

Conscientious John.

That venerable trembler, for virtues cause, John Montelius; whose tender conscience made him desert his friends, and what he declared to be the cause of the constitution, has been made to father a speech, which is trumpeted forth as the very essence of truth, and honesty by the Loco Foco presses. It seems he did not when he first went to Harrisburg calculate that the filthy lucre of mammon, would be likely to work such magic changes in his belief, for below we publish a copy of a letter, written when the "blood hounds" were "ready to butcher." We ask any man of common sense, to compare the laconic style, and beautiful diction of the letter, with the grand eloquent outpourings of his injured spirit in the speech, and decide whether they were ever manufactured by the same person. But he admits, that he wrote the letter, while he was going watched—may be that is the reason.

Harrisburg Dec. 6, 1839.
9 o'clock at night.
My Friend—A revolution is at hand; no blood spilled as yet—the Capitol is in possession of the Van Buren party, and a mob of blood hounds of about 500. They drove us out this day. Government is as much as dissolved. This day the Arsenal was surrounded by them, out could not get permission as yet—we have about fifty men in for safe keeping. The Governor's house has been guarded last night and this night again—Stevens, Burrows, Penrose and Cunningham, would have been Morganized had they been at the capitol, and all this on account of the Philadelphians. Harrisburg appears not to assist us. I shall soon be home if spared—nothing but confusion like a bee-hive if they lose the queen, shouting, rejoicing in the Capitol by 100 of them ready to butcher.

I got watched so that I could hardly write these lines.
JOHN MONTELIUS
Our Course.

Many of our friends are inclined to think that our course relative to the new Governor, is characterized by more mildness, and apparent respect, than they think is due to him.
We are free to give the motives which govern our conduct on any subject, and particularly this.
When Mr. Porter was a candidate, we believed it to be our duty to give to the public, such statements as assumed the imposing character of facts. We then thought, and still think we were performing an imperative duty which we owed to our fellow citizens. We done so alike fearless of their refutation or their consequences. We done so with the determined avowal that if any thing should be produced to disprove them, that we would be among the first to render him the most ample justice.

It would be superfluous in us to say that no such refutation ever appeared or that any thing has transpired to change our deliberately formed opinion. Nevertheless, the situation of things have changed. Mr. Porter is now the Governor of Pennsylvania, and shall at all times receive that respect from us which is due to the honorable and important station which he fills. Whatever may have been his character, whatever foibles may have marked his private career, shall not be noticed by us so long as he holds the dignified office which he now fills. It is our only duty to examine his political acts as they transpire; and in doing even this, we trust, our conduct shall be governed by that spirit of fairness and frankness which should under every circumstance, be the characteristic of the conductor of a public journal. We are unbound by any party trammels in such matters. We shall censure freely and fearlessly such derelictions from the path of honor or wisdom, as we deem him guilty of; and where his policy is marked by any act which we think tends to the advancement of the interests of our common country, we shall as freely express our praise.
The spirit of personal warfare evinced during the last campaign; was urged on us by the malicious and vindictive, as well as fallacious conduct of our opponents. They lived in "glass houses" and commenced "throwing stones," if their windows suffered they have themselves to blame. The people however pronounced their verdict upon the whole; and we hold that man wanting in respect for himself, and in love for the honor of his country, who still continues the personal strife.
Let us not however be again misunderstood in this matter. When the same party again resume their "tomahawk" and commence again a hostile contest against the personal probity of our friends, we are again ready to unsheath our "scalping knife," and our blows shall fall where they are most deserved. In the mean time we again say that toward the Governor of Pennsylvania, we will ever show that respect which is due to the Governor of any State, no matter to what party he is attached. As the private of the dragons said when commanded by his general to apologise to his captain for misconduct, "Sir," says he, "I ask your pardon, so I would your horses if commanded by my general." It is duty, not regard for the individual.

PENN'A. LEGISLATURE

In the Senate on Friday the 25th ult., the loan bill was under discussion, most of the Democratic members contending for a diminution of the rate of interest from 5, to 4 per cent, and the Loco Foco against it. An amendment was finally added that if the money could not be had at 5, the Bank of the United States shall be called upon to loan at 4 per cent, when the bill passed.

In the House the following appropriation bill passed, second reading.
To the North Branch Canal, $250,000
Erie extension, 250,000
West Branch and Sinnemahoning extensions, 150,000
Wisconsin Canal, 40,000
To avoid the inclined plane at Columbusia, 30,000
Repairs of canals and rail-roads, 300,000

For the purpose of meeting which, the Governor is authorized to borrow at 5 per cent. The House also refused to pass a bill giving the right of contesting the Philadelphia county returns to the legislature. The time allowed by law having expired. This looks as if they were afraid to have the corruptions of "the party" investigated. It was offered as an amendment to a bill fixing the time for electing U. S. Senator on the 2nd Tuesday of February, which was finally agreed to.

The Senate on Saturday, had under discussion the time and manner of electing U. S. Senator, no final action was had thereon.

In the House a resolution was passed instructing the judiciary committee to report a plain and general election law under the new constitution, and also relative to betting on elections. The appropriation bill (given above) came up on third reading and was postponed until Wednesday February 1st. A resolution was offered increasing the pay of members to 4 dollars per day.

On Monday, the Senate agreed to meet the House at 12 o'clock to elect a State Treasurer.

In the House a resolution was passed authorizing the Governor to borrow $602,250 dollars to pay interest on the State loans. Mr. Cox of Somerset, appeared and took his seat. The two houses then met in convention and elected Daniel Sturgeon State Treasurer. The resolution abandoning the Gettysburg Rail Road passed through a committee of the whole. A bill was reported permitting the people in different counties to decide by a vote whether the courts shall grant licences to retailers of liquors.

On Tuesday in the Senate the resolution for authorizing the temporary loan of $600,000 passed, second reading.

In the House, a resolution instructing the judiciary committee to inquire into the expediency of abolishing the tax on collateral inheritance, passed. The Gettysburg rail road resolution passed final reading, after being amended so as to read 1st of March, instead of February, and requiring communication to be made to the House in the mean time, as to the number of contractors, and the amount due them.

In the Senate on Wednesday, the temporary loan bill came up, and passed finally. A resolution was passed authorizing the committee to count all the votes given the amended constitution and governor, whether returned by the return judges or not. The million appropriation bill was referred to the committee of inland navigation.

In the House, the same bill passed final reading.

In the Senate, on Thursday, the million appropriation bill from the House came up in committee of the whole, but the Senate adjourned before the discussion was ended.

In the House, a bill for the erection of a Poor House in Cumberland county passed, after having been amended on motion of Mr. Cunningham of Huntingdon, requiring persons to whom children are bound from said poor house, to give such children at least three months schooling a year.

On Friday in the senate, nearly the whole of the session was spent in discussing the Improvement Bill. Mr. Penrose making a long argument in favor of a road, from Chambersburg to Pittsburg; recommending an appropriation to it, and instructing the Canal Commissioners, to put part of the road under contract. Before any action was had on the bill, the senate adjourned.

In the House, numerous petitions were presented. Mr. J. Cunningham offered a resolution instructing the Com. on Inland Navigation; to report whether the welfare of the Public does not require that the turnpike roads from Huntingdon to Milerstown, should be placed under the control of State officers. The committee on the Judiciary, were instructed to bring in a bill, to more effectually prevent the destruction of timber. Messrs Wilcox, Spackman, Fleniken, Snowden, & Wall were appointed a committee to investigate the condition, and management of the Lumberman's Bank.
