

The chastity of the hair

The continence of the ear

The temperance of the nose

The patience of the mouth

The gentleness of the throat

The kindness of the chest

The meekness of the back

The lowliness of the hand

The soberness of the arm

The chastity of the leg

The continence of the foot

The temperance of the body

The patience of the soul

The gentleness of the heart

The kindness of the mind

The meekness of the will

The lowliness of the spirit

The soberness of the life

The chastity of the body

The continence of the tongue

The temperance of the spirit

The patience of the heart

The gentleness of the hand

The kindness of the eye

The meekness of the foot

The lowliness of the head

The soberness of the face

The chastity of the hair

The continence of the ear

The temperance of the nose

MYRA, THE GIPSY GIRL.

BY LOUISE E. VICKROY

The first of the season

The crystal beauty of the lake

Where the water flows

The glistening wings of the birds

The rustling of the leaves

The softness of the grass

The fragrance of the flowers

The melody of the birds

The beauty of the scene

The joy of the heart

The peace of the soul

The love of the world

The hope of the future

The faith of the heart

The charity of the hand

The kindness of the tongue

The gentleness of the spirit

The meekness of the will

The lowliness of the mind

The soberness of the life

The chastity of the body

The continence of the tongue

The temperance of the spirit

The patience of the heart

The gentleness of the hand

The kindness of the eye

The meekness of the foot

The lowliness of the head

The soberness of the face

The chastity of the hair

The continence of the ear

The temperance of the nose

The patience of the mouth

The gentleness of the throat

The kindness of the chest

The meekness of the back

The lowliness of the hand

The soberness of the arm

The chastity of the leg

The continence of the foot

The temperance of the body

The patience of the soul

The gentleness of the heart

The kindness of the mind

The meekness of the will

The lowliness of the spirit

The soberness of the life

The chastity of the body

The continence of the tongue

The temperance of the spirit

The patience of the heart

The gentleness of the hand

The kindness of the eye

The meekness of the foot

The lowliness of the head

The soberness of the face

The chastity of the hair

The continence of the ear

The temperance of the nose

The patience of the mouth

The gentleness of the throat

The kindness of the chest

The meekness of the back

The lowliness of the hand

The soberness of the arm

The chastity of the leg

The continence of the foot

The temperance of the body

The patience of the soul

The gentleness of the heart

The kindness of the mind

The meekness of the will

The lowliness of the spirit

The soberness of the life

The chastity of the body

The continence of the tongue

The temperance of the spirit

The patience of the heart

The gentleness of the hand

The kindness of the eye

The meekness of the foot

The lowliness of the head

The soberness of the face

The chastity of the hair

The continence of the ear

The temperance of the nose

A VISIT TO DELHI.

BY LOUISE E. VICKROY

The first of the season

The crystal beauty of the lake

Where the water flows

The glistening wings of the birds

The rustling of the leaves

The softness of the grass

The fragrance of the flowers

The melody of the birds

The beauty of the scene

The joy of the heart

The peace of the soul

The love of the world

The hope of the future

The faith of the heart

The charity of the hand

The kindness of the tongue

The gentleness of the spirit

The meekness of the will

The lowliness of the mind

The soberness of the life

The chastity of the body

The continence of the tongue

The temperance of the spirit

The patience of the heart

The gentleness of the hand

The kindness of the eye

The meekness of the foot

The lowliness of the head

The soberness of the face

The chastity of the hair

The continence of the ear

The temperance of the nose

The patience of the mouth

The gentleness of the throat

The kindness of the chest

The meekness of the back

The lowliness of the hand

The soberness of the arm

The chastity of the leg

The continence of the foot

The temperance of the body

The patience of the soul

The gentleness of the heart

The kindness of the mind

The meekness of the will

The lowliness of the spirit

The soberness of the life

The chastity of the body

The continence of the tongue

The temperance of the spirit

The patience of the heart

The gentleness of the hand

The kindness of the eye

The meekness of the foot