Voice of Autumn From the Louisville Democrat Low the Autumn winds are waiting Over beauty fied :

Westping o'er her dead Through the lofty leaders branches Of the stately trees oh mearnfully -- how mourafully '--Walls the autima breeze

Oh! how strangely speaketh nature la the autumn's gloom, To the lonely dreaming spirit Of the stient tomb Again the sweet wild flowers will bloom Brightly on the plain,

Thus shall live again Low the autumn winds are whispering "Time is passing by." Ohl beauty liveth but a day,

And the immortal soul sublime,

Then prepare to die The Stolen Secret.

The main distinction between iron and stee is that one holds carbon, or the matter of charcoal, whereas the other does not. The amount of carbon is trivial, and it is imparted by heating bars for a long period together, surrounded by pewdered, broken charcoal in a box Having regard, then, to this operation, it seems natural enough that the outer portion of each bar should become more "steelified" (if I may be allowed to coin an expressive word) than the internal portions. Now, steel of this sort, though perfeetly good for many purposes, is objectionable for others. To give an example: it is by no means good for the manufacture of watch-springs; nevertheless, before the invention of cast steel, to which the reader's attention is shortly to be directed, watch-springs had to be made of it

There lived in Attercliffe, near Sheffield, about the year 1769, a watchmaker named Huntsman He was very much dissatisfied with the quality of steel of which watch-springs were made in his day, and he set himself to the tack of thinking out the cause of inferiority Mr Huntsman correctly inferred that the imperfection of such watch spring- as came in his way was referable to the fact of the irregular conversion or "steelification" of the metal of their manufacture "If," thought he, "I can melt a piece of steel and cast it into an ingot, he composition of the latter should be I will r amogineous" Hi tried, and sucmental in the of Huntsman a steel became widely spread, tod the secoverer took care not to designate it by the name of cast steel, under which it is now familiarly known. That was his

Thous the year 1770, a large manufactory of this peculiar seed was established at Atterciiffe. At last Huntsman's secret was stolen ware manner:

One night in mid

Manuage of Manu a rosting fire within, a traveler to whom the desire of placing himself near a rouring fire might seem a reasonable longing, knocked at the outer door of Mr. Huntsman's factory It was a bitter night; the snow fell fast, the wind howled across the moor; nothing, then, could seem more ustural than that the tired waytarer should seek a warm corner, where he might lay his head. He knocked, and the door was opened A workman presented himself, who the wayfarer addressing, humbly begged admission

"No admittance here, except on business." Feigning to be completely worn out with cold and fatigue, the wayfarer sank upon the floor of the comfortable factory, and soon appeared to have gone asleep To go to sleep, however, was rom his intention. The traveler closed his eyes, all but two little chinks. Through these two little chinks he saw all that he cared to see. He saw workmen cut bars of steel into little bits, then place them into crucibles, with enormous tongs, pour their liquid contents into a mould. Mr. Hentsman's factory had nothing more to disclose. This was the secret of cast steel

It would be easy to extend the list of manu factured secrets disclosed in the dishonest way indiaged above. The subject, however, is so unablement to dwell upon, that I am sure the will rejoice with me that the circumstances hader which manufactures are now mostly corried on, neither afford the opportunity nor the indicionent to their, such

MYSTERY OF THE AMERICAN LAKES -Lake Ear is only 60 or 70 feet deep, but the bottom of Take Ontario, which is 592 feet deep, is 280 feet below the tide level of the occan, or as low a tost parts of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and the boltom of Lake Huron Michigan and Superior, atthough their surface is so much higher, are all, from their vast depth, on a level with the bottom of Lake Ontario.

Now, as the discharge through the river De-troit, after allowing for the full probable portion carried off by evaporation, does not appear by my means equal to the quantity of water which the three upper great lakes receive, it has been conjectured that a subterranean river may run from Lake Superior and Huron to Lake Untario This conjecture is by no means improbable, and accounts for the singular fact that salmon and herring are caught in all the lakes communicat; ing with the St. Lawrence, but in no others -As the Falls of Niagara must have always existed it would puzzle the naturalists to say how these fish got into the upper lakes without some aubterranean river; moreover, any periodical obstruction of the river would furnish a not improbable solution of the mysterious flux and reflux of the lakes.

Upon this the editor of the Scientific American remarks: 3 "Are salmon and herring found in the lakes and rivers above the Falls of Niagara? If so it afforus airong grounds for supposing there is a subterraceous communication between Ontar: and the upper lakes; if not, we can see no grounds for such conclusion "
