

ner? The corner that got cornered at the borough election? Undoubtedly! they have been speculating on that lie for nearly a year; and judging from their paper, they have lost their principle.

The last beautiful simile in the article, relative to Indian, and negro dances, may be very applicable, and for aught we know, very funny. But we can say, that there are some about that paper, who have heard other bells jingle, than those used at Indian dances; and if the owners and divers of that concern, wish to know what kind of music there is in a string of them—we can only say, rattle away boys, by the time you are done you will learn that we can amuse ourself and the people in more ways than one.

“The Advocate” does not like our notice of the Borough election. The people did, however, and that satisfies us. But that valuable sheet has not told the people why Mr. Hirst was removed, while others who have not a tith of his honesty or capacity, are retained. Did he have to borrow money to make good his defalcations? He is not in favor of the specie clause! Is that it? The honest yeomanry of old Barree will not be satisfied until they hear some reason for it.

McElwee Expelled.

Since the publication of our last paper, there has been another row in the Hall of Representatives. This, however, took place during debate. Mr. Higgins, of Northumberland, it appears, would not allow the Bedford bully to brow beat him, into his measures, and had independence enough to tell the great mogul that he differed with him; whereupon McElwee let off some of his surplus steam. Mr. Higgins replied with becoming manliness, the Bedford bloodhound once on his trail, pursued him to his seat—called him a hobgoblin, d—d scoundrel, &c., and then spit in his face. Mr. Higgins, though only about four feet high, and an unfortunate cripple at that, struck, and spurned the beast from him.

Every member of the House felt that the dignity of their body had been insulted; and a committee was appointed to investigate the case. The committee reported, and on motion, Mr. McElwee was expelled from the House, and his name stricken out from the list of members. This was exactly right; and is the dawn of brighter days, when the Legislature are willing to merge their parts predilections, and boldly stand up for the honor and dignity of their body.

Every day tells us that unless some examples are made of the bullies and bravos who infest our Legislative Halls, that they will soon become the arena of gladiatorial combats, or the equally disgusting forum of scorpions and slaves. Well done Legislature of Pennsylvania.

“THE LOG CABIN.”—We have received the first No. of this interesting little sheet, published at Pottsville, under the direction of the Tippecanoe Club. As its name indicates, it goes for old Tip and Tyler, with every energy. Success to it.

Our Legislature

Adjourns to-morrow. Can any one tell why they did not adjourn two months since? What have they done? What has this mighty Loco Foco party, that was to reform every thing, effected; to satisfy the people that they really meant what they have so long been preaching. We can tell you a few words. They have legalized the suspension, and repealed that good old law which gave a man a chance to get silver out of their vaults in three months. They have been bought by the Banks—Governor and all; some of their own party say; and we are willing to believe them, knowing how venal they are. They have squandered thousands of the people's treasure, when the Governor says the State is nearly bankrupt. Ought not the State to be nearly bankrupt on all such humbug patriots and such hypocritical politicians. They will do it, the fit has gone forth; and old Tip will be the first to mount the breast works of their iniquity, and drive the money changers out. Nothing is surer, every day says that the honest officer of Thomas Jefferson, will still cling to the honest doctrines of old Democracy.

The Legislature of Ohio have passed resolutions setting forth that Great Britain is making encroachments upon our territory beyond the Rock Mountains, and calling upon the general government to interpose for the protection of the interests of the United States in that quarter.

CONNECTICUT

The Harrison Ball has commenced rolling. In that good old land of steady habits, they have lately had their State election, and Van Buren, and his myrmidons, have had a lesson they will long remember. The Harrison men carried every thing before them—the Senate, House and Governor. The reduction of the wages of the poor laboring men receives no countenance from her hard toiling sons. Well done old Connecticut.

Seducer's Victims.

From the N. Y. Express of yesterday. We have seldom had to relate a tale more sad, than the present melancholy story. A short two years since Miss Ruth Conger became acquainted with a villain of the name of Montgomery Winant, who professed honorable attentions to her. Under this suspicious pretext, he deplored her of her honor, and the result of their illicit connection was an infant daughter, born in the month of July last. Up to her unfortunate attachment to Winant, Miss Conger had sustained an irreproachable character, and was a worthy member of the Rev. Mr. Patton's church. Soon after the birth of her daughter, the unfortunate young woman discovered that Winant was a married man, and consequently that it was out of his power to fulfill his oft repeated promises of making her honorable amends for the injury she had received from him. This and other circumstances preyed upon her mind and produced serious attacks of despondency; and her despair at her forlorn situation so aberrated her mind that on Wednesday evening she put an end to her life and that of her innocent babe, by plunging into the cistern of the house she resided in.

By the testimony of Mrs. Ely, her sister, with whom she lived at 91 Grand st it appears that she had been in a melancholy mood for some time past. She had once threatened, if read out of the church to destroy herself. On Wednesday night as she did not appear at the table according to custom, Mrs. Ely went to seek her. She went to her room, and finding her door locked became alarmed, and informed her husband, who broke into the chamber, but Miss Conger was not there. Search was then made at the houses of the neighbors, but no tidings could be gained of her by them.

Mrs. Ely at length thought of the cistern, and taking a pole she thrust it down and imagined she felt something at the bottom. Information of these unhappy circumstances was sent to Mr. Charles Jarvis, No. 140 Canal st., who is a relative of the family, and he came instantly to the house, and assisted in getting the bodies out of the cistern. Both the mother and child had been a long time dead. When taken out of the water, the poor little infant was found with its lips placed closely to those of its mothers. The thoughts of her child never deserted the drowning woman, and her last sensible act was to bestow a final caress on her dying babe.

The atrocious originator of this tragedy cannot but feel compunction and remorse for these sad results of his deceit and falsehood. His mind will conjure up the phantoms of this poor girl and her child through every hour of his existence. They will haunt this dying pillow. What may come after is known but to God alone.
