

the lower limbs from the trunk must therefore have been for the purpose of stowing the body more securely beneath the floor. Dr. Kerr, the coroner's physician, states that the manner of the amputation exhibits much skill in the use of the knife, and seems the result of considerable experience in surgery.—N. Orleans Sun, March 1.

We lately heard of a minister, who had been a chaplain in Harrison's army in the late war, who a short time since, in holding forth to a congregation in Indiana, and feeling it his duty to minister to their temporal as well as their spiritual welfare, and knowing some of his hearers were supporters of Mr. V. Buren, he hit upon the following expedient: He earnestly prayed for the welfare of the whole human race, and that "God would in his mercy direct the American people to select for the chief magistracy of these United States one who was

Honest and well qualified,
A merican in principle,
Republican in heart,
To reform his aim,
Independent of political quacks,
Strong in support of our Constitution,
Open to the voice of the people, and Never oppressing them, in order to ratify the malice of individuals."
To which there was a fervid and unanimous response of "Amen!"
[By taking the first letter of each line we have the name of Harrison.]—Harrisonian.

How to become a poet.—Do not shun, or indulge too often in clean lines. The moral effects of such habits will be found pernicious to the growth of poetical hallucination. Conceive, by all means, if possible, to derange your digestive organs; this you may easily accomplish by eating inordinately and out of season, and carefully refrain from all exercise of an exhilarating kind. Thus you will induce a determination of blood to the brain, by which the intellectual powers will be rendered more active, vivid and subtle in their operation. There are also some other minor points, which, if attended to, will considerably aid the attainment of poetical qualities; as, for instance, a habit of sleeping all day, and wandering about all night—taking two or three gin cocktails and smoking cigars before breakfast—drinking whiskey punch before dinner, &c. Also, learn to eat opium, if possible, sleep with your heels higher than your head, and keep your apartments unaired and in the most perfect confusion. These little eccentricities, if persevered in for a reasonable length of time, must have the effect to derange the physical and moral powers, and thus give rise to new and strange associations of ideas—the grand secret of all originality in thought or conception.—N. Y. Evening Signal.

Gauging.—In order to satisfy public curiosity, Police Albert has submitted to a measurement, intended to show the proportions of his august person. His height, in kid slippers, is 5 feet 8 inches. His waist is 23 inches in circumference, or about 9 inches in diameter. The calf of his leg is 10 inches in circumference, or about 5 inches in diameter. (Pretty much calf, eh?) His breadth of shoulders is 18½ inches. His breadth across the hips is 14 inches. His leg to the knee joint is 18 inches. His arm to the elbow is 13 inches in length, and his red mustaches is 2½ inches. Queen Victoria measures 5 feet 3 inches in height; 4 feet 6 inches around the waist; the length of her limbs not precisely ascertained, but supposed to be very short. Her breadth of shoulders, without corsets, is 21 inches, and the expansion of her hip joints is 2 feet precisely! Such minute particulars are worth being acquainted with—at least some of the newspapers seem to think so.—Public Ledger.

SAVING TIME.—A clergyman, who had considerable of a farm, as was generally the case in our forefathers' days, went out to see one of his laborers, who was ploughing in the field, and he found him sitting upon his plough, resting his team. "John," said he, "would it not be a good plan for you to have a stubby here and be hubbing a few bushes while the oxen are resting?" John, with a countenance which might have well become the divine himself, instantly returned—"Would it not be well, sir, for you to have a swinging board in the pulpit, and when they are singing, to swindle a little flax?" The reverend gentleman turned on his heel, laughing heartily, and said no more about hubbing bushes.—Hampshire Gazette.

TRIAL FOR CONCEALING SLAVES.—In the New Orleans Criminal Court, on the 29th ult., the Captain of the ship Tecumseh was tried on an indictment containing two counts, one charging him with concealing two slaves, the property of Mr. Lalatol, on board his ship, and the other with permitting them to be concealed.—The slaves were found concealed on board of the ship of which the defendant is master. The testimony failed in establishing against the defendant the guilty purpose or knowledge charged in the indictment, and the jury returned a verdict of not guilty without leaving their box. A civil suit, entered by Mr. Lalatol against the defendant, is still pending, in which the damages are laid at $5000. The negroes at the time they left their master, robbed him of some three or four thousand dollars worth of jewelry, which has not yet been recovered.

SINGULAR LAWSUIT.—An English paper says that a singular lawsuit is now going on in Pesh in Hungary, between a butcher and a cattle dealer. The butcher had lent 1,000 florins to the dealer who sometime afterwards, called on him as he was at dinner, and laid down a note for 1,000 florins, thanking him at the same time for the loan. The window being open, the note was blown by a gust of wind into the soup tureen. The butcher took it out, and holding it by the corner to allow the grease to drain off, it was seized by his dog and swallowed. Perceiving that he had done wrong, the dog absented himself, and did not return until the evening, when he was killed and opened; but the note was, of course, by this time wholly digested. The butcher has brought an action for the 1,000 florins, which the dealer refuses to pay twice over, considering that the note having gone into the hands of the butcher, he alone ought to support the loss.
